David death dance for Charleston?

Times News Services

Hurricane David, which killed nearly 1,000 people in the Caribbean and caused heavy property damage in parts of Florida, today clawed northward with 145 km/h winds, hurling gales and heavy rains at the Georgia coast.

Charleston, S.C., appeared at the centre of David's aim today, prompting evacuation of coastal Georgia and South Carolina.

"There's no question about it," said Dick Shenot of the U.S. national weather service at Charleston, "Charleston is going to get hit."

At 10 a.m. local time the Miami Hurricane Centre said David was centred near latitude 30.5 north, longitude 80.8 west, about 56 km east of Jacksonville. It was moving northward at 18 to 24 km/h.

"The projected track takes the centre near and parallel to the Georgia coast today and to the South Carolina coast by evening," the forecasters warned. But they noted even a slight veer to the left of the track would bring the centre onto the Georgia coast.

Hurricane warnings were extended northward from Charleston to Cape Fear, N.C., and warnings were continued southward from Charleston to Daytona Beach, Fla. A hurricane watch was in effect north of Cape Fear to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

The Coast Guard station on Georgia's Tybee Island was evacuated when winds of 64 to 80 km/h stabbed ashore and heavy rains inundated causeways leading to the resort islands of Jekyell and St. Simons islands.

Further north in Charleston County South Carolina, schools and administrative offices closed today as a precautionary measure. Aircraft at Charleston Air Force Base were diverted to other installations and the Navy was preparing to move it's ships from Charleston into the open sea to ride out the storm.

A tornado, possibly spawned by the storm activity created by Hurricane David, was spotted over James Island, South Carolina, but no serious damage was reported.

Meanwhile, tropical storm Frederic swept around the Virgin Islands today and headed toward Puerto Rico, threatening to pour huge quantities of rain on areas crippled by David's onslaught last week.

Frederic steadily weakened Monday night and was downgraded to a tropical storm early today, with peak winds of 104 km/h.

In southern Florida hospitals a mini-baby boom was caused by David's low barometric pressures and in Miami fistfights broke out in hardware stores as long lines formed to purchase batteries and camp fuel.

Thousands fled Florida's coastal lowlands as David approached but most stayed put and there were even a few hardy surfers out to enjoy large waves that normally are a rarity along the beaches.

The blow David struck Florida was a puny one compared to the hit it scored on the Dominican Republic, where 950 are known dead.

Gold soars to high of $325 an ounce

Times News Services

The skyrocketing price of gold hit $325 U.S. an ounce today for the first time, and the United States dollar strengthened against other major currencies.

Gold sold for $324.375 an ounce in Zurich this morning, up from $322.875 at the close of trading Monday. In London, the afternoon fixing price was $325 after gold sold for $323.90 in the morning. The closing price Monday in London was $323.15.

The dollar edged up on opening in Frankfurt, Zurich, London, Paris, Brussels and Tokyo, easing fractionally in Milan.

It opened at 1.82535 marks in Frankfurt, up from Monday's closing 1.8250, and started at 1.65765 Swiss francs in Zurich, against 1.65735. In London, the pound opened at $2.2370 to the pound, down from Monday's $2.2480.

Plane crash kills two

POWELL RIVER (CP) — Pilot Eric Moore, 32, of Calgary and Mary Jane Glover, 34, of Vancouver have been identified as the persons killed Monday in the crash of a small plane on Savary Island in Georgia Strait.

Police said the Cessna 180 crashed after hitting trees on the edge of a grass landing strip about 18 kilometres north of here.

Gusty winds were reported at the time of the crash, which Transport Canada officials are investigating.

Meanwhile, two of the seven people who died last week when a twin-engine amphibian plane crashed on Digby Island, near Prince Rupert, have been identified by RCMP.

The names of the other five victims were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

An RCMP spokesman said Denny Adams, 30, from Masset on the Queen Charlotte Islands, the pilot of the 10-seat Grumman Goose, was killed in the crash. Adams had been living in Prince Rupert for the past three months.

Also killed was Bernard Martin, 34, of Port Edward.

Survivors are Antonio Stara, 48, of Vancouver, Andy Stewart, 24, of Delta and Clint Page, 43, of Burnaby.

Gamble for tuna failed: Skippers

The skippers of 11 U.S. tuna boats are to appear in provincial court in Vancouver as the calculated risk of following albacore tuna into Canadian waters turns into a costly gamble.

Charles Friend, a spokesman for federal Fisheries Minister James McGrath, said court appearances were to be set today.

Nine boats arrived in Vancouver Monday and two boats put in earlier at Port Alberni on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

After searching the boats, federal fisheries officers seized more than 30 tons of tuna allegedly caught within Canada's 200-mile limit. The tuna seized is to be sold to local processors with the money being held pending the outcome of court cases. The 2½ tons sold in Port Alberni earlier went for $850 a ton.

Friend said the eight skippers from the first boats seized were charged only with illegally entering Canadian waters, not with illegal fishing. According to U.S. law, he said, the latter charge automatically triggers an embargo on imports of Canadian tuna imports.

That's why Canadian officials have not laid that charge, he said.

"We tried to accommodate the Americans and accommodate ourselves," he said Monday. "We didn't want the embargo. Although it's not a lot of money, it can lead to other things."

Friend said eight other skippers who appeared in Victoria court last week were not charged with illegal fishing. However, the U.S. state department has said it is initiating an embargo on the $170,000 worth of tuna imported from Canada each year.

The boats were seized off the Queen Charlotte Islands along the B.C. coast as the highly-migratory tuna moved further north than usual this season.

"We knew there was some risk involved in going into Canadian waters, but it's difficult to judge just how the authorities are going to react to the situation," Gordon Tremain, skipper of the Banshee II of Coos Bay, Ore, said Monday. "Right now, it appears we lost."

Tremain, who declined to say how much tuna he was carrying in the holds of his 48-foot trawler, estimated his losses could run as high as $20,000.

The problem — the lack of an agreement between Canada and the U.S. on jurisdiction over migratory fish — also will draw the attention of officials in Washington and Ottawa this week.

Friend said fisheries vessels were still on patrol and would seize any U.S. boats found inside Canada's 200-mile limit.

He also said the only problem encountered during the seizures was when the skipper of the Velma J of San Francisco refused to co-operate with a fisheries officer put aboard the boat while it was being escorted to Vancouver.

He said the skipper refused to give the officer food and drink and the man went without for about 36 hours until stormy weather conditions subsided and the patrol vessel Howay was able to get close enough to give the officer supplies.

Petrocan pumps?

Times News Services

New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent wants Canadian motorists to be able to pull in and fill-'er-up at Petro-Canada service stations.

And Imperial Oil Canada president Jack Armstrong says the Conservative government should maintain at least 50-per-cent ownership of Petro-Canada to protect the interests of "the man in the street."

The NDP leader and the head of Canada's largest oil company both made strong defences of the government-owned oil company, which Prime Minister Joe Clark has promised to sell off to private interests.

Broadbent said Petrocan should become the "dominant force" in the Canadian oil industry.

"We want to expand the role of Petrocan to have it enter every phase of the petroleum business, exploration, development, right down to the retail outlet," he told a Steelworkers' Labor Day picnic in Sudbury.

The oil company executive said if "he was in the driver's seat," a federal presence would be maintained in Petro-Canada but he said he was still uneasy over reporting lines from Petro-Canada officials to Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn.

Armstrong, during an interview in Ottawa, said the government-owned oil company should not "have a preferred position with respect to exploration of land and federally-administered areas."

Williams in last-ditch ferry talks

Labor Minister Allan Williams today met mediator Fred Geddes and both union and management in what may be a last-ditch effort to prevent a ferry strike.

Williams said he simply wanted to talk with the union and ferry corporation officials to see how they think they are doing with the current negotiations.

But it is known the ferry workers are getting restless.

B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers spokesman Matt Brown said over the weekend time is running out and the contract problems had better be resolved soon.

There has already been one incident. One sailing of the Langdale-Horseshoe Bay run was cancelled Saturday morning when pickets appeared at the Langdale terminal. Union officials soon removed them.

Brown said the pickets were protesting slow progress in the talks.

Williams met with Geddes for 90 minutes then called in the two teams of negotiators.

The ferry workers served 72-hours strike notice Aug. 22, but aren't allowed to strike until the mediator reports out.

So far, Geddes has managed to keep both sides talking, but major issues such as wages, sick leave and the use of casual labor still have not been resolved.

If negotiations break off, the union has indicated it will launch rotating strikes.

The government, under essential services legislation passed nearly two years ago, can order a 90-day cooling-off period.

NDP '79: Please flush that plush!

A commentary by
BARBARA McLINTOCK
Times editorial page editor

VANCOUVER — The B.C. New Democratic Party held its annual convention in the Hotel Vancouver this weekend.

For any other party, there would be nothing newsworthy in that. Liberals, Conservatives, Social Crediters — they meet in the Hotel Vancouver and its standard-plush, multi-nationally-owned equivalents across B.C. all the time.

For the NDP, however, it was a big change: The party has a tradition of holding its conventions in bare union halls, in drafty university gymnasiums, in sagging, small-town convention centres where the walls are all concrete painted bright blue.

It is a measure of how far the party has drifted in the once-hated direction of "establishment" that convention organizers considered the Hotel Vancouver a suitable meeting spot.

It was not the only sign of the drift, called the "broadening of the party's base" by those who support it and the "abandonment of the party's principles" by those who oppose it. Some might go so far as to say the NDP is turning into a coalition of the left in the same way that Social Credit has turned into a coalition of the right.

To be sure, many of the convention delegates still were those who grew out of the cornerstones of the party — the CCF and Saskatchewan in the 1930s, the labor movement and its old-time organizers. Many others, however, were newcomers to the party, some of them people who had become involved only during the May election campaign.

Most of those newcomers are not "socialists" in the academic sense of the word. They probably know nothing of the Regina Manifesto, nothing of the Winnipeg General Strike or the struggles to unionize the Nanaimo coal mines.

They are reformers. They are people who believe in more social programs and/or more human rights and/or more government control over business practices. Perhaps essentially they are people who dislike the Socreds as much — or almost as much — as the people who gathered together under the Socred banner five years ago disliked the NDP.

Their presence was shown clearly when it came time for the party to elect its officers for the coming year. For the past three or four conventions, the so-called moderates within the party have consistently defeated the so-called radicals or hard-liners by about two to one in these elections. This year the ratio was closer to four to one.

Yet the conversion does not always come easily. Strenuous debate took place surrounding an economic develop-

Castro talk sparks U.S.-China snub

BY JEREMIAH O'LEARY
Washington Star

HAVANA, Cuba — The chief of the U.S. diplomatic mission in Cuba and the Chinese ambassador walked out on Fidel Castro Monday as the Cuban leader attacked both nations at the formal opening of the sixth summit conference of nonaligned countries.

The Chinese ambassador, Wang Zhan Yuan, left after about three minutes of the speech when Castro said that the imperialist Yankees and China had been scheming because they did not want the Third-Wold summit to be held in Havana.

The exit of the U.S. mission chief, Wayne Smith, followed the Chinese ambassador's walkout by two minutes. Smith apparently waited the extra two minutes so as not to walk out in lockstep with the Chinese envoy.

When Smith arrived at the U.S. Interests Section offices in Havana, where aides were busy watching Castro's vehement anti-U.S. speech on television, he said tersely, "Take good notes on this. I wasn't there to hear all of it."

Smith left after Castro's attack on the United States for what Castro called the "uncivilized" behavior of not yet apologizing for the "well-known plots to assassinate leaders of the Cuban revolution" as exposed by the U.S. Senate.

Castro's speech contained several attacks on the U.S. government. He accused the Western diplomats of making feverish efforts to modify positions to be taken by the nonaligned countries here and by pushing the line that the Cubans were trying to make the nonaligned nations tools of the Soviet Union.

Castro also attacked Egypt and Israel, saying that the two nations were agents of imperialism for signing what he said was a "dirty, bloody and unjust" military pact at the behest of the United States.

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat smiled broadly as Castro accused those nations of co-operating in the assassination of the Palestinian people. The Egyptian delegate, Secretary of State Botras Ghali, stared fixedly at his desk while Castro attacked what he called Egypt's treason against the other Arab peoples and Palestine.

Castro also called on the OPEC countries to implement a fair oil policy for the other non-aligned nations and said the futures of the oil and non-oil countries were linked.

Officials pressure for airline merger

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Quebec transport ministers have urged the new owners of Quebecair to join forces with a group seeking control of Nordair and together purchase the latter from Air Canada.

The encouragement followed a two-hour meeting between federal Transport Minister Don Mazankowski and Quebec counterpart Lucien Lessard.

"The minister didn't commit himself to accept such an offer," Lessard told reporters, "but he did indicate to me that it would facilitate his task."

Quebecair president Alfred Hamel announced last week he had purchased controlling interest in Quebecair and issued a call for unity among groups interested in buying the airlines and merging them.

Last weekend, two Quebec credit union federations announced they had buried the hatchet in their battle to buy the airlines and would work together.

One of them, the Caisses Populaires Desjardins, has offered to join Hamel in Quebecair. The other, the Caisses d'Entraide Economique, already owns 10 per cent of Nordair and is working with Nordair employees to purchase shares.

Radio ops return

Air and marine radio services in B.C. returned to normal Monday when radio operators who stayed off the job Saturday and Sunday returned to work.

A one-day national study session was held Friday.

All stations but one were back by Monday night, said Stephen Rybak, Transport Canada spokesman.

Rybak said those operators considered vital to public safety remained on the job throughout the disruption to provide emergency services.

Barry Hastings, radio operator spokesman, said Monday more than 90 per cent of the B.C. radio operators that could participate stayed off the job Friday.

Operator representatives met in Ottawa over the weekend and gained support from their bargaining agent, the Public Service Alliance, he said.

THE OUTCASTS by Ben Wicks

Moving to the 'in' proves too plush!

ment policy paper, planned to be the party's economic strategy if it is soon returned to government.

Many of the party's more moderate members, including a fair proportion of the 26-member caucus, considered the policy still to be too radical. It calls for the return of all B.C. Resources Investment Corporation assets to public ownership (a proposition probably not so radical as impractical) and the creation of new Crown corporations for developing urban land, marketing coal, and perhaps marketing other natural resources.

The policy passed with a few amendments that toned down some of the strongest rhetoric. But although it was too radical for many of the delegates, it should be remembered that five or six years ago, the party annually passed resolutions calling for the total nationalization of Macmillan Bloedel and B.C. Tel. At that time, the 1979 policy would surely have lost — it wouldn't have been nearly socialist enough.

There was one other clue that conversion to the Establishment was not yet complete: the idea of holding the convention in the Hotel Vancouver didn't work. Delegates looked and felt uncomfortable in their blue-jeans and T-shirts among the red plush and chandeliers. The booths selling socialist literature and NDP baseball caps looked incongruous against the gold-patterned wallpaper. Everyone complained about the bar prices, almost twice what the NDP normally charges at its functions.

Next year, it is understood, the party will return to a sagging convention hall with bright-blue concrete-block walls.

Kurds take to hills

MAHABAD (AP) — Kurdish rebels vowed to fight on as they withdrew into the hills from Mahabad and the forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini prepared to occupy the fourth major rebel centre they have conquered in northwest Iran.

A ranking official of the banned Kurdish Democratic party said the tribal warriors were retreating to Sardasht, another mountain stronghold 80 kilometres south of Mahabad and close to the Iraqi border, and will deliver a "severe blow" there to government forces.

"We were hoping we could draw the army into an engagement inside Mahabad, but unfortunately they did not bite," said the official, who declined to have his name used. "Now we are going to concentrate our forces in Sardasht where they can't use their tanks so effectively."

Heavy firing was heard into the night echoing over the rugged hills surrounding Mahabad.

Break-in backfires

RICHMOND (CP) — One man was killed and another sent to hospital early today when an apparent break-in backfired in this Vancouver suburb.

Police said they believe three persons broke into a house and jumped Jeff Hollier when he got home from work.

One of the attackers was killed, police said, and Hollier was in hospital in stable condition with a punctured lung.

The dead man has not been identified and police are continuing their investigation.

Labor daze

GLACIER, Wash. (AP) — It usually takes only one pie in the face to realize this little town west of Mount Baker is different.

Take this weekend, for instance. There was the Out-To-Lunch Bunch racing through the woods changing underwear as they went, and the 12 panting pooches that sat down to a "black leash and tails" dinner Saturday night at Gary Graham's World Famous Antique General Store and Deluxe Gourmet Self Service Restaurant.

Delinda Rogers, a waitress at the restaurant, watched the Out-To-Lunch Bunch stagger across the finish line where they were pelted with pies and shrugged: "I was looking for work and I saw a sign on the door that said, 'Waitress Wanted — must be willing to work under bizarre conditions'."

NEED A FRIEND? Tammy is just waiting to lavish her affections in return for a home. She's four months old, a golden lab cross, and ifyou need someone who cares when the rest of the world in indifferent, Tammy's at the SPCA shelter on Napier Lane. (Bill Halkett photo).

Copter saves charity climb

A helicopter manoeuvred through thick clouds today, set down on the wind-raked summit of Mount Rainier and rescued a disc jockey and two guides who had been stranded by foul weather. The three men couldn't see the helicopter but followed the sound of its whirling blades through blinding snow about 50 metres across the 4,400-metre summit, Larry Henderdon, spokesman for Mount Rainier National Park, said. The U.S. Army Chinook helicopter from Fort Lewis reached the men shortly after 9 a.m. after being turned back by fog and wind just after daybreak. Terry MacDonald, 31, of KYYX-FM radio in Seattle, and his guides began their mountain climb for charity one week ago. They became stranded during the weekend after an accumulation of 24 metres of snow destroyed their tent and forced them to take refuge in sleeping bags nestled in a crevasse "bigger than a basketball gymnasium."

A disc jockey and two companions battled for survival high on Mount Rainier today after a blizzard halted their charity climb and helicopter rescue attempts failed. Two and one-half metres of snow fell on the climbers during the weekend, destroying their tent and forcing them to take refuge in sleeping bags nestled in a crevasse "bigger than a basketball gymnasium." Four rescue flights by a Chinook helicopter from Fort Lewis failed Monday when the aircraft could not land because of fog and blowing snow. The climbers, who are unable to descend because their ice axes were buried in the deep snow and because there is a threat of an avalanche, are trapped near the summit of the 425-metre mountain. Disc jockey Terry MacDonald, 31, initiated the climb to raise money for the fight against musuclar dystrophy.

The Dalai Lama, spiritual leader of Tibetan and Mongolian Buddhists, arrived at Kennedy International airport near New York on Monday to a cheering welcome from about 600 persons. The visit, the first by a Dalai Lama to North America, is expected to include an interdenominational service at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York.

The two surviving Chianese octuplets, 19 days old today, are gaining weight and continuing to improve, San Paolo Hospital report. Attending physicians said Silvana weighs 31 ounces and her sister, Anna, 30 ounces.

Debby Boone and her new husband, Gabriel Ferrer, will mix business with pleasure next month when they turn Miss Boone's concert tour of Japan into a honeymoon. The daughter of Pat Boone and the son of Rosemary Clooney and Jose Ferrer were married Saturday in Hollywood.

Canadians top $3M for MD

TORONTO (CP) — With Ontario leading the way, Canadians donated $3,038,407 to the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada on Sunday and Monday during 21½ hours of the Jerry Lewis Labor Day telethon.

Association president Ruth Aziz said the money will help pay for treatment and research for 20,000 Canadians who suffer from the disabling disease.

"The $3 million pledged during our 25th anniversary year is a tribute to the generosity and compassion of Canadians and to the 8,000 volunteers who worked before and during the telethon in the 25 pledge centres across Canada," she said.

The 14th annual telethon, based in Las Vegas, raised $30,075,227 across North America — more than $1 million above last year's total.

Residents of Ontario donated $2,060,707; Quebec $633,613; Alberta $124,632; Manitoba $99,086; British Columbia $48,762; Nova Scotia $46,162; New Brunswick $17,898; and Saskatchewan $7,547.

Besides such stars as Sammy Davis Jr. and Burt Reynolds, this year's telethon had an unusually high number of rock stars, Petzall said. Among them were the Rolling Stones, Paul McCartney and Wings, Kiss and Peter Frampton.

Suncor
An Important New Name In Oil & Gas

August 22, 1979. The day Sun Oil Company Limited joined with Great Canadian Oil Sands Limited to form Suncor Inc.

Suncor is new. But it inherits the financial, physical, technical and human assets of two established and resourceful companies. And Suncor's strong, well balanced organization means these assets will be utilized more effectively for shareholders, future investors and Canadian consumers.

Suncor will continue to market the Sunoco brand of gasoline, heating oil and lubricants, as well as Sunchem petrochemicals, with the same dedication to quality and good value. Through its Resources Group, Suncor will continue and expand the pioneering work of Great Canadian Oil Sands and build on the exploration and production record of Sun Oil. The thrust of this combined effort will be to develop and bring to market new supplies of oil and gas.

Suncor. An important new name in Canadian oil and gas. And this is just the beginning!

Back to school

Children dressed in red vests, wearing red hats and carrying little stop-signs re-appeared in many pedestrian crossings on busy throughfares in every Canadian city this morning. Drivers manoeuvering through rush hour traffic were being wisely warned by radio commentators to be particularly careful. For thousands of youngsters, the summer holidays are over and they were making their way back to the classroom and the challenges of a higher grade.

Although no individual driver would notice, the numbers of those children riding school buses, walking along sidewalks with lunchpails in tow, or riding bicycles, are declining in the major population centers of B.C. The fact that enrolment figures are dropping is bringing new challenges that must be faced by our educators and politicians.

Student enrolment in B.C.'s public schools dropped by about two percent this year to a total of approximately half a million. On the other hand, the number of fulltime equivalent teachers dropped by only three-tenths of one percent.

In Vancouver, this year the superintendent of schools has projected that fewer students returning to the classroom will mean some 140 fewer teaching positions. According to the superintendent, the situation has been taken care of by attrition along with not renewing contracts of temporary replacements. There has been no loss of permanent jobs. The same situation is being reported by the North Vancouver school district.

Because of the instability of student enrolment, some school districts are making increasing use of the temporary contract system. This is coming into conflict with teacher associations. School boards argue that there is little point in creating the illusion of a permanent job when there is the possiblity of being laid off in two or three years. Teachers in many cases feel that boards are using the contract system simply as a means of reducing costs, to the disadvantage of the individual teacher concerned.

While there is no question that any hiring practice can be abused, it would seem that school boards, faced with pressures from the ministry of education and the taxpayer to reduce costs, should make reasonable use of the short term contract in light of decreasing school populations.

Teachers, like doctors and members of other professions are more inclined to seek positions in the Lower Mainland and southern Vancouver Island. Teaching jobs in southern B.C. are hard to find, but positions are available for those who want to work in the outlying areas.

For years the quality of education in the rural parts of the province has not kept pace with the large urban centers because of high teacher turnover and the tendency for highly qualified and capable teachers to move back to the cities.

Decreasing student populations is eradicting the wilderness-training-ground syndrome because there simply aren't the same number of jobs available in the cities. Experienced teachers are staying longer in outlying areas, and northern school boards think the stability this brings to the system enhances the quality of educationl

The president of the B.C. Teachers Federation says there are positions available for those willing to travel. Teachers should be encouraged to take the challenge. Good teachers are needed in the rural areas.

It's interesting to note that while student populations are declining, the cost of education continues to rise. The provincial minister of education has repeatedly asked school boards to take advantage of the situation to curb rising costs. This year, the combined operating budgets of B.C.'s school districts is up 8.8 per cent over 1978. Since the number of students is dropping faster than the number of teachers we can only hope that school boards are improving the quality of education in their districts.

A transportation centre

It's encouraging to hear from Ald. Bill Tindall that the city of Victoria is already beginning to plan for a replacement for the old coach lines terminal behind the Empress Hotel. Since the lease is going to expire within a couple of years, planning must start now to ensure that the buses have a place to go in 1981. These days the processes of planning, designing, obtaining necessary approvals and funding, and construction can easily take two years for a major project.

As planning begins, however, we hope that the city and the Capital Regional District are not going to see the process just as finding another site for the bus depot. The expiration of the lease gives Greater Victoria a golden opportunity to provide a modern, efficient transportation centre for the city. Such a centre would undoubtedly be a boon to the tourist trade.

At the least, the centre should contain facilities for city transit buses as well as intercity coaches. It's absurd to have the intercity depot at Douglas and Belleville while the hub of city transit routes is at Yates and Douglas half a mile away.

Better yet would be a centre that could incorporate the E & N dayliner along with the buses. This is the pattern of transport centres in Europes — buses and trains all under one roof. Since proposals are already being made to extend the E & N route across the Johnson Street bridge, it would surely make sense to try to tie that in with the new bus terminal.

And best of all would be a system in which the terminal could be located fairly near to the docking facilities for the ferries Princess Marguerite and Coho and the downtown commuter airlines.

It wouldn't be easy to find a site or plan a terminal that would meet all these requirements. If it could be done, however, it would be a fine addition to Victoria for years into the future.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

The economics of inflation

If you want to understand the primary economic threat in North America and your own future prospects, don't pay any attention to the speeches of governments. Disregard their budgets, charts and solemn predictions. Instead, seek out a young university student, offer him a beer or two and he will give you the real facts without charge.

The student is sure to have one of those cheap pocket computers that make any knowledge of arithmetic unnecessary and know how to use it by pressing various buttons. Pressing them for us the other night, he projected Canada's current rate of inflation with interesting, not to say staggering, results. The figures may err by a few decimal points, depending on the student and the beer, but their meaning is plain, though we are too punch-drunk to grasp it.

Absurd idea

If money continues to lose value at 10 per cent annually — a conservative estimate — your dollar will be worth 34.868 cents a decade from now. In 20 years it will have shrunk to 12.157 cents. In an average lifetime it will become worthless.

This, you may think, won't matter if your money income rises proportionately. But only the powerful groups of society, the rich capitalists, for instance, the labor unions, the civil servants on indexed pensions or the lottery winners can hope to keep pace with prices. And the more they get from a limited total supply of wealth the less there will be for the rest of us.

The notion that all of us can beat inflation by earning more money is as popular as it is mathematically absurd. For higher incomes are cancelled by higher prices and even the powerful groups must lose in the end because the end will be a grand bust. The dog chases his tail but never catches it and finally collapses, as many once-great societies have done.

Before that happens, observe another curious phenomenon or, more accurately, a crime authorized by law.

The government of Canada, like most governments, asks its loyal citizens to buy its bonds and finance its huge budgetary deficits — about $10-12 billion this year. It will pay handsome interest on these debts, probably around nine per cent at least (depending on the rates of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board). A wonderful bargain, almost usury, the government says in its seductive advertising.

But if prices rise at nine per cent the bond purchaser receives nothing in actual value — less than nothing when he must pay taxes on his income, and he is also losing his capital. What a bargain!

Suppose that the patriotic Canadian buys a government (or a corporate) bond now worth $1,000. In 10 years, at a 10 per cent inflation rate, it will be worth $348.68 about the time he cashes it to pay some personal debt. Or if he waits 20 years and needs his precious, hard-earned nest egg in his old age he will get $121.57 for his thrifty investment.

Such are the figures emerging from the student's computer and, apart from the mathematics, they describe an act of fraud which, committed by the citizen, would land him in jail. Administered by the government, counterfeiting is quite legal.

Is the citizen entirely innocent of any fraud? No, he is not. Demanding more state services than he is willing to finance in honest taxes, he forces governments to defraud him. But governments are the original instigators of the joint crime since they encouraged the citizen's demands in the first place by promising impossibilities.

On the one hand, they urge the citizen to save and pay a large fraction of the state's overhead costs by increasing the public debt, thus reducing the capital that might be invested in constructive enterprise where it is most required.

On the other hand, they urge the citizen to spend his money and thus maintain economic growth, employment and prosperity. Among the better economists this contradictory advice is known as fine tuning — a perfect tune for our jolly danse macabre.

However, the citizen's financial damage is the smallest part of the process. Far more serious are the social consequences when the money machine runs out of control.

Death rattle

Those consequences were traced by Theodore H. White, the famous American scholar and journalist, whose book, In Search of History, records the ancient experience of China.

The Sung dynasty of the tenth century, he writes, invented paper money, found it easy to print and "collapsed in inflationary implosion. . . Since then, almost always, whenever a government has perished it has done so in a paroxysm of inflation. From the Sung dynasty to the French Revolution, from the Confederacy of the United States to the Weimar Republic, inflation has accompanied the death rattle."

Fortunately we have not heard that rattle yet and never need to hear if we use a little common sense, soon enough. But the time is late already and the fine tuners of Washington, preparing for next year's presidential election, are tempted to pump up the money balloon again, leaving a continental bust to their successors.

No consultation

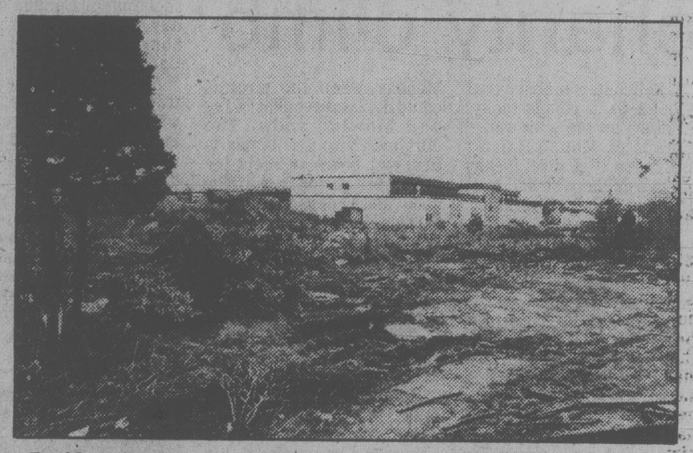

At a time when the municipal council of Saanich has so blatantly disregarded the wishes of the local residents by its decision to impose the Royal Oak industrial park upon them, it is indeed refreshing to see that Hugh Curtis has taken a stand in an attempt to right such an obvious injustice.

What he has seen, and apparently the majority of the Saanich council has been unable to perceive, is that a point is reached where people should come before the interests of the business community, and when, at a public hearing, the vast majority of those who voice their opinions are overwhelmingly against an industrial development in a residential area, then those making the decisions should abide by the will of that majority. This is a fundamental principle in our democratic society, and the reason why we elect aldermen — to represent the majority, not the minority, however attractive the gains may appear.

What is distressing, however, is the lack of official reaction to this stand taken by Mr. Curtis. Saanich council, it seems, considers it sufficient to carry on as if nothing had happened, their main worry being whether provincial funds will be available to them for future projects. They have not had the humility to consider whether their decision to go ahead with the industrial park was the right one.

One can only assume that the continued silence on the part of Saanich council indicates that they are unable to justify their decision, and, that from the standpoint of moral obligations, that silence should be construed as thunderous applause for the courageous attitude of Mr. Curtis. He has seen fit to remind us all that an elected representative must continue to represent those who elected him, despite the resultant unpopularity in certain circles and accusations of interference.

Perhaps Saanich council should learn by this experience, and never lose that common touch. — R. J. Richards, Royal Oak Community Association, 4151 Oakridge Crescent.

Residents still oppose Royal Oak becoming industrial site like this.

Pilots reponsible

On page four of the Aug. 24 issue of the Times there was an editorial entitled Pressure At the Screen. I do not intend to comment here on the bilingual pilot situation; that's been done over and over already.

But the author of that piece made on inexcusable error which I would like to set straight. The editorialist said of air traffic controllers that . . . "it's their sole responsibility to keep the aircraft apart." It's not their responsibility at all.

There is, in fact, only one single person who is sole and completely responsible for any and all decisions pertaining to any and all aspects of any flight undertaken by any aircraft: That person is the pilot-in-command.

If the writer had thought about it at all, taken the time to think it through, or even better yet, called the control tower, or any of the flight training schools at the airport, then this completely backward assumption would never have so ignorantly found its way into print.

And it's not that difficult to figure out: it's the plane that's moving, not the control tower; and it's the pilot who is flying the plane, not the air traffic controller. The controller, despite having radar, is simply not in a position to know what is going on in the cockpit of the aircraft: the pilot alone is. Therefore, the pilot alone is solely able to make the final decision on anything.

Now the truly professional and/or consciencious pilot will make the fullest possible use of all facilities and aids available to him or her. Not the least of these is, of course, air traffic control, which assists the pilot in any way possible — giving directions, vectors, helping with the traffic separation, making "advisories", and giving any other assistance which the pilot may require.

But because the pilot is the only one who actually controls the aircraft itself, it is the pilot — and only the pilot — who is solely responsible for all aspects of flight safety, including traffic separation.

So let's hope that any misinformed — and therefore misled — reader of the editorial has now been set straight.

By the way, my qualifications? I'm a commercially-licensed pilot, and I've been flying for eight years. — R. Silver, 417-3187 Shelbourne Street.

Finest service

There has been a considerable amount of press coverage with respect to hospital care in this area. I would appreciate an opportunity to share my observations concerning this as related to the experience of a close friend recently confined to the Royal Jubilee Hospital (West 4) for about a month.

This friend, in his seventies, was rushed to the Jubilee in late June, having suddenly become paralyzed from waist to toes. A small tumor had developed, evidently, which interferred with the functioning of nerves in the spinal cord. Irrevocable damage resulted and further complications ensued.

This gentleman went into the hospital looking tanned, of good weight, cheerful, potentially independent — and yet he had been mortally stricken. During the next few weeks his decline was rapid and necessary support systems were introduced. His body was nourished by support systems and it was drained by support systems. He could do little but breathe for himself.

The hospital care was superb. The patient was made comfortable and pain-free to the fullest possible measure, and he and his bed were immaculate. A fastidious man, this was particularly important to him. I know that staff was pressured, but what skill and professional commitment it must take to keep this from being obvious to all. Somehow a haven of kindness and highly competent care was gathered around the patient by the network of hospital staff.

Miss C. Moore, director of nursing, and her remarkable nursing staff (particularly Miss Haaland, assistant supervisor for the ward, whose compassion and honest, candid response to the family was so unstintingly given) are to be congratulated. The orderlies were superb.

My friend died less than a month after he was admitted, but his wife and I draw comfort from the care and concern we saw him unflaggingly given — even up until he drew his last breath. This is nursing care, and hospital care, at its very finest. — Hattie R. Staghall, 10655 Blue Heron Road, Sidney.

Industrial courts

All branches of the media tell us so much about strikes from day to day that the impact tends to numb our senses to such an extent that we fail to appreciate the seriousness of it all. Sooner or later both governments and people must come to realize that we can no longer afford the losses caused by industrial strife and that our very economy is endangered by it.

Now I am the first to admit that unions have had a beneficial effect and should be supported but not to the extent of endangering the nation. There was a time when private quarrels were settled by the individuals concerned, by force if necessary, but as civilization advanced it was found advisable to prohibit violence and require disputants to go before a judge and accept his decision. We are all the better for it and the time has surely come when industrial disputes should be settled in a like manner rather than at the expense, not only of those directly affected, but of the public at large.

We trust our judges to be fair and impartial. Can we not establish industrial courts which would show an equal propriety and fair play? — F. L. P. Anderson, 409-2174 Cadboro Bay Road.

Correction

Referring to a letter signed by M. Booth dated Aug. 28, I wish to correct some misunderstandings regarding nursing students from a "local college".

The only "local college" training nursing students is Camosun College and the students being trained will be licensed practical nurses. During their time in the local hospitals these student practical nurses are supernumerary personnel, not part of the staff and they are supervised by instructors from Camosun College, not by hospital nurses. Hence the staffing of the wards on which these students are trained must be maintained by hospital employees without relying on the student practical nurses to cover the workload. A student is never assigned to cover for a staff member off sick or late coming to work. The college instructors supervise these students at all times. Hospital staff nurses do not take time away from their patient care in order to teach, observe, evaluate the students.

It is understandable that consumers of our health services should be concerned about the efficiency of our hospitals and the quality of health care; therefore it is important that such concerned consumers should have accurate information about these matters. — Rita Ralfe, (Student Practical Nurse, Camosun College,) 31-2502 Dowler Place.

Good memories

A few weeks ago we took our bikes to Victoria for a few days. We had a good time seeing Victoria, but we want to tell you that we really enjoyed staying at the Fernwood Youth Hostel. We met many neat people there and everyone was so nice to us. We are planning to visit Victoria again next summer, and will certainly stay at the hostel again. — Suzanne Gersbeck and Mary McCormick, Seattle.

High school forever

By JOAN DIDION

(Didion, a U.S. essayist and novelist and author of Play It As It Lays, wrote this for the London Observer.)

Self-absorption is general, as is self-doubt. In the large coastal cities of the United States this summer, many people wanted to be dressed in 'real linen,' cut by Calvin Klein to wrinkle, which implies real money. In the large coastal cities of the United States this summer many people wanted to be served the perfect vegetable terrine.

It was a summer in which only have-nots wanted a cigarette or a vodka-and-tonic or a charcoal-broiled steak. It was a summer in which the more hopeful members of the society wanted roller skates, and stood in line to see Woody Allen's Manhattan, a picture in which, toward the end, the Woody Allen character makes a list of reasons to stay alive. 'Groucho Marx' is one reason, and 'Willie Mays' is another. The second movement of Mozart's 'Jupiter' Symphony. Louis Armstrong's 'Potato Head Blues.' Flaubert's 'A Sentimental Education.' This list is modishly eclectic, a trace wry, definitely OK with real linen; and notable, as raisons d'etre go, in that every experience it evokes is essentially passive.

This list of Woody Allen's is the ultimate consumer report, and the extent to which it has been quoted approvingly suggests a new class in America, a subworld of people rigid with apprehension that they will die wearing the wrong sneaker, naming the wrong symphony, preferrring "Madame Bovary.'

What is arresting about these recent 'serious' pictures of Woody Allen's, about Annie Hall and Interiors as well as Manhattan, is not the way they work as pictures but the way they work with the audiences. The people who go to see these pictures, who analyse them and write about them and argue the deeper implications in their texts and subtexts, seem to agree that the world on-screen pretty much mirrors the world as they know it.

This is interesting, and rather astonishing, since the peculiar and hermetic self-regard in Annie Hall and Interiors and Manhattan would seem nothing with which large numbers of people would want to identify. The characters in these pictures are, at best, trying. They are morose. They have bad manners. They seem to take long walks and go to smart restaurants only to ask one another hard questions. "Are you serious about Tracy?" the Michael Murphy character asks the Woody Allen character in Manhattan. "Are you still hung up on Yale?" the Woody Allen character asks the Diane Keaton character. "I think I'm still in love with Yale," she confesses several scenes later. "You are?" he counters, "or you think you are?"

Woody Allen and Diane Keaton in Manhattan

All of the characters in Woody Allen pictures not only ask these questions but actually answer them, on camera, and then, usually in another restaurant, listen raptly to third-party analyses of their own questions and answers.

How come you guys got divorced?" they ask each other with real interest, and, on a more rhetorical level, "why are you so hostile", and "why can't you just once in a while consider my needs." ("I'm sick of your needs," is the way Diane Keaton answers this question in Interiors, one of the few lucid moments in the picture.) What does she say, these people ask incessantly, what does she say and what does he say and, finally, inevitably, "what does your analyst say?"

These people have, on certain subjects, extraordinary attention spans. When Natalie Gittelson of the New York Times Magazine recently asked Woody Allen how his own analysis was going after 22 years, he answered this way: "It's very slow . . . but an hour a day, talking about your emotions, hopes, angers, disappointments, with someone who's trained to evaluate this material — over a period of years, you're bound to get more in touch with feelings than someone who makes no effort."

Well, yes and (apparently) no. Over a period of 22 years, 'you're bound' only to get older, barring nasty surprises. This notion of oneself as a kind of continuing career — something to work at, work on, 'make an effort' for and subject to an hour a day of emotional Nautilus training, all in the interests not of attaining grace but of improving one's 'relationships' — is fairly recent in the world, at least in the world not inhabited entirely by adolescents.

In fact the paradigm for the action in these recent Woody Allen movies is high school. The characters in Manhattan and Annie Hall and Interiors are, with one exception, presented as adults, as sentient men and women in the most productive years of their lives, but their concerns and conversations are those of clever children, 'class brains,' acting put a year-book fantasy of adult life. (The one exception is 'Tracy,' the Mariel Hemingway part in Manhattan, another kind of adolescent fantasy. Tracy actually is a high-school senior, at the Dalton School, and has perfect skin, perfect wisdom, perfect sex, and no visible family. Tracy's mother and father are covered in a single line: they are said to be in London, finding Tracy an apartment. When Tracy wants to go to JFK Airport she calls a limo. (Tracy put me in mind of an American-International Pictures executive who once advised me, by way of pointing out the absence of adult characters in AIP beach movies, that nobody ever paid $3 to see a parent.)

These faux adults of Woody Allen's have dinner at Elaine's, and argue art versus ethics. They share sodas, and wonder 'what love is.' They have 'interesting' occupations, none of which intrudes in any serious way on their dating. Many characters in these pictures 'write,' usually on tape recorders. In Manhattan, Woody Allen quits his job as a television writer and is later seen dictating an 'idea' for a short story, and idea which, I am afraid, is also the 'idea' for the picture itself: "People in Manhattan are constantly creating these real unnecessary neurotic problems for themselves that keep them from dealing with more terrifying unsolvable problems about the universe."

'Over-education' is something Woody Allen seems to discern more often than the rest of us might. 'I know so many people who are well-educated and super-educated,' he told an interviewer for Time recently. "Their common problwm is that they have no understanding and no wisdom; without that, their education can only take them so far." In other words they have problems with their 'relationships', they have failed to 'work through' the material of their lives with a trained evaluator, they have yet to perfect the quality of their emotional consumption.

Wisdom is hard to find. Happines takes research. The messaage that large numbers of people are getting from Manhattan and Interiors and Annie Hall is that this kind of emotional shopping around is the proper business of life's better students, that adolescence can now extend to middle age.

Because they were first must we pay forever?

Perspectives II, Statistics Canada, 1977.

OTTAWA — This quotation from a government information digest reflects the Canadian obsession with being fair and just, or, at least trying to be fair and just.

In the case of Canada's indigenous people, fair and just has meant that all the rest of us have felt ourselves to be packing a heavy burden of legal and moral debt. And, within the law and custom as they have developed here, we certainly do have obligations, the shape of which our white forbears determined.

But there is another side to justice. What about the rest of Canadians, who, without benefit of a strong lobby may forever be footing the growing bill for the increasingly large crowd of native Canadians, as well as having to consider new and often absurd claims from their leaders about how justice can be done?

Native rights advocates never talk about the increasing cost of their concept of justice, nor about the always growing population of heirs to perpetual special status. Instead, they are upbeat, optimistic of eventual solutions. As Peter Cumming and Neil Mickenberg wrote in their landmark book, Native Rights In Canada, "The concept of a fair and equitable legislative solution, negotiated in consultation with the native peoples, is both realistic and consistent with the Canadian sense of justice."

An ultimate solution "realistic"? The opposite is the case. There will never be a satisfactory resolution no matter how serious and protracted the negotiations.

Why? Because the situation is far too complicated now, too strewn with issues and groups. And because it seems to be the unwritten policy of native groups to further complicate matters every day, to always add to the burden unresolved issues with which they can busy themselves far into the years ahead.

Such newly injected issues can also become respectable, even acceptable, if the natives make a big enough song and dance. Witness Indians participating "fully" in constitutional discussions — an absurd, after-the-fact granting of governmental status to one race within Canada — announced July 30 by federal-provincial relations minister Bill Jarvis. Will Italian-Canadian leaders be able to participate "fully"? Or Canadian blacks?

How complicated are things? Let me limn just the basics. One problem is determining who's who with respect to any claims on the government and people of Canada. There are registered Indians (295,898 at the end of 1977), treaty Indians (167,288), enfranchised Indians, other non-status Indians, Inuit (approx. 20,500) and Metis.

What is a native when it comes to considering native rights? A registered Indian? Registered Indians, non-status Indians and Inuit? Or anyone with a trace of aboriginal blood?

Treaties add to the confusion. From 1871 to 1923, 11 "numbered" treaties were signed with Indians in Ontario, the prairies and Northwest Territories. Federal governments, remembering what the Proclamation of 1763 said about the rights of Indians to their land, and mindful of "British justice," were anxious to get title to land as it was needed by settlers and others.

But, after securing these treaties, the government lost interest in the process with natives elsewhere, largely because the press of settlers was over. Where do these natives stand.?

And, with the treaties that were signed, hundreds of questions remain, not simply concerning the legal phrasing of the documents, but what both sides understood to be the terms and "the spirit" of what they undertook together. Can these issues be resolved at this remove from the original events?

Then, in regard to both the treaties that have been signed and those huge areas of Canada not covered by treaties, there is the matter of comprehensive and specific claims. As of June, 17 comprehensive claims had been filed with the Indian Affairs Native Claims office. They cover most of northern Canada where native rights were not ended by treaty. In the treaty areas, 66 specific claims have been filed.

Finally, adding to the confusion, are the many and multiplying ludicrous claims, based on a loose definition of "rights" and making almost fraudulent use of the popular notion that natives had a "better" philosophy and way of life.

I quote from various native briefs: "we have the right to guaranteed representation in all legislative assemblies;" "we are a people with a right to special status in confederation;" "it is our sacred duty to slow you down before (Nature) is destroyed;" "we protect these custodian rights by whatever means necessary."

What bothers me is not some very real legal obligations to natives; it's the antique notion that a group of people, based on its racial origin and the fact that its ancestors were here first, should have claim forever on the rest of us, not only to special and costly "free" privileges, but to whatever its claims can produce.

I'm just as native to Canada as any of the posterity of the original native peoples. If priority of place is to be assigned by race and length of stay, perhaps this screwball approach should be broadened so other groups of Canadians can find their rung on the ladder, instead of all being second-class for having arrived late.

Whipping the habit

russell baker

NEW YORK — I had not taken the Rustmobile out for a spin in over seven months when I got behind the steering wheel recently. This had nothing to do with fuel conservation or bile toward the gasoline industry. I had made a New Year's resolution last January to stop driving, partly to see if it could be done and partly to stanch the flow of tribute I was paying the pirates who operate Manhattan parking garages to keep the Rustmobile sheltered.

Giving up driving was almost as hard as stopping smoking for the first few weeks. I had a 25-year habit, and even though there is really no place to drive to in New York, since you can't find a parking space if you do drive there, nevertheless the psychological addiction remained powerful.

The most painful side of being without driving capability was the sense of being less than a full-blooded American. Upon awaking, I was beset by feelings of self-pity brought on by the knowledge that I couldn't drive any place.

At breakfast I would grouse that everybody else in the country could at that moment drive any place he wanted to drive, while I was condemned to the subway, the bus, to taxis or to walking. There was no place I wanted to drive, of course. I had never driven any place since coming to New York, except for the occasional trip to Riverdale, Bloomfield, N.J., or the repair shops on the West Side after my neighborhood parking garage had smashed something while moving the Rustmobile from one space to another.

Still, the knowledge that I couldn't drive if I wanted to was infuriating. I should note that to avoid temptation I had stored the Rustmobile 250 miles away in a rent-free hideaway. Later, a close friend, feeling sorry for it, had taken it out and driven it to Vancouver, Mexico and Abilene, making it totally inaccessible.

As with cigarettes, however, abstention soon makes the driving addict a new person. After a month or two, I began to feel superior.

So superior, in fact, that people who drove began to disgust me with their filthy, wasteful habit. I travelled to Washington by train, and when I met people who had made the trip by car, I gloated over them with tales of how much better I felt on arriving in Washington than they did because I had not had to drive the New Jersey Turnpike.

When drivers tried to elicit my tears with tales of their machines suffering expensive agonies in automobile hospitals, I gave them the stony stare of the reformed sinner and urged them to be born again without wheels.

When drivers neglected to complain about the unspeakable costs of car insurance, parking, oil changes, tire replacement and front-end alignments, I subtly raised the subject myself by inviting them to inspect the Rembrandt I had just purchased with money saved by not driving.

When they coughed, I never failed to warn them of the damage their car fumes was doing to their internal organs. When they discussed the marvellous driving vacations they were planning on the Jersey Shore, I was ready with the latest accident statistics to spoil their pleasure with evidence that they were risking maiming and death.

When the price of gasoline was being raised to $1 a gallon with the aid of the early summer filling station lines, I sought out the longest lines I could find and strolled from car to car smiling the smile of the righteous man. "Thank heaven," that smile said, "there is still one wise person left on this vast continent of fools."

And what had become of patriotism? Was I the last American faithful enough to resist the craven impulse to sell out the dollar for a mess of oilage? In restaurants, I began making a fuss about being seated in rooms that admitted drivers. When I invited people to my house for dinner, I requested that they please not drive.

In short, the habit had been thoroughly conquered when, two weeks ago, my Rustmobile was returned to me in a vacation resort where I was writing letters to the local paper complaining about automobiles spoiling the local bucolic charm. I let it sit there 10 days or more cooling off after it's heroic journey.

It is an ancient guzzler with 117,000 miles behind it. I was pained to see that its windshield had cracked in two places and that its famous rust had begun taking residence on the dashboard. It had once been, after all, almost a member of the family. One owed it something.

Ah well, what harm could it do? The habit had been conquered now. It couldn't hurt to take it for a short spin across the moors, as in the old days. I slid behind the wheel. The gasoline gauge read "empty," but it started.

We headed for the gasoline station, the Rustmobile and I. "$5 worth" I told the attendant. He squeezed the pump handle a few seconds, then took the money. We now had slightly more than four gallons of gasoline. The Rustmobile's tank capacity is 25 gallons.

At this point both the Rustmobile and I realized that to restore the spirit of the good old days with a brimming tank would cost $27. We poked along for about two miles and bought some fresh corn, but the sensation of hemorrhaging money was spoiling the day, and we went home. When I slammed the door, the Rustmobile wept a few rust chips. I think it suspects I've been cured for good.

Vehicle warranty growth forecast

EDMONTON (CP) — With car owners keeping and financing their vehicles for longer periods, demand for extended auto warranty policies will increase, predicts John M. McNeil, president of International Warranty Company Limited.

"By 1985 the extended warranty business will be a $100-million industry," the head of the Edmonton-based nation-wide warranty company predicted in a recent interview.

McNeil estimated warranty companies now gross between $30 and $40 million a year in Canada and will reach the $100 million level by the mid-1980s — based on current growth of about 15 per cent a year.

Part of that growth relates to the fact that the new cars are more expensive ($7,000 average) and that owners keep them longer — 27 months compared with 23 months three years ago.

International warranty is a privately-held company and does not release sales figures. But McNeil estimated his company, with 170,000 contracts on its books, does as much business as the combined total of its two closet competitors, General Motors and Ford, who now run their own extended warranty programs. His claim is not disputed by auto industry officials.

The company's lead is based largely on the jump it got on its competition, starting in early 1970s.

About 10 years earlier, major North American auto manufacturers offered factory-sponsored warranties guaranteeing specified repairs on their products for up to five years or 50,000 miles. By the late 1960s, the manufacturers had shrunk the duration and mileage on their basic warranty to 12 months or 12,000 miles (now 20,000 kilometres).

This opened a vacuum which was first filled in the U.S. where companies not affiliated with the auto manufacturers began to sell extended warranty packages lasting longer than the basic factory guarantees.

A former Edmonton advertising man, McNeil and a group of associates got International Warranty seriously launched into the extended warranty field and over the next two years spent somet $1.5 million researching and laying the foundations for a national marketing network.

The result today is that the company offers its extended warranty packages through 820 new car dealerships in all 10 provinces. In addition to a head office staff of 37 in Edmonton, International has administrative offices in Toronto and Montreal and a total of 108 employees.

The new car warranties, costing the buyer approximately $190 each, cover specified repairs for 36 months from the purchase or 60,000 kilometres, whichever comes first.

Car and truck (up to one ton) owners faced with repairs during the period covered by the extended warranty are required to pay a $25 deductible on the work done. The rest, including necessary parts, is covered by International once the dealer has contacted the company received and approval via a toll-free number hooked up to the company's computers on Edmonton.

The company is also offering a used car extended guarantee of 12 months or 20,000 kilometres on used cars sold by participating new car dealerships.

The fact that the major auto manufacturers are providing their own extended guarantees is to some extent a measure of International's success.

Ford introduced a three-year or 60,000 kilometre package in 1977 when it also started providing extended warranties on cars sold through participating dealers. GM started offering a similar optional extended new car warranty, starting with the 1979 model year. A GM used car warranty is available through its subsidiary, Motor Insurance Corp.

Labatt president on open leave

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Donald McDougall, president of Labatt Breweries of Canada, has been granted an indefinite leave of absence, the company announced.

A press release said McDougall, 41, asked for the leave of absence. He was not available for comment.

Wally Read, a senior vice-president and director of Labatt, has taken over brewing operations, the release said.

Business briefs

Ranger discoveries announced

EDMONTON (CP) — Ranger Oil (Canada) Ltd. has announced the discovery of two natural gas formations in the West Pembina field.

The discoveries, in the Cadomin and Shunda formations, are located above the deeper formations which have been the prime target in earlier exploration, Ranger said.

Daily gas flow from the Shunda well has been placed at 260,000 cubic metres while a test of the Cadomin well showed a rate of flow of 25,600 cubic metres of gas and 26.4 cubic metres of condensate.

Newsprint demand grows

MONTREAL (CP) — World demand for newsprint rose to 23.6 million metric tons in 1978, an increase of one million metric tons, or 4.6 per cent over 1977 levels, the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association has reported.

The United States accounted for 9.8 million metric tons, roughly 41 per cent of the world's total requirement for newsprint. Japan ranked second, demanding 10 per cent of the total, while the countries of Western Europe together accounted for 22 per cent of world demand.

Canada was the largest producer of newsprint in 1978, accounting for 8.8 million metric tons, roughly 37 per cent of the world total. The U.S. ranked second and Japan third.

Heavy crude controls end

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has signed an executive order which ends federal price controls on heavy crude oil and asked Congress to exempt it from his windfall profits tax.

Price of the tar-like oil, found primarily in California, will jump from its current regulated average of $6 a barrel to the world level of $18 a barrel.

The heavy oil, drawn from the earth using steam under pressure, is extremely expensive for oil companies to produce. While it comprises a small percentage of the current domestic supply, higher prices resulting from decontrol could increase supplies.

Air Oregon orders DASH 7s

TORONTO (CP) — Air Oregon of Portland has placed orders for two de Havilland DASH 7 airliners and has taken an option on a third, de Havilland has announced.

Delivery date for Air Oregon's first DASH 7 is January, 1980. The company's second delivery is scheduled for December of the same year.

Air Oregon's DASH 7s will serve communities in Oregon, Idaho, Washington, northern California and Nevada. The aircraft will be used on scheduled service with possible weekend charter use to major resorts in the northwest United States.

$65-million proposal discussed

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP) — The Energy Resources Conservation Board will hold a public hearing here early next month into a proposal by Esso Resources Ltd. to build a $65-million gas-separation plant.

The plant is proposed for a site south of this community, about 80 kilometres west of Red Deer.

Ryan Reimond of the ERCB said the board has received only one objection to the gas plant from residents of the area but that was enought to require a formal hearing into the application.

Company reports

Royal Bank

The Royal Bank of Canada reports an after-tax balance of revenue for the nine months ended July 31 of $186.6 million, or $5.10 a share, up 18 per cent from the same period a year earlier. Assets on July 31 were $49.7 billion, an increase of 28 per cent from the corresponding date in 1978. Third-quarter after-tax balance of revenue was up four per cent at $56 million, or $1.53 a share, compared with $53.6 million, or $1.47 a share, in the third quarter last year.

Hudson's Bay

TORONTO (CP) — Hudson's Bay Co., which acquired Simpsons Ltd. this year in a major takeover battle, has reported higher profits for the first half of this year but the common shareholder won't share in it.

The company had profits — before extraordinary items — of $7,036,000 or seven cents a share. This compared with a pre-extraordinary items profit for the same six months in 1978 of $4,354,000 or 31 cents a share.

The drastic drop in common share prices this year came because the company paid dividends on preferred shares. It did not have any preferred share dividend payouts last year.

Hudson's Bay had an extraordinary item this year of $8,107,000 from the partial conversion of six-per-cent convertible debentures, giving it a total profit of $15,143,000.

The acquisition of Simpsons and Montreal-based Zellers Ltd. helped push up profits in the retail, wholesale and fur divisions of the company. But the company said profits in this area were below expectations, primarily because of high inventories.

"Finance costs were greater than anticipated because of the sharp increase in short-term interest rates and higher-than-planned inventory level," a statement to shareholders said.

Donald McGiverin, president, said sales should continue strong through the third quarter and "with inventory levels coming into line, a strong earnings performance will be achieved for the year."

Price boost by U.S. Steel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the largest U.S. steel producer, today announced price increases on several products used mainly in industry. The move follows similar increases by second-ranked Bethlehem Steel Corp.

U.S. Steel said the increases will become effective Oct. 1. They vary by product, but average about 1.3 per cent on the company's total steel mill products.

The company did not disclose specific price changes and did not say whether they involved only base prices or included extra charges. The products involved are carbon, high strength, alloy and stainless steel plates; carbon and high strength structurals, rods, wire and railroad wheels and axles.

On Aug. 20, Bethlehem said it would increase prices on structural shapes, piling, carbon plates, carbon wire rods and carbon steel wire. That increase, also effective Oct. 1, averages less than 1½ per cent across Bethlehem's steel product line.

"Cost pressures are the reason for the hikes," a U.S. Steel spokesman said. "We are having heavy cost pressures in energy, labor, and purchased goods and services of all kinds."

On Aug. 16, U.S. Steel raised prices effective Sept. 24 on tin mill products about six per cent. Tin mill products are used mainly in containers and cans.

In June, U.S. Steel raised prices on a variety of products — including sheet and strip, rail, wheels and axles, tubing and pipe — by 3.5 per cent when averaged across the company's steel product line.

But the company was forced to scale back those increases when other producers posted smaller increases.

River plan delay angers residents

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delays in a promised management plan to save the Shuswap-Thompson River Basin are leaving Kamloops residents fed up and frustrated as they watch a once jade-green river foul and darken, a spokesman says.

"The river's still a deep chocolate brown, with green algae, pads of foam and greasy slicks on the surface while all the governments will do is study it to death," John Carter, chairman of the Thompson River committee, said in an interview.

The latest study of the river, a $60,000 federal-provincial pre-planning agreement, is only a small move toward the promised over-all study, said Carter.

The study, signed by then federal environment minister Len Marchand, and B.C. environment minister Rafe Mair shortly before the May 10 provincial election, is designed to re-evaluate existing data on the water resources of the Thompson River Basin, recommend immediate action and discuss the possibility of a longer term planning study.

"We thought it was probably a little election ploy," said Carter. "It's no secret that Mair hasn't been enthusiastic about a management plan for the river from the start."

A former aid to Marchand said Friday that the political value of the agreement was obvious. He added that Mair wasn't very enthusiastic about the study, but agreed as long the province wouldn't have to get too involved.

Edward Fox dead at 66

Edward Ferrand (Ted) Fox of Duncan, and formerly of Victoria, died Monday at age 66 in Cowichan District Hospital.

The former Duncan alderman was born in Victoria in March, 1913, the son of Percy Fox, a prominent architect, and he was the younger brother of Les Fox, who became managing editor of the Victoria Times.

Ted Fox was educated at Sir James Douglas Elementary and Victoria High School. He went to work in the newsroom of the Colonist in the early 1930s, later moving over to the Times.

In 1935 he married the former Joyce Adams, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Adams.

In 1941 he joined the Canadian Navy and was based in Halifax and in Newfoundland.

After the war he joined the B.C. Electric (which became B.C. Hydro) and was transferred to Vancouver. He later joined Seagrams in Vancouver.

Through Seagrams he became active in centennial committees, serving in Montreal during Canada's centennial year, 1967.

Upon retirement he returned to Duncan.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters: Wendy, Mrs. David Reed of Duncan; and Judy, Mrs. George Puil of Vancouver.

Gov't 'nothing to hide'

Assistant Deputy Highways Minister Tom Johnston said today he sees no reason not to attend a public meeting with residents who live near the planned McKenzie Avenue extension.

"We have nothing to hide," Johnston said.

He said he has not been contacted by Saanich Ald. Fred Severson, who announced Friday he is setting up an information meeting.

Johnston has no further comment until he hears from Severson.

Severson said Friday he wants the assistant deputy minister and his planners to "thrash it out" with Garden City Homeowners Association and other groups inhappy with the route of the four-lane extension, which will link Pat Bay and Trans-Canada highways.

But George Van't Haaff, a spokesman for the homeowners' group, said today he has not been contacted by Severson.

Van't Haaff said residents are pushing ahead with their own plans to oppose the extension route, regardless of any last-minute efforts by Saanich council members to resolve the problem.

Office project first

A $1.5 million, two-storey office building is the first development to take place in Saanich's commercial core behind Town and Country shopping centre.

Construction of the office building at 3524 Blanshard is expected to start next week, a spokesman for the municipal engineers department said today.

Owner Sarjeet Jahal said his company, ASJ Developments, is doing the construction.

Jahal said the building will contain approximately 22,000 square feet of office space when completed early next year.

Architects are the Victoria firm of Orme and Levinson.

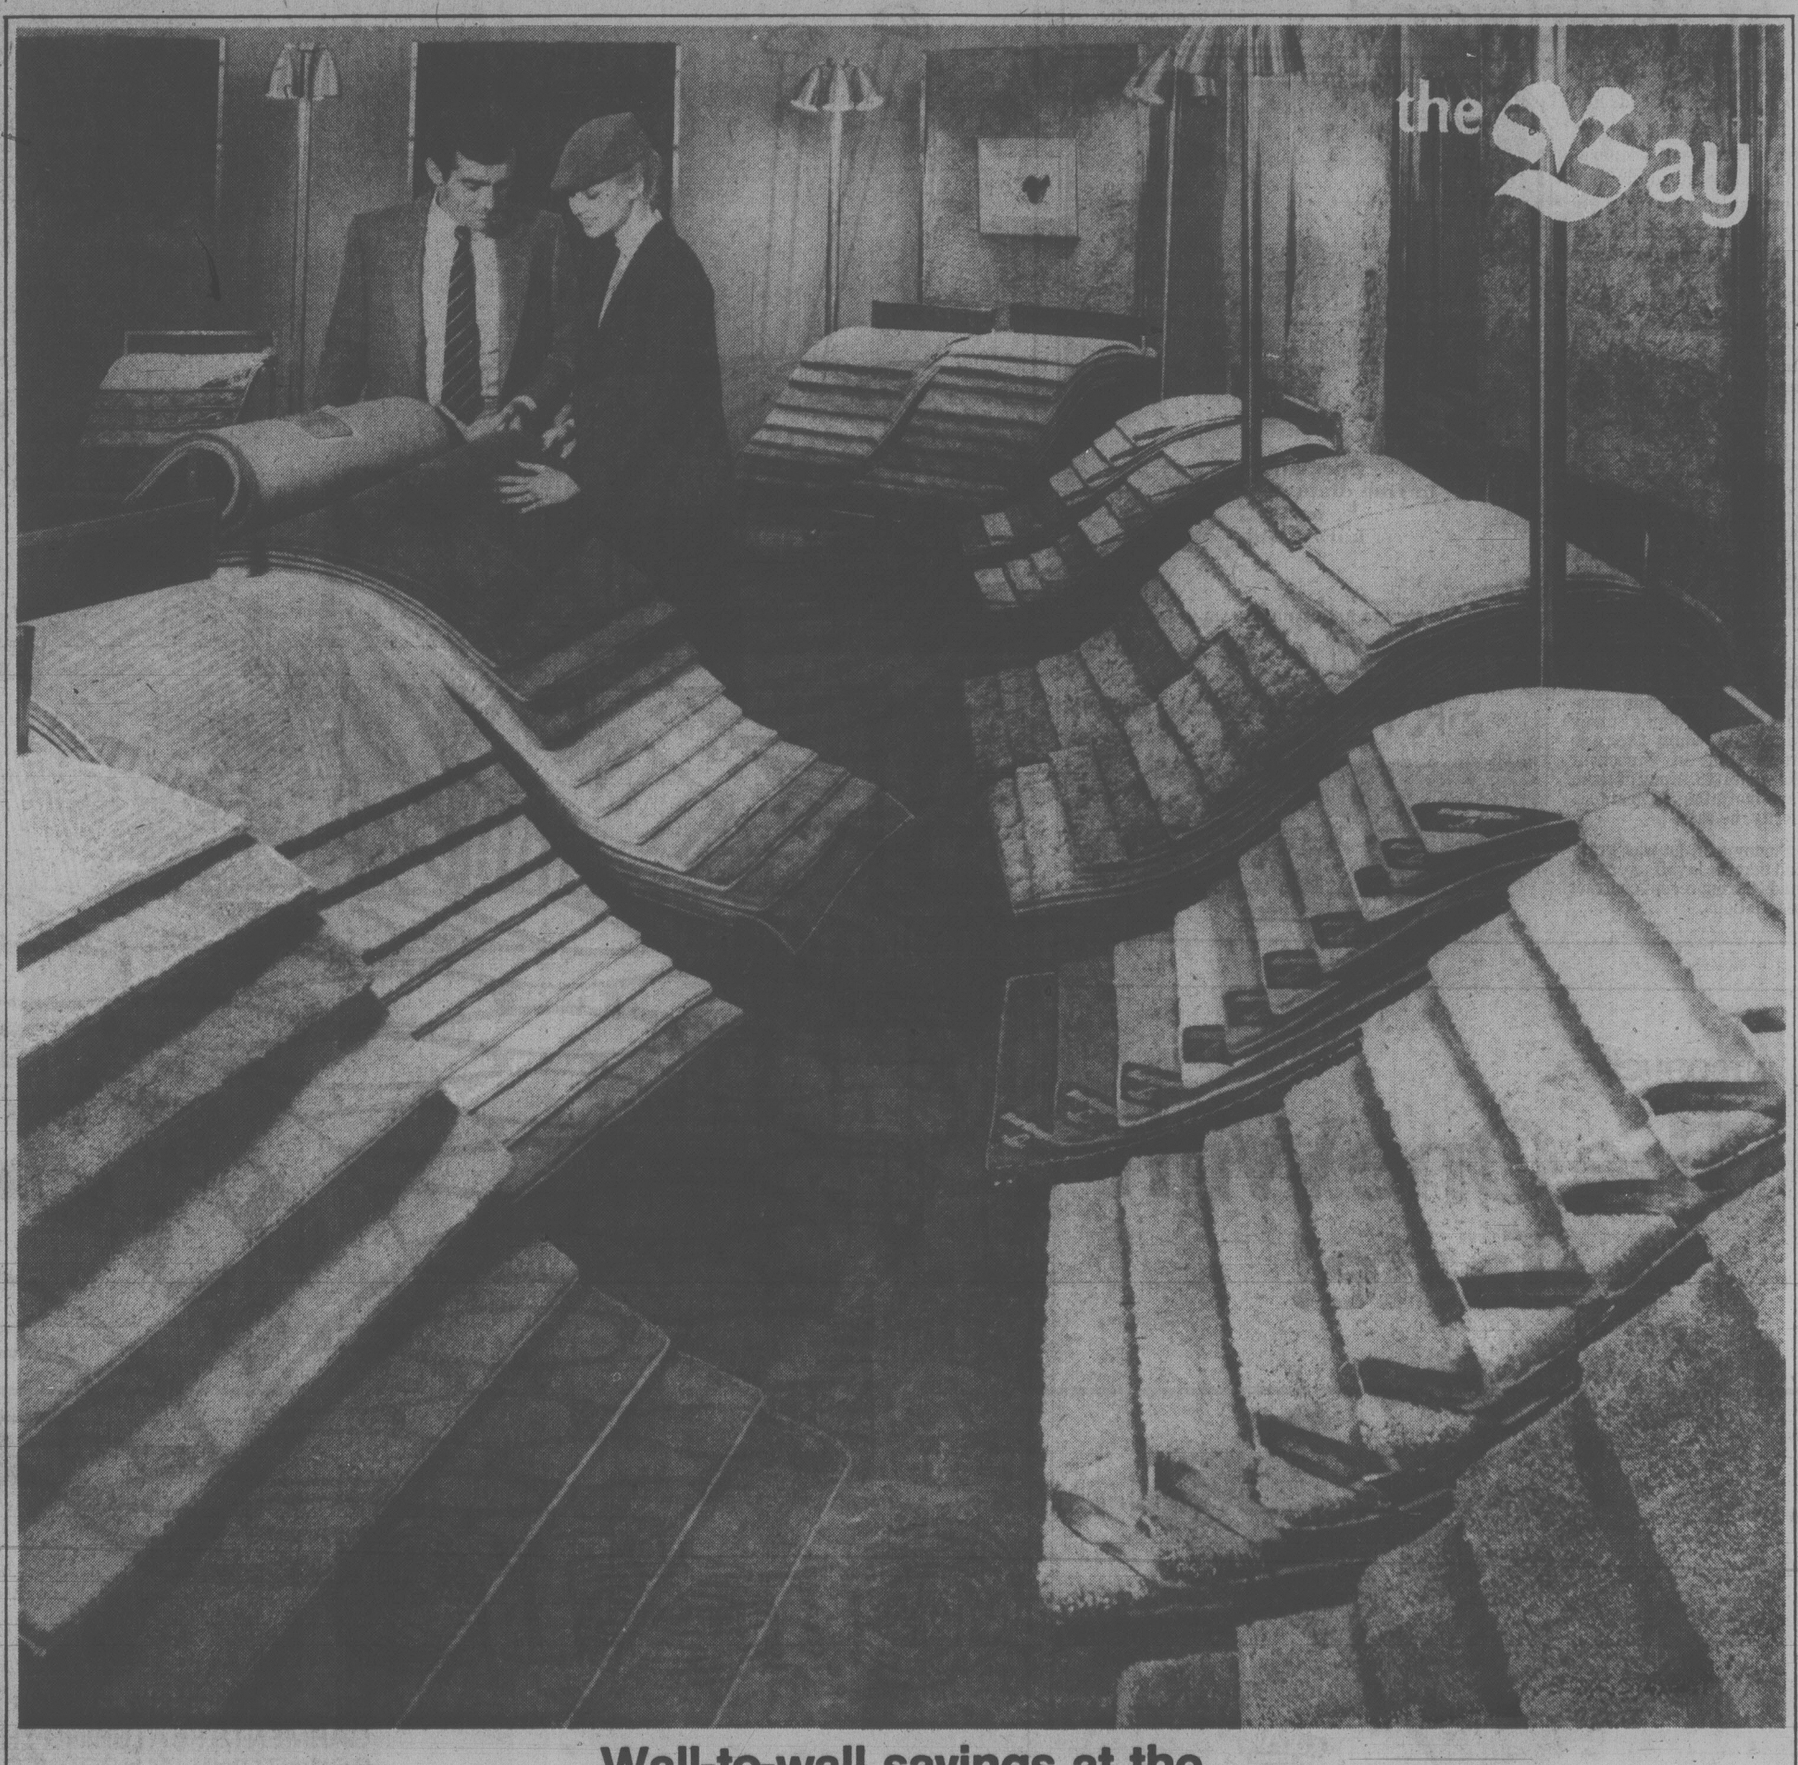

Work is also slated to start soon on phase one of the three-storey Rotherham Place office development at Pandora and Blanshard.

The project has been some six years in the planning and development stage.

Pine mushroom pickers can earn up to $200 daily

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A resident says people can earn up to $200 a day by picking a locally-available mushroom, largely ignored by Canadian food markets, but considered a delicacy in Japan.

Carol Rogier said in a recent interview here that she will pay between $3 and $4 a pound for pine mushrooms, the season for which begins in a few weeks.

The mushroom, called Matsutake in Japan where it sells for $30 a pound, appears for about two months following the first fall rain or until the first heavy frost.

Rogier said the pine mushroom is found under pine trees throughout B.C.'s forests.

She said it is important she receive the mushroom hours after it appears because the produce must reach its market within 60 hours.

The mushrooms are shipped by air to Japan through Vancouver.

One Langley family, she said, earned $18,200 last year picking the lucrative mushrooms.

Rogier stressed care must be taken in identifying the pine mushroom. It is white with a cinnamon-colored cap, measuring up to 25 centimetres in diameter. The flesh is firm and has a spicy pine odor.

She said they should be picked whole, including the bulbous portion underground. Dirt and worms should be removed and wormy specimens discarded to avoid infesting the entire harvest.

Bank of Commerce closes 3 branches

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce has closed its Cordova Bay and two other branches due to insufficient profits, leaving local residents angry and disillusioned over banks in general.

Cordova Bay residents have access to banking facilities in Victoria but the people of Alert Bay and Sayward have no nearby bank service.

"These branches are no longer viable operations so we closed them and that's all there is to it," Gordon Lewis, bank vice-president said in an interview.

The bank had given local residents one month's notice of closure.

"The gesture was not in good taste, rather it was rude and disgusting," said Giblert Popovich, Alert Bay mayor. "There simply wasn't enough time to get another chartered bank into town."

Alert Bay, a community of 1,600 located off the north coast of Vancouver Island, is hardest hit by the closures. The nearest chartered bank is in Port McNeill, a 16-kilometre ferry trip away, and given the infrequent return runs, the entire trip amounts to half a day.

The island community has credit union but services are limited.

The Alert Bay Credit Union has no vault or safety deposit boxes. It also is not licensed by the federal government and so cannot offer government-guaranteed loans.

Sayward's 380 residents face a 62-kilometre journey to the nearest chartered bank at Campbell River on northeastern Vancouver Island.

"A lot of people are angry here," said one Sayward businessman. "The notice given us was inconsiderate and irresponsible."

But Lewis said one month's notice was normal.

"We didn't want to run the risk of losing staff before we could wind down the operations."

The employees of the branches, he said, have been offered jobs at other locations.

Vauxhall loss

LONDON (Reuter) — Vauxhall, British subsidiary of General Motors, announced Wednesday a $4.5-million loss in the first half of this year.

Job freeze at Weldwood

SURREY (CP) — Weldwood of Canada Ltd. has placed a hiring freeze throughout its B.C operations until all employees being laid off at its T-Ply plywood plant at this Lower Mainland community have an opportunity to find new jobs.

The company told the International Woodworkers of America that 103 full-time employees and 37 part-time staff will be laid off Friday "for economic reasons," said Gerry Stoney, union local 1-357 president.

Stoney said Monday that Weldwood said a poor market for specialty and sheathing plywood produced at the plant caused the layoff. He said Weldwood agreed to a union request for the hiring freeze.

Stoney said he was especially concerned that jobs be found for workers who transferred to the 450-man Surrey operation when the Ash Street plant in Vancouver closed in 1978. Many of them have more that 20 years seniority, he said.

Stoney said he was gratified that the layoffs were not made during recent contract negotiations.

Barrett up to keep us unravished

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Barrett says he will remain as leader of the New Democratic Party to stop the Social Credit government from "ravishing" the province.

The 48-year-old Barrett, who had earlier fanned speculation that he might step down, was re-elected by acclamation to his 11th one-year term as party leader. He has been a member of the B.C. legislature since 1960.

In a swinging attack reminiscent of the fiery Barrett of old, the NDP leader accused the Social Credit government of selling off B.C.'s resources, having no policies for the future and of creating an energy crunch to promote nuclear power.

"It is the policy, it is the philosophy, it is the practice of the Social Credit party in terms of resources to turn B.C. into one big used-car lot and sell off everything you can and get rid of it in a hurry," he said.

Barrett told the 770 delegates attending the party's annual three-day convention here that the inability of the government to develop a philosophy that has some thought of future generations, angered him and was one of the reasons he was staying on.

He said the Social Credit government will not confine itself "to selling out our energy resources but will be developing policies that will create the vacuum of our energy needs that will allow them to go ahead with nuclear power."

"I say no to that, and I am determined to stay, I am determined to fight and I am determined to defeat Social Credit to stop them from ravishing this province."

Barrett also took a swing at one of his favorite targets — the multi-national oil companies.

He called for more control over the oil companies because "if there was ever a group that needed to be kicked around in its gushers it is those oil companies who have been bleeding the people of this province and this country."

"We have the scandalous situation of a federal government endorsing the private concepts of development, uncontrolled development and massive profits by the oil companies out of old gas and old oil, just by lifting the caps off already existing wells and allowing them to flow into high and increasing profits."

He called it a scandalous gouging of energy needs, "and now we have a federal government with the meek and mild compliance of timid Alberta and timid British Columbia saying let's dismantle Petro-Can — a company that this country needs."

Barrett also sounded the rallying cry for the next provincial election, saying he is determined to organize in every corner of the province.

"We have matured, we have learned and we are now ready for new plateaus of leadership in the province."

Federal NDP leader Ed Broadbent said everybody in the party assumed Barrett would be staying on as party leader.

"After all, when you make a spectacular increase in popular votes as the NDP did in the recent provincial election and a significant increase in the number of seats, one would on those grounds alone hardly turn around and look for another leader," Broadbent said in an interview.

"So it was simply a question of whether Dave himself wanted to leave for any particular reason."

B.C. NDP re-elects president

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gerry Stoney, International Woodworkers of America Local 1-357 head, has been re-elected to a second one-year term as president of the New Democratic Party in British Columbia.

Stoney received 652 votes to 99 for his rival Jim Foord, who ran on a platform of more grass roots control of the party.

Other officers are Sandy Banister, first vice-president, Joy Langan, second vice-president, Dave Stupich (Nanaimo MLA), third vice-president, Jim McKenzie, fourth vice-president, and Roger Howard, treasurer.

Francophone rights policy goal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The New Democratic Party has agreed to set up an official Francophone committee to study and recommend official policies concerning the rights and needs of French-speaking people in British Columbia.

The 770 delegates attending the party's annual three-day convention here did not have time, however, to approve a second resolution acknowledging that French-speaking people have the right to education in their own language.

The two resolutions had been approved during panel discussions earlier in the day.

The party's education policy sub-committee, in proposing establishment of the Francophone committee, noted that the Social Credit government has been planning to implement a French curriculum this year.

"The B.C. Social Credit government has never made a decisive gesture in the direction of legal recognition of its own French-speaking minority," the committee said. "By contrast, the Ontario NDP has taken a position in advance of other political parties in the same province.

"The same was true in Manitoba where the NDP went so far as to promulgate a school ordinance which recognized as a matter of fact the important right of francophones to be educated in their own language."

The party also strongly condemned members of the B.C. Human Rights Commission for what it said was "their blatant demonstration of their inability either to understand or to promote human rights in B.C."

The NDP urged Labor Minister Allan Williams to rescind all instructions which it said prevent the human rights officers from carrying out their duties under the Human Rights Act, particularly those related to age, race or sex.

Delegates called on the party to press for a strengthening of the Human Rights Act to prohibit discrimination against gay people, and on the next NDP government to protect workers and students against sexual intimidation or coercion.

They also agreed to a study on problems faced by older women such as pensions, matrimonial property law, medical care, employment, counselling, housing and ethnic isolation.

Boat show draws crowd

Hundreds jammed the Inner Harbor on the weekend to see some 140 craft taking part in the second annual Classic Boat Festival. (See picture on page 27).

Sheju, built in Victoria and owned by Skip McAllister whose family has had her for 45 years, was judged the best power boat.

Scot Brian's Skaggrak of Seattle, a Block Island Cowhorn, was the best sail boat.

The award for oldest sail boat in the festival went to Angus Matthews's Dorothy of Victoria. She was built in 1897.

Two power boats, both built in 1911, were tied for oldest power boat honors. They were Col. Colin Ferrie's Rhinegold of Vancouver and Gene Spargo's Lawana of Tacoma.

The award for best open power boat went to Bob Davidson's 16-foot Chris Craft from Vancouver, built in 1939. The prize for best open sail boat was won by Ted Knowles' replica of a Pelagic seal boat, which had been designed from memory by local veteran boat-builder and designer Frank Fredette.

An honorary plaque also went to the navy's ketch, HMCS Oriole, for the part she played in the regatta, acting as saluting base for the sail-past on Sunday.

An honorary plaque also went to Herb Cleaver's Marian II of Seattle. Cleaver heads the Seattle division of the Classic Yacht Association and had been instrumental in promoting U.S. entries in the festival.

Nancy Thornton-Trump of Victoria won the girls' division of the rowing race Saturday. Top boy rower was Tommy Brown of Seattle.

Rotating or what?

City electricians met today to decide whether to engage in rotating strikes or a full-scale walkout.

The 15 civic employees are in a legal position to walk out at any time.

Their picket line could create severe disruptions because other civic workers who are members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have announced they will not cross it.

Fewer registered

An estimated 22,600 students went back to classes in the Greater Victoria school district today, about 1,000 fewer than were registered in the district's schools last year and almost 10,000 fewer than in 1970.

And education ministry projections indicate that the 1988 enrolment in the Greater Victoria district will be down to around 18,000.

Despite the dwindling school populations, however, a Statistics Canada report released in Ottawa Friday indicates there will be more teaching graduates from Canadian colleges and universities this year.

Bill Stavdal, Greater Victoria school district's community relations coordinator, said the actual enrolment for this school year won't be known until Sept. 30, when such things as double registrations, students who fail to show up and other matters that confuse the figures are sorted out.

In the Saanich school district, total enrolment is expected to be around the 6,000 mark, while in Sooke district, the total is projected at 7,600.

Heading for hospital? This book may help

By PAUL MINVIELLE
Times Staff

The Patient's Book is not exactly a blueprint for hospital patient power.

But if readership of the 20-page booklet is wide enough, people entering hospital in the future might show an increased awareness of their rights and their responsibility to themselves to monitor their own health care.

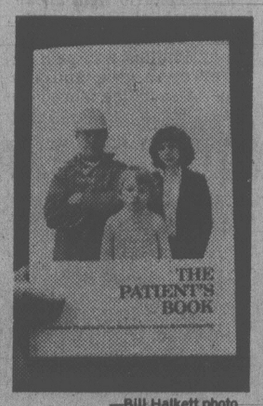

"I get so angry with people when they just sign the form without so much as reading it," said a nurse recently.

She was expressing concern about the myriad people who present themselves at hospitals and sign medical authorization forms without the faintest idea what the documents mean.

Once signed, the form gives hospital staff blanket permission to carry out any examinations, procedures, treatments, and operations as may be ordered by the doctor in attendance.

Prepared by the patients' rights committee of the Social Planning and Review Council of B.C. (SPARC), the project was bankrolled by the Neighborhood Services Association of Greater Vancouver through the Alexandra Foundation.

SPARC spokesman Patty Johnston said the booklet tells members of the public before they become hospital patients what their rights will be once they are admitted.

Johnston said the response to patients' questions by hospital staff can go two ways—a resentful "what do you want to know for?" or a genuine desire to get more meaningful feedback from the patient to assist in the ultimate cure.

The booklet encourages anyone faced with medical treatment to do his or her utmost to understand the disease or health problem before being hospitalized and to determine in advance what risks are involved in the treatment.

It urges patients to keep track of who gives treatments — doctors, specialists, residents, interns, nurses and to write down what disease is involved and what the symptoms are.

Patients, the booklet says, should find out what the treatment is, the inherent risks of such treatment, possible side effects and possible alternative treatments.

In the section on medical records, mention is made of the strict confidentiality of hospital records. Hospital authorities can show the patient his or her medical records.

However, they do not have to show them.

"Many hospitals follow a policy of withholding your record from you," the booklet states.

"The authors of this guide hope that eventually in B.C., patients will be guaranteed access to their medical records."

The booklet also points out that on occasion, patients will also be asked questions about work, financial status, length of residence in B.C. and religious preference.

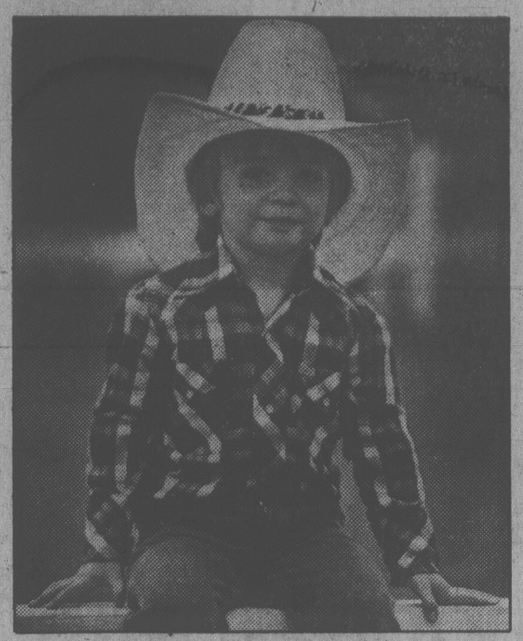

The authors say patients don't have to answer any questions they feel aren't relevant to their treatment but warn that the hospital can refuse to admit patients if it feels the information they want is necessary for successful treatment.

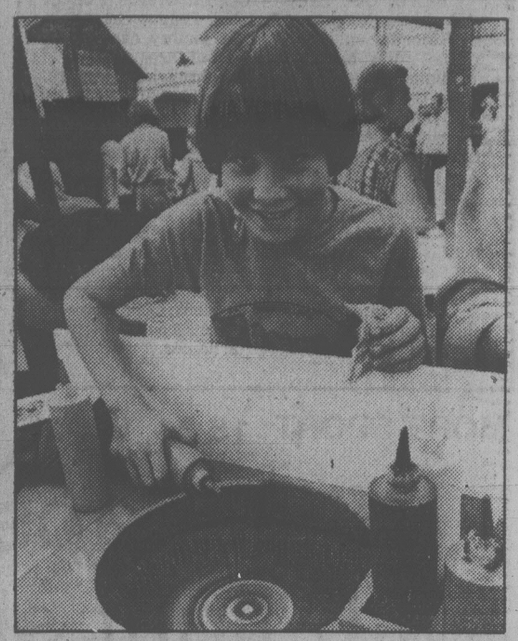

The consent form a patient is asked to sign on admittance isn't a sacred document either. Should you wish to change part of it, you can, and many forms now have enough space in which to write in changes.

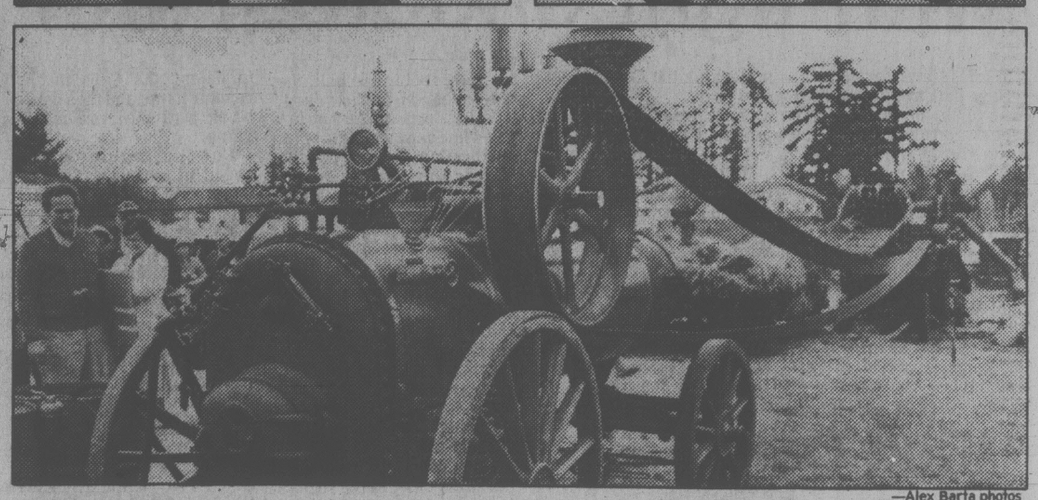

Parental rights and responsibilities in giving consent for treatment, participating in research and experimental programs, the typical operating procedures of the average hospital, emergency care and who to complain to in and out of the hospital are all covered by the booklet.

It's available for $1 from SPARC of B.C., 109-2182 West 12th Ave., Vancouver, V6K 2N4. Associations or organizations can write for special bulk rates on the booklet.

SPARC is hoping for feedback to guide it in subsequent reprints, so the organization has enclosed a questionaire asking readers what portions were the most or the least useful, what additional information could be included in future and opinions on the booklet's style and format.

FAIR WEATHER was fleeting at the Saanichton Fall Fair on the weekend but there was enough sunshine to attract the usual crowd of youngsters like 2½-year-old Sean Peters of 7714 Wallace Dr. (top left), whose western garb got a bit damp in a shower, and Rebecca Howard of 749 Haliburton (top right), who has cash in hand for her turn at the spin painting booth. For the not-so-young, many of whom would remember steam-driven farm machinery, there was display of a steam-driven thresher (bottom photo).

TOWN TALK

Reunions of ex-servicemen are nothing special but one held here on the weekend for former officers and crew on the destroyer Cayuga featured an old salt everyone remembers, even three decades after they served together.

He is Fred Demara, a native of Massachusetts who was the ship's surgeon when the Cayuga served in the Korean war, until the navy found out he was no more qualified to practise medicine than the chief engineer.

Better known as "the great imposter" — a movie of the same title was made starring Tony Curtis — Demara had also played different roles at other times as a psychology professor, a Trappist monk, deputy prison warden, school teacher and zoologist.

Some of the crew got very close to Demara — he actually performed minor operations on them.

He was unmasked and deported to the U.S. when Dr. Jospeh Cyr of Edmundston, N.B. began asking questions about this other "doctor" in the navy who had taken his name.

Nowadays, Demara is a minister — legitimately.

It was work as usual today for longshoreman James W. Gibson of 224 Kingston in spite of the fact he was the only Canadian to hold a ticket on one of the three winners in the Irish Sweepstakes horse race at The Carragh near Dublin on Saturday.

Wilson, who was working at Cowichan Bay today and couldn't be reached to find out how he plans to spend his windfall, won $22,000 on Solo Venture, which finished third.

The fierce competition between once dominant Air West and challenger West Coast Air for the commuter dollar on the Victoria-Vancouver run has its silly side, too.

West Coast was originally licensed to serve the two cities and the Gulf Islands, and it must stop there whether or not passengers are waiting. Every time it applies to end this requirement Air West objects and the Canadian Transport Commission refuses to drop it.

So if you visit Pender Island, you'll witness the little charade a vacationing Town Talk spy saw one morning last week.

One after the other, two Twin Otters roared down the inlet and taxied up to Bedwell Harbor resort. The propellors still whirling, the co-pilot opened the door and dropped the stairs onto an old float moored some distance from shore.

He let the stairs just touch the boards and jerked the door back up again. Nobody got on or off and the plane took off in the direction of Victoria with a dozen businessmen probably wondering what was going on.

There's a Central Saanich farmer out on Mount Newton Crossroad who definitely does not like people trampling on his property without permission.

Visitors leaving the Saanichton fair on the weekend saw a prominent sign at the side of the road:

"Surviving trespassers will be prosecuted."

★ ★ ★

Kids attending the Saanich Fair in Saanichton over the holiday weekend discovered to their chagrin what inflation is all about.

Tickets for most midway rides were $1 a shot.

"We got several complaints about the prices," a Central Saanich police spokesman said. "But fair officials said there was nothing they could do."

Car chase crash leaves girl injured

A 14-year-old girl received face cuts and a back injury when a stolen car being chased by police crashed on the Trans Canada Highway in Colwood early today.

The girl was taken to Victoria General Hospital.

Her condition is not believed serious.

The five-kilometre chase began about 2 a.m. when Saanich police tried to stop a car opposite the Town and Country shopping centre.

Police said the car was driven off northbound on the highway and reached speeds of more than 130 km/h with both Colwood RCMP and Saanich police in pursuit.

Just north of Savory the car went out of control, flipped completely over and ended up in a ditch.

Police said the car, a 1974 Vega, was reported stolen overnight from in front of a house on Stanley Street in Victoria.

Weekend rains created near havoc conditions for motorists travelling on Sooke Road and the West Coast Road.

Sooke RCMP Sgt. Gerry Miller said today 13 accidents were reported between Friday and this morning.

While no one was seriously injured, police estimated total damage at nearly $24,000.

Another accident stalled traffic on the Trans Canada Highway near Goldstream for more than hour this morning when a truck carrying a carnival midway ride jack-knifed.

Colwood RCMP said driver Ronald McCauley, 20, of Surrey, lost control while rounding a curve shortly before 7 a.m.

The truck went into a ditch and then slewed across the road, blocking all three lanes of the highway.

A small fire broke out in the cab when the truck's gas tank ruptured but McCauley escaped unharmed.

Police said there was little damage to the truck and contents, owned by West Coast Amusements Ltd.

The equipment had been at the Saanichton Fair and was being taken to Duncan for the Cowichan Fair which opens Friday.

Meanwhile, an Oregon couple and their daughter are in hospital in Victoria today recovering from injuries received in a two-car head-on collision on the Trans Canada Highway near the Goldstream intersection Saturday.

Kay Worcester, 21, is in Victoria General and her parents, John and Kay Worcester, of Westlynn, Ore., are in Royal Jubilee, all with multiple injuries received in the 4:30 p.m. mishap.

The driver of the other car, Lorna Thraves, 17, of Nanaimo and a passenger, Robert Counts, 20, of Pomona, Mo. were treated at Royal Jubilee for minor cuts and bruises and later released.

Colwood RCMP said both vehicles were demolished. The total damage was estimated at $9,000.

Ask the Times

Q. Is "citizen's arrest" just another bit of television fiction? Would I be sued if I made such an arrest? J.C.

A. You can make a citizen's arrest if:

Someone is committing a relatively serious, or indictable, offence. You cannot act on second-hand information.

You have good reason to believe the person has committed a serious offence and is about to get away.

The police must be giving chase. It cannot be a crime several months or days old.

If you own property or are authorized by the owner to look after the property, you can arrest someone committing an indictable offence on, or relating to, the property. This usually applies to store detectives or security workers in buildings.

Anyone who makes a citizen's arrest must turn the person over to police at the first opportunity or risk a charge of unlawful confinement.

Chinatown in line for $1M facelift

A $1 million facelift for Chinatown was unveiled at city hall today.

Included in the 20-point plan are a massive Chinese arch over Fisgard Street at the entrance to Chinatown on Government Street, oriental-style street lights and the reopening and renovation of Fan Tan Alley.

The major item in the plan is a $700,000 long-term project to put all overhead electric and telephone wires underground.

Ald. Bob Wright, as chairman of Victoria's land use planning committee, took the spotlight with the report, as aldermen, press and observers from the Chinese community had Chinese tea and fortune cookies.

Because many of Chinatown's buildings are old and dilapidated and do not meet modern standards, the city will ask the province for a break on the fire and building codes so the heritage structures can be preserved.

Wright said Victoria wants the power to vary the strict codes within the inner city area. "This is the key to the whole plan," he said.

"Many building and fire code regulations work against the economic rehabilitation of heritage buildings in the inner city."

The most visible of the improvements proposed for Chinatown would be the "Gate of Harmonious Interest" arching over Fisgard, at a cost of $96,000.

A color sketch by city staff showed a large structure built on four red poles, covered by three green-tiled roofs with curving eaves.

Similarly-styled street lights "more intimate in scale" than the 30-foot high lamp standards now on Fisgard would also be added, at an expense to the city of $20,000.

A clean-up, paint-up plan for 24 heritage buildings in the area is one feature that would have an immediate impact.

Sidewalks would be replaced with decorative paving and the area would be planted with bamboo, Chinese pines and flowering cherry trees.

The city proposes to pay less than a third of the total cost of the redevelopment. Most of that is swallowed up by its one-third share in relocating wiring.

The Chinatown plan depends heavily on provincial government funding — a total of $592,000 from the province's heritage trust and Hydro.

Our salmon: a fast-vanishing resource

THERE WAS A TIME IN this season of the year when a sport fisherman couldn't troll a bucktail fly off any of the kelp beds south of Oyster River estuary without assault by coho salmon.

Success was as close to guaranteed as it ever is in the uncertain game of angling.

For old times' sake, I still occasionally trail a fly off those kelp pastures. My boat is a better craft than the rickety old flat-bottom I fished from in those earlier years. My tackle is a vast improvement over the cutty-hunk linen line, sleazy synthetic gut leader and primitive bucktails I then used.

But one thing is not better. That's the fishing. It has gone plumb to hell.

Even off tide-battered Cape Mudge, on one of the world's most renowned salmon grounds, the fishing is only an anaemic shadow of what it once was.

The reason for the change? None of us likes to face it.

We serve up comforting diagnoses to ourselves and to each other. We deal in reassuring fairy tales.

This year, we insist, the salmon are simply late getting down from the north or up from the south. Never fear . . . one of these days we'll head out into the straits and find a multitude of coho returned to their old haunts. It will be great day in the morning! We'll all catch our limits!

Dream on who will. The startling, tragic fact, dismally well-known to those realistic enough to face it, is that the coho and possibly the chinook (spring) salmon have joined the list of earth's threatened species.

They are going . . . going . . . almost gone. At this late date, I'm by no means sure it's possible even at the expenditure or more effort and money than we're likely to spend, to save those grievously diminished salmon runs.

This fact is known to the more thoughtful commercial trollermen, whose chief quarry are the coho and the chinook. Most of these trollers, threatened by the dwindling of a resource from which they draw their livelihood, have adopted a pragmatic, hard-boiled attitude.

They will fish while the salmon last. But Lord help their sons if they are so foolish as to embrace the fisherman's trade.

Sport fishermen by virtue of their vast numbers might prod a reluctant federal government into a real effort to save the salmon if they spoke with a concerted voice. Sadly, however, they are virtually unorganized. While their clubs and associations do speak out, they are too few to make an impression.

In effect, then, we are sitting on our hands while two species of Pacific salmon are reduced toward the point of no return.

Tardily, Ottawa has taken cognizance of the situation with something called a Salmonid Enhancement Program. Lacking proof to the contrary, I can only conclude from its singular lack of works that salmonid enhancement is largely a publicity placebo designed to lull an over-trustful public.

I am no soapbox prophet with a wonder-solution to a problem that grows more weighty year by year. I'm not even sure that solution exists: the decline of the salmon toward eventual extinction may be one of life's inevitabilities.

But this I do know:

Every creek busted cynically and with near-impunity by the logging industry or by land developers costs us hundreds, if not thousands, of nursery fish.

Two species of Pacific salmon are reduced toward the point of no return.

The overkill of young salmon in the nets of the herring fishery is a shocking drain on the resource.

Also, the day is past when the sport fisherman can expect to evade a licence fee and retain his fishing . . . always provided that the take from a licensing system goes directly into salmon conservation.

A final point: Washington State boasts 300-plus salmon rearing facilities. With the exception of a mere handful of hatcheries, British Columbia still, touchingly, pins her faith on continuing salmon runs on natural reproduction by wild fish.

If we want to save the salmon, its time we stopped kidding ourselves. Because at the rate we're going, they won't be with us much longer.

Central Oregon wins Northwest crown

BEND, Ore. (AP) — Central Oregon Phillies claimed the Northwest Baseball League championship Monday night with a 3-2 victory over Walla Walla Padres, claiming the best-of-three series 2-1.

Both teams went scoreless through six innings. In the top of the seventh, the Northern Division-winning Padres jumped ahead 2-0 on Doug Lulay's two-run single. But the Phils bounced back with three runs in the bottom half of the inning, highlighted by Al White's bases-loaded double that scored a pair of runs. The next batter, Julio Franco, singled to score Greg Linhart with the winning run.

Walla Walla won the series opener 8-2 Saturday but Central Oregon charged back when pitcher Wally Goff struck out 13 en route to an 8-5 triumph Sunday.

Herb Orensky and Al Sanchez each drove in three runs for the Phillies in the second game with Sanchez walloping a three-run homer.

A pause . . in a great era

It's the end of an era, a great one, that's certain, but it isn't the end-all as far as coach Harvey Stevenson of Victoria Budgets is concerned. It's just one of those disappointing things that happen in sport. And Stevenson already is looking ahead to 1980.

The Budgets were dethroned as Canadian men's fastball champions in St. John's, Nfld., Sunday after four years at the top.

The defeat came from the St. Catharines team of Ontario which won two games, 3-0 and 4-3. Earlier Budgets had defeated Ontario 1-0.

"It has to be disappointing", said Stevenson, "when you lose something you've had a long time and someone takes it away from you.

"Ontario played well," Stevenson continued. "They deserved to win. We had our chances. We had some line drives hit right at people. We had the runners on base in both final games. They did the job and we didn't."

As to the future, Stevenson said that pitcher Dave Ruthowsky and first baseman Bob Walton, both from Ontario, had remained in the East. "I don't think Dave will be back," he said. "Walton may be also doubtful."

Mark Smith of Halifax and Sonny Phillips of Fredericton, also remained in Eastern Canada but Stevenson expects both to return next year.

"Besides," Stevenson said, "Bob Burrows is back in town . . . and yes, I think we could find a uniform for him."

Burrows, who played for Budgets (nee Bates) for several years and was the club's power hitter, left this year to play in the Western Canada Major League with Edmonton.

"I think we had a good season," Stevenson continued. "That gold medal we got in the Pan-Am just has to be a highlight for the club and something you don't forget."

Stevenson admitted it had been a long season (105 games) but didn't think that was the problem in the Canadian final.

"Last year we only had two pitchers and a sore-armed Stan Kern. This year we had four pitchers ready and we couldn't do the job," he said. "Ontario used six pitchers and they shut us down when we needed the hits."

Stevenson said the Budgets, who lost a trip to the World championships in Seattle next July with the losss, would play St. Catharines here when they are en route to the World.

While Walton was named to the tournament all-star team, Stevenson said the biggest oversight was the fact that third-baseman John Green wasn't selected. "He just had a great series," said the Budget coach.

Utility player Ed Neudorf of Niagara Falls was the final day's hero for Ontario.

He came in as a pitcher with the bases full of Budgets in the sixth inning of the first game and Ontario leading 2-0 and wiggled out of the jam.

Neudorf also scored the winning run in both games. He doubled and later scored in the first inning of the first game and he tripled and scored on a wild pitch by Andy Konpacki in the seventh inning of the second to break a 3-3 tie.

In the second game, Green hit a towering home run to centre field with the Budgets trailing 3-1 in the sixth. That tied the score.

After Ontario went ahead in the top of the seventh, Gordie Fadden singled and Sonny Phillips was safe on an error to give Budgets hope. A sacrifice moved up the runners but Brad Rienquette preserved the win by getting Carl Walker and Walton on infield outs.

Whitecaps gain final with tight shootout win

Times News Services

They had already played close to 2½ hours of playoff soccer Saturday at East Rutherford, N.J., but for New York Cosmos it ended one second too soon.

Down three goals to two in the mini-game shootout — the Cosmos had earlier evened their North American Soccer League semi-final series with Vancouver Whitecaps by taking a 3-2 shootout decision in the regular game — Nelsi Morais was the last man capable of prolonging the Cosmos' season.

If he beat Vancouver goalie Phil Parkes, the shootout would continue.

If he was stopped, so was the Cosmos' two-year reign as NASL champions.

Morais took the ball, 35 yards out, knowing he had five seconds to put the ball behind Parkes. He moved in and Parkes came out to meet him.

The seconds ticked away. Morais moved around Parkes. By the time he put his right foot to the ball, the five seconds had expired. The ball was in the net but the Whitecaps were the team celebrating their date with Tampa Bay Rowdies at the Soccer Bowl next Sunday in East Rutherford.

At Tampa Bay, John Grnja proved a five-foot-four giant to Rowdies fans since his mini-game goal won them the American Conference championship. Rowdies beat San Diego Sockers 1-0 in the 30-minute mini-game Sunday night before 38,766 fans.

"I didn't feel down after we lost the first shootout," Parkes said. "I did exactly the same thing in the second shootout. I just tried to hold my ground and made the shooter commit himself first."

But both winners and losers agreed it was not the ideal way for a season to end.

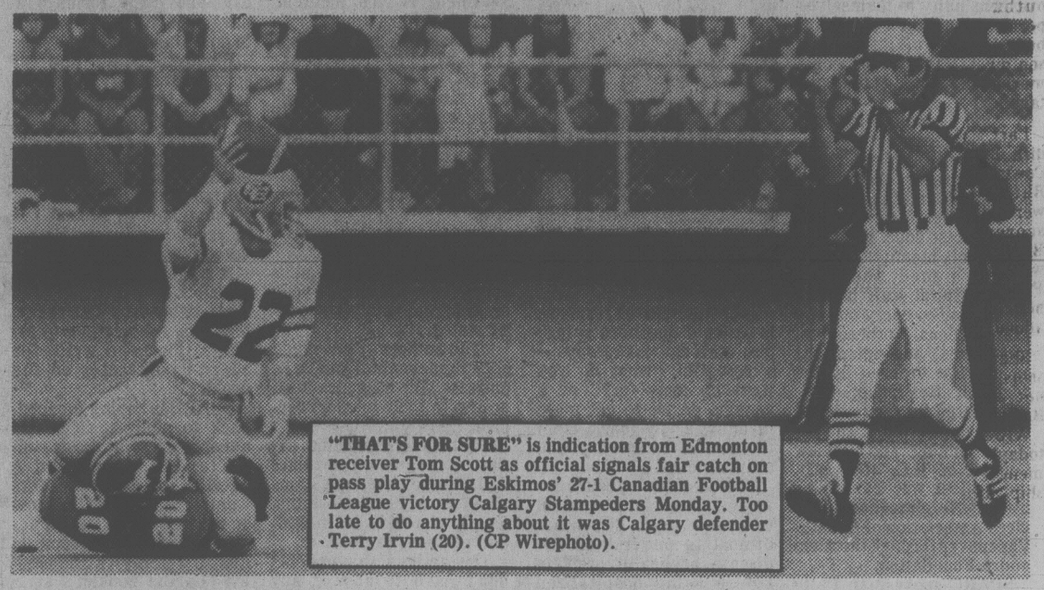

The North American Soccer League's bizarre playoff system required the Cosmos to defeat the Caps in the regular game and then come back and win the mini-game.

But the regular game ended in a 2-2 tie. The 15-minute overtime was scoreless. Then the Cosmos won the shootout, forcing the 30-minute mini-game.

The mini-game was scoreless forcing the shootout. And with the full complement of world-class names on both rosters the winning score came off the foot of Derek Possee.

"The Cosmos are a great team and they showed their stuff in the regulation game," said Whitecaps coach Tony Walters. "They had us hanging on, but we howed our character and came back in the mini-game.

"I don't like shootouts and I wonder if we shouldn't be going to Disneyland next week instead of the Soccer Bowl. Shootouts don't really show what happened in the game."

"THAT'S FOR SURE" is indication from Edmonton receiver Tom Scott as official signals fair catch on pass play during Eskimos' 27-1 Canadian Football League victory Calgary Stampeders Monday. Too late to do anything about it was Calgary defender Terry Irvin (20). (CP Wirephoto).

Tagge worry for Lions

By Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimos' 27-1 defeat of Calgary Stampeders in the teams' annual Labor Day Canadian Football League matchup meant first place in the Western Conference for the Edmonton Grey Cup champions as they moved ahead of the idle British Columbia Lions.

The Lions got another setback today when it was learned that quarterback Jerry Tagge was in hospital for tests on a knee injury and a possible infection in the knee area.

The Canadian Football League team's starting quarterback hurt his knee last week in an 18-17 win over Calgary Stampeders.

Rapp said he didn't know how serious the injury to Tagge might be but was hopeful Tagge would be ready for Sunday's game in Winnipeg.

Joa Paopao is the other B.C. quarterback.

Mike Nott, cut recently by Oakland Raiders of the National Football League, has been on a five-day trial.

The game at Calgary may have spelled the end of Calgary's hopes for a WFC pennant as the Stampeders' second straight loss dropped them into third place.

In other games Monday, this season's western whipping boy, Saskatchewan Roughriders, took it on the chin again from fourth-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers, going down 28-11 before a hometown crowd to remain winless in eight starts while Hamilton Tiger-Cats upset Ottawa Rough Riders, 16-9.

Division-leading Montreal Alouettes visit second-place Toronto Argonauts in tonight's only league game.

Calgary, missing star running back James Sykes and two veteran offensive linemen to injuries, scored its only points on a missed field goal by J. T. Hay in the second quarter.

Eskimo coach Hugh Campbell credited his front line and defensive secondary in the lopsided score.

"They (the line) took most of Calgary's concentration away," he said. "Our secondary is one of the most under-rated in the CFL."

Receive Waddell Smith caught a 15-yard touchdown pass from veteran Edmonton quarterback Tom Wilkinson and backup quarterback Jim Germany ran another one in from the one-yard line. Defensive back Greg Butler scored what proved to be the winning touchdown in the second quarter when he picked off a Hufnega pass at the Calgary 10-yard line and ran into the end zone.

Dave Cutler kicked a 56-yard field goal, two singles and three converts, and punter Hank Ilesic put one into the endzoe for a single point on a 63-yard punt.

Red Oaks feel Rocks granted unfair edge

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

The first ball hasn't been faced off yet in the 1979 Mann Cup national lacrosse final opening tonight at Memorial Arena and already there is disagreement.

The defending champion Peterborough Red Oaks feel the Shamrocks have secured an unfair advantage for the best-of-seven final by being granted three additional players while the the Red Oaks have been allowed only two replacements for players who couldn't come West.

The Shamrocks have been strengthened with Doug Hayes of Vancouver Burrards, Dan Wilson of Coquitlam Adanacs and Wayne Goss of the Salmonbellies.

Peterborough, who defeated the Rocks in seven games in last year's final at Peterborough, have been allowed two players, Tom Patrick of Brampton and Derek Keenan of Oshawa juniors, as replacements for regulars Steve Plunkett and Ken Henderson.

"It means we haven't got any additional help," said general manager Bob Delpellaro. "The Shamrocks get three extra players, the second, third and fourth-place scorers in the WLA while we are only allowed to replace players who couldn't come.

"We're not happy with it. I'm bitter. It was a close series last year. The teams were evenly matched. The Shamrocks are a strong club. And, with this decision, I feel the series is going to be a farce," he added.

Delpellaro said Peterborough didn't know until Thursday they could have the two replacements and by then the one player they wanted and might have gotten if they'd known earlier — Stan Cockerton of Brooklin — was unavailable. Cockerton, hero of Canada's World Cup win in England last year had already returned to school at the University of North Carolina.

Coach Ben Floyd of the Red Oaks echoed Delpellaro's feelings.

"The clubs were very close last year and, as the home floor has to be worth at least five goals to a club, this give the Shamrocks a big edge," he said.

Peterborough called on some its junior players in last year's final but can't this year as the Peterborough team is in the Minto Cup final in Calgary, Floyd explained.

Then Floyd added. "But we'll give it out best, and we hope to be able to provide an interesting series."

Coach Bill Munroe of the Shamrocks said the full effect of coaching a team in the Mann Cup final hadn't hit home to him yet.

"But we'll be ready, you can count on it," he said.

Neither coach expected any problems with differences in rule interpretations between East and West.

"The picks may be slightly different, but after a few times around the players will know what they can do and what they can't," Floyd said.

Bob Donald is the Eastern referee designated for the series. Mac Maude of Nanaimo is the spare goalkeeper for both teams.

Game time is 8 p.m.

Two collect record $3,212.40

It was a record-breaking day in more ways than one at Sandown Raceway, Monday.

More money — $158,845 — was wagered on harness racing than in any other single day at the track, and more money was returned to two fortunate punters in the first race than two people ever got here before for a $2 bet.

The record Exactor payoff for the 6-7 combination of Dorado Seelster, driven by Jim Gagnon and Chelsea Dominion, with Greg Tonkin in the sulky, was $3,212.40.

Only two winning tickets were sold and the happy winners were identified simply as C. Lowe and P. Scharf.

It was also a record for all harness racing in B.C.

The big payoff was set up when Mr.Bartender, one of the favorites, broke stride late in the race.

Otherwise the two longshots were the best of the others. Dorado Seelster went off at 18-1 and paid $37.70, $16.80 and $6.90 on the front end while Chelsea Dominion returned $22.30 and 11.30.

Only four tickets were sold on the reverse 7-6 combination.

Shyster Max, a bay gelding owned by G. Carlisle of Delta, and trained and driven by Carl Sibiga, captured the prestigious $6,500 B.C. Sires Stakes for three-year old colts and geldings, from a field of five.

Shyster Max scored his third victory of the season in 2:10.4 and returned $4.20, $2.60 and $2.30. Western Shadow was second and Invincible Strip, driven by Clarence Gagnon and which broke stride twice in the race finished third.

Elegant Star A, a nine-year old bay gelding owned and driven by John Hollingsworth of Richmond, took the preferred mile pace feature before the holiday crowd of 2,022, with Mitchs Butch second.

Keith Linton and Tonkin each drove two winners.

Linton scored with Bee Bee Brook ($13.70) in the third and Von Von ($11.40) in the fourth. Tonkin was in the seat for Mikes Dominion ($6.50) in the second and Doc The Dauber ($13.90) in the 10th.

Joe Hudon, who went into the day leading Linton in the driver's race came out barely ahead.

Hudon finished second twice with Antique Adios in the eighth and Alemite Quill in the 10th and that was enough to keep him ahead of Linton by the narowest of margins,

Carol inspires Canadian romp

MEXICO CITY (CP) — You knew it was going to be no contest from the time they walked out on the basketball floor.

There was Costa Rica at one end, most of its players hovering at the five-foot level. At the other end was Canada, most of the women approaching six feet.

By game's end, the slaughter was complete and the Canadian women's basketball team had handed Costa Rica a humiliating 122-18 defeat at the University Student Games.

Even with a complete substitution of Canada's starting five, the points kept piling up in Canada's favor.

Veteran Carol Turney Loos of Victoria emerged as the game's top scorer with 22 points, while Dori McPhail of Brandon added 16.

Canada has to be considered in the medal chase, not for the gold but definitely for the silver.

The Soviet Union, which has seven of its national players here, is favored but the United States also is considered a major threat.

Canada finished third in the Pan-American Games and third in the world championship held during May in Korea.

Canadian captain Sylvia Sweeney of Montreal did not play Monday, sidelined with an injury to her left foot.

Bump survivor wins Futurity

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Pie In The Sky came back from an early bump with third-place finisher Thats Raney and raced 440 yards in 21.76 seconds Monday to win the 21st running of the $1.28 million All American Futurity.

Streakin Six, the winner of the Rainbow Futurity and the betting favorite at 3-5, finished second.

CANADIANS BLANKED BY DUTCH

MEXICO CITY (CP) — The Canadian soccer team faces an uphill battle in the championship round of the world university games after losing 2-0 to the Netherlands on Monday.

Canada, in Group 4 along with Spain and Madagascar, is tied with Madagascar for last place with one point. Spain, which drew 1-1 against Madagascar Monday, has two points while the Netherlands tops the group with four points.

The Netherlands employed a conservative style of play to defeat Canada.

Canadian coach Brian Hughes of Victoria felt his teams inability to score in the first half, when they enjoyed a tremendous territorial advantage, made the difference.

"That's the way they play," Hughes said. "They did exactly the same thing the last time we played them (a 3-3 draw)."

Canada must now defeat Madagascar Wednesday and have the Netherlands defeat Spain in order to advance. If Canada wins and the Netherlands and Spain tie, the team with the better goals for -against record will advance.

Soviets, U.S. display power

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Soviet gymnasts and United States swimmers dominated Monday's first day of competition at the World University Games.

Individually, honors belonged to Amy Caulkins, who won a gold medal in the women's 100-metre frestyle and anchored the American team to another in the 400 medley relay, and Bogdan Makouls, the individual all-round champion in men's gymnastics and a member of the winning Soviet team.

The Russians picked up a third gold in swimming as Mikhail Gorelik captured the men's 200 butterfly. The only other final event was the men's 100 backstroke, won by Australian Mark Anthony Kerry.

There were no Canadian medals — the medley relay team came closest with a fourth-place finish behind the U.S., the Soviet Union and the Netherlands — but the men's and women's basketball teams won their first preliminary games and two of the three tennis players in action scored victories.

Caulkins, the older and lesser-known sister of Tracy Caulkins, who holds several world records, beat teammate Sue Winderaker and Annelies Maaas of the Netherlands in the women's freestyle with a winning time of 58.26 seconds. Johanna Malloy of Thunder Bay and Lori Scott of Windsor were seventh and eighth.

A single field goal on an empty floor was all the Canadian men's basketball team needed to win its opening game when Nicaragua failed to put in an appearance aand lost the game by default.

The women's team was not called on to work much harder, piling up a 122-18 score against its much smaller opponents from Costa Rica.

Josef Brabenec of Vancouver also had in his first-round tennis match, breezing to a 6-1, 6-0 victory over George Kairallahd of Lebaanon but Robert Bettauer of Vancouver had to scramble to defeat Ali Hadiman of Indonesia 3-6, 6-4, 9-7 and Judith Pridham of Oakville, Ont., went down 6-2, 6-3 to Chen Huan of China.

The Soviet gymnastics team was an easy winner over Japan and Romania with a total of 171.6 points. Canada was fifth with 165.5 but placed three gymnasts in the individual finals. Warren Long of Victoria was ninth in the all-round competition, Jean Choquette of Montreal was 22nd and Marc Epprecht of Cambridge, Ont., 32nd.

The Canadian men's volleyball team defeated New Zealand 15-2, 15-5, 15-3 but the water polo team lost 5-1 to Italy. The soccer team was beaten 2-0 by the Netherlands.

Borg gains eights

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Stockton was full of surprises, both for himself and Bjorn Borg, although, in the end, the result was predictable.

Stockton extended Borg, the world's top player and the No. 1 seed at the United States open tennis championships, to four sets Monday before bowing 6-4, 1-6, 7-6, 7-5. Borg thus advanced to the quarter-finals where he will meet either fifth-seed Roscoe Tanner, whom he beat in a five-set final at Wimbledon in July, or No.14, Tim Gullikson.

"I was a little surprised the way Dick was playing," said the Swede who has won four consecutive Wimbledon championships but has never won the U.S. Open. "That's the best match he's ever played against me. He was serving well and covering the net real well, which gave me problems to pass. I needed almost perfect passing shots."

The unseeded Stockton, 28, was the first player to give Borg problems here. The Swede had won his first three matches losing just 11 games in nine sets.

Four of the biggest names in women's tennis qualified for the quarter-finals. One of them, fourth-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain, didn't have to play a game to advance. Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia had to retire after tearing a tendon in her right ankle chasing a shot in the opening game of the match.

Martina Navratilova, seeded second, blasted No. 10, Greer Stevens of South Africa, 6-2, 6-2, while fifth-seeded Evonne Goolagong stopped Jeanne DuVall 6-3, 3-6, 6-0 and No. 9, Billie Jean King, beat Kathy May Teacher, 6-3, 6-0.

Petes defeat Burnaby

CALGARY (CP) — Peterborough Century 21 scored three goals in less than three minutes Monday to break a 4-4 tie and coast to an 11-7 win over Burnaby Cablevision in the second game of the Minto Cup national junior A lacrosse tournament.

It was Peterborough's second win in as many days. The Ontario champions defeated the host Alberta all-stars 8-5 in the opening game Sunday.

Steve Smith scored twice for Peterborough, his second goal a shorthanded effort which started the three-goal outburst in the second period. Teammates Dan Sabadash and Warren Ferguson quickly followed up his marker to build a 7-4 advantage.

Larry Floyd, Steve Hardill, Brian Cowie, Gerard Cowie, Blair Larock, Todd Batley and Dave Cayser were the other Peterborough scorers. John Swan and Bruce Turris led Burnaby with two goals each, while Paul Dalmonte, Paolo Brunoro and Dan McLenaghen added singles.

Shawn Quinlan faced 41 shots on the Peterborough net while Burnaby's Rod Banister handled 44.

Alberta faces B.C. in today's game. The tournament ends with a championship game Saturday.

Albion clinches crown

Oak Bay and Saanich battled to a draw in the lone Victoria and District Cricket Association match Sunday at Windsor Park.

In Saturday play, unbeaten Albion clinched the league title by battling Alcos to a draw at Beacon Hill Park and Castaways defeated Incogs by 24 runs at St. Michael's University School.

Scores, top batters and leading bowlers:

OAK BAY (200 for 4 declared): Batting — Sandy Colquhoun 72, Tom Hayes 37, not out; Bowling — Eric Richards 5 for 1. SAANICH (score not turned in).

Saturday

ALBION (226 for 4): Batting — Mike Vaughan 87 not out, Brian Heaps 82; Bowling — John Buchanan 3 for 9. ALCOS (144 for 8): Batting — Steve Hanson 51, Peter Nation 30.

CASTAWAYS (70): Batting — Cec Mavers 34; Bowling — Tony Quarless 7 for 24, Alec Porter 2 for 22. INCOGS (46 all out): Bowling — Dave Gladders 6 for 34, Rob Wilson 3 for 2.

Thorburn collects

TORONTO (CP) — Cliff Thorburn of Toronto edged world champion Terry Griffiths of Wales in final of the Canadian National Exhibition snooker tournament Monday. The best-of-33 final was decided by the last game.

Steelers nip Pats

Times News Services

Rookie Matt Bahr capped a 69-yard march with a 41-yard field goal at 5:10 of overtime Monday night as the Super Bowl-champion Pittsburgh Steelers rallied for a 16-13 victory over New England Patriots in their National Football League season opener at Foxboro, Mass.

Bahr, who missed a conversion and a field goal earlier, calmly kicked the ball through the first time the Steelers had the ball in overtime.

Terry Bradshaw, a hero of last January's Super Bowl, came back after sitting out most of the second period because of a sprained toe and fired a tying touchdown pass of 21 yards to Sidney Thornton with less than five minutes remaining in regulation. Bahr, who missed an extra point earlier, then added the game-tying conversion.

The Steelers stopped the Patriots cold on the first series of downs in overtime and then took posession at their 31.

Franco Harris gained four yards before Thornton broke loose on a 17-yard jaunt up the middle to the New England 48.

Pittsburgh picked up another first down at the 32 on two runs by Harris. But the drive stalled at the 24 and Bahr was called upon for a field goal, booting the Steelers to their ninth consecutive victory.

This will come as no great consolation to New Orleans Saints fans today, but the fact is that their team is gaining on Atlanta Falcons.

After suffering heartbreaking losses in the final seconds of both 1978 meetings with the Falcons, the Saints forced Atlanta into overtime Sunday — and lost again.

This time it was 40-34 in a battle decided when rookie kicker Russell Erxleben tried to salvage a wild snap on a punt with a desperation pass that was intercepted by James Mayberry and returned six yards for the deciding touchdown in overtime.

Expos gain on Pittsburgh

Times News Services

Rodney Scott squirmed out of a rundown play between second and third base with the help of a wild throw by New York second baseman Doug Flynn and came around to score in the 10th inning to give Montreal Expos a 6-5 victory over the Mets and a sweep of their National Baseball League doubleheader at Montreal Monday.

The double victory enabled the Expos to close the gap separating them from Pittsburgh in the NL East to 2½ games.

The Pirates split with Philadelphia Phillies, losing 1-0 as Steve Carlton and Tug McGraw combined on a one-hitter, and winning the nightcap 7-3.

The Expos won their opener 7-2 as Gary Carter and Andre Dawson smacked two-run homers and Bill Lee and Stan Bahnsen combined on a six-hitter.

Rusty Staub doubled with one out in the 10th inning of the nightcap off Neil Allen, 4-8, and was replaced by the speedier Scott. Ellis Valentine then bounced the ball back to Allen, who attempted to nail Scott off second base. The pitcher's throw went to Flynn, who hit Scott in the head with his throw while chasing him to third. The ball bounced into left field, allowing Scott to slide home head-first.

The victory went to Bill Atkinson, 1-0, the fourth Expos pitcher.

The Mets tied the nightcap 5-5 with four runs in the seventh.

In the first game, Lee, 14-10, pitched five innings, giving up five hits before leaving with a blister on his left thumb. Bahnsen checked the Mets on one hit through the final four innings.

Jerry Reus of Los Angeles Dodgers hurled a two-hit 1-0 victory over Houston Astros which tumbled the Astros out of first place in the NL West.

Cincinnati Reds returned to first place with a 6-5 victory over Atlanta Braves.

In the American League, Mike Flanagan, the Baltimore left-hander, became a 20-game winner for the first time and the first in the majors this season by defeating Toronto Blue Jays 5-1 on a seven-hitter to complete a double-header sweep.

The Orioles, who lead the American League East by 8½ games over Milwaukee, won the opener 2-1 on Eddie Murray's tie-breaking bases-loaded single in the 11th inning. The second-place Brewers dropped another half-game off the pace despite a 6-3 triumph over Oakland A's.

Meanwhile, Nolan Ryan of the California Angels, coming back from a late July elbow injury, recorded his 14th victory of the season but only his second since he fired a one-hitter against New York Yankees on July 13 as the West Division-leading California Angels edged Chicago White Sox 6-5.

By winning, the Angels maintained their 1½-game lead.

Weatherman puts on the brakes

The weatherman was the spoiler the Western Speedway crowd and the drivers in the Canadian-American Motor Racing Association.

Weather conditions forced cancellation of both Saturday and Sunday programs in the $10,000 CAMRA championship that attracted an entry of more than 40 cars.

But the racers fared better in Portland, where Ron Eaton of Tacoma took the lead on the third lap and went on to win the Winston-West 100 race Monday at the Rose City Speedway.

Eaton, 36, who also won a Winston-West series race Aug. 26 in Monroe, Wash., took home $1,970 for the victory. It was his fourth career victory in the NASCAR-sanctioned series.

Bill Schmitt, of Redding, Calif., started in the pole position after the day's fastest qualifying time and finished second to earn $1,405. Jim Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., came in third to pick up $1,150.

Rounding out the top five were Rick O'Dell of Victoria and Tim Williamson of Seaside, Calif.

St. Catharines rower just misses world title

BLED, Yugoslavia (AP) — Bill Belden of the United States recaptured his World Rowing Federation single sculls title Sunday, holding off a fast-closing Brian Thorne of St. Catharines, Ont., with a time of seven minutes, 19.96 seconds on Lake Bled.

The 30-year-old Belden covered the 2,000-metre course 1.82 seconds ahead of the runner-up Canadian oarsman. Defending champion Jose Anton Montosa Ortega of Spain placed fifth.

Andrea Schriener of St. Catharines did not fare as well in the women's singles sculls, her fourth-place finish in 3:39.78 just missing the medals and only four seconds behind gold medallist Sandra Toma of Romania.

The third Canadian crew to reach Sunday's finals, the women's eight, finished fifth (3:04.96) behind the Soviet Union (2:58.09), East Germany (2:59.36), the United States (2:59.91) and Romania (3:01.12).

The women's eight was comprised of cox Ilona Smith, Joy Fera and stroke Tricia Smith, all of Vancouver; Gail Cort and Kathy Lichty of St. Catharines; Chris Neuland, Toronto; Kelly Jacklin, Victoria; Kim Gordon, Burnaby, and Delores Young, Brockville, Ont.

Great Britain's coxless four took the gold medal in 6:23.46, just 0.53 of a second ahead of the runner-up Dutch crew. Canada's entry finished sixth and last in the consolation final.

Norway's veteran double scullers, Arne Gilje and Pal Bornick, took a gold medal in 6:38.08.

The Spanish eight took its gold medal with a time of 5:53.10, edging the American challengers by 0.18 of a second on the Alpine Lake course.

Holland's eight was third with 5:57.74. Canada's entry finished second to France in the petit finals for crews that did not get into the finals.

Canada coxed four didn't make it to the final round of the women's competition but did, capture the petit final with a time of 3:24.06 ahead of France and the U.S.

The Soviet crew won the championship final in 3:17.03 to lead an East European sweep ahead of silver medallist East Germany and third-place Romania.

In the women's double sculls, it was another East European sweep with East Germany, Bulgaria and Romania running away with the medals. The Canadian crew of Janice Mason and Lisa Roy of Victoria placed fourth in the petit, or consolation, final.

Fera and Heather Clark of Woodstock, Ont., were six-place finishers inthe women's petit final for coxless pairs.

Cameraman, cyclist killed

Times News Services

Accidents took a varied toll in motorsport on the weekend.

A motorcyclist and a television cameraman were killed and a drag racer injured in separate accidents Saturday at the National Hot Rod Association U.S. Nationals at Indianapolis.

Joe Rooks, who was filming the racing for a syndicated television network, was struck by flying debris when a dragster disintegrated. He was pronounced dead in hospital.

The driver of the top-fuel dragster, Frank Rupert, 37, suffered a broken leg and internal injuries.

In an unrelated accident, 25-year-old Ernie Rife of Dayton, Ohio, was killed when he lost control of his top-fuel motorcycle during a qualifying run.

Rife was thrown from the bike when it developed a severe front-wheel wobble as it crossed the finish line at more than 180 mph.

Hollywood stuntman Kelly Brown, the defending National Hot Rod Association world champion, Sunday defeated Johnny Abbott in the final.

At Le Mans, France, Italian motorcycle racer Virginio Ferrari was in intensive care in hospital Sunday night after crashing in the 500-cc French Grand Prix.

Barry Sheene of Britain rode his Suzuki to victory in the race but Kenny Roberts of the United States finished third on a Yamaha and took his second straight world championship.

In auto racing, David Pearson marked his return to stock car racing after a four-month absence Monday with a win in the Southern 500 at Darlington, N.C.

Pearson coasted to victory after watching Darrel Waltrip, Bobby and Donnie Allison, Neil Bonnett and others scramble for the lead. He took the lead less than 100 miles from the finish.

Bill Elliott of Dawsonville, Ga., driving a Mercury, finished second with Terry Labonte third in a Chevrolet and Buddy Baker, also in a Chevrolet, fourth.

At Trois Rivieres, Que., Sunday, Californian Elliot Forbes-Robinson successfully defended his Grand Prix Molson Trois-Rivieres Can-Am crown, beating Bobby Rahal of Michigan.

Forbes-Robinson took the $19,000 first prize by capitalizing on difficulties faced by series leader Jackie Ickx and his own teammate, Keke Rosberg.

First Purchase hits old form in Plate

Times News Services

First Purchase, Horse of the Year at Exhibition Park last season and owned by Neil De Macedo of Victoria, overcame soreness and went all the way on the front Monday to win the $30,000-added S.W. Randall Plate for his second stakes victory of the season.

First Purchase also overcame a muddy track.

On Saturday, the fleet filly Pachena came flying from the outside post and went almost all the way on the front to beat the more highly-regarded colts and win the $65,820 Jack Diamond Futurity for two-year-olds.

Pachena, owned by Mel Jackson and ridden by leading apprentice Ray Creighton covered the distance in 1:19 3-5 on a track rated good and paid $34.80 to win.

At Atlantic City, Noble Dancer got a superb ride by Jacinto Vasquez to become the third horse to capture the United Nations Handicap twice.

Noble Dancer covered the 1 3-16ths-mile turf course in 1:56 3-5 as it matched the double-win feats of Round Table in 1957 and 1959 and Mongo in 1962 and 1963.

The Canadian-bred Overskate, the betting favorite, was third.

At Belmont, Pearl Necklace strengthened her claim to being the United States' leading older filly and mare by winning the $113,600 Flower Bowl Handicap for her sixth consecutive victory.

Ridden by Willie Shoemaker, the five-year-old mare by Ambernash led all the way in the 1¼ mile race over the turf course to increase her seasonal earnings to $264,647.

At Dublin, Dolly Brew won the Irish Sweepstakes race at The Curragh with Roger Bacon finishing second and Solo Venture coming third.

Hambletonian winner no surprise to drivers

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — It came as little surprise to many horsemen that Legend Hanover won the Hambletonian, the blue ribbon stake for three-year-old trotters Saturday.

Horsemen like John Simpson, Jr., who drove Classical Way, the only filly in the field, and Jimmy Allen, who piloted the heavy favorite, Chiola Hanover, thought Legend Hanover would be the horse they would have to beat even though it had experienced a poor season.

Legend Hanover had lost his first 10 races and, in 19 outings, had won but four.

There was also a shift in drivers.

Joe O'Brien, the Alberton, P.E.I., native who is Legend's regular driver, had to move to Armbro Unlimited, a horse he trained for the estate of Elgin Armstrong of Brampton, Ont., because otherwise there would be a conflict of interest.

George Sholty became the catch driver was behind Legend Hanover for the first time.

Legend went off at 11-1 in the first heat. He daringly moved through a hole on the inside in the stretch as Chiola Hanover bore out a little and then beat the favorite by a nose in 1:57.

He caught Chiola in the stretch in the second heat to beat him by a head in 1:56 1-5. Butch Lobell and Delvin Miller were third in each heat.

Equestrian team suffers setback

TORONTO (CP) — The Jab, a seven-year-old Irish-bred gelding that was being counted on to bolster Canada's hopes in the three-day event at the 1980 Olympics, has died in England.

Ridden by Jamie Smart of Thornhill, Ont., The Jab placed third at the Canadian championships and was in England to compete in the Burleigh horse trials this week. It had been acquired by the Canadian team less than a year ago.

The horse died of complications following an operation for an intestinal problem.

Strong start helps Dolphins break ice

Victoria Dolphins broke through for their first victory of the British Columbia Junior Big Four Football League season by defeating North Shore Cougars 22-14 Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Dolphins struck for all their points in the first half, highlighted by a dazzling, 85-yard punt return by Kim Clark.

Paul Docherty, on a 22-yard pass from quarterback Bernie Kidd, and John Buxcey, on a 15-yard run, scored Victoria's other majors. Docherty converted all three and added a single when he was wide on a field goal attempt.

Cougars scored their first major just before the half and added the second after intermission.

Clark, with 125 yards in 20 carries, and Buxcey, with 85 yards in 15 carries, were the standouts in a Victoria ground attack that received great support from offensive linemen Jim Johnson, Kelly Jones, Rob Kidd, Tomo Varganes and Peter Bryant.

Dolphins defence, particularly Sandy Clark and Bob Lefevre, also came up with a solid performance, responding best when North Shore recovered four Victoria fumbles.

Dolphins, now with a 1-3 won-lost record, face Surrey Rams next Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Nanaimo looms as the new power

There may be a new power in the Vancouver Island Junior "B" Football League.

Nanaimo Headhunters, somewhat maligned in the past while Saanich Hornets, Oak Bay Farmer Construction and Cowichan Timbermen took turns flexing their muscles, are undefeated and on top of the standings after two games.

Nanaimo scored its second straight victory Sunday by upsetting the Timbermen 20-7.

They assumed undisputed possession of the lead when Oak Bay held Hornets to a 23-23 tie. And, at that, the Hornets cut it finely. Winners of their first start, Hornets salvaged a draw when Mark Townsend broke loose for a touchdown with less than 30 seconds left in the game.

Hornets, still down by two points, then made good on a two-point conversion attempt.

Hornets, Patriots unbeaten

Saanich Hornets and Duncan Patriots remained unbeaten and in a first-place tie in the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League on the weekend.

Hornets defeated Nanaimo 14-6 at Nanaimo while Duncan tripped Oak Bay at Cedar Hill 22-8.

Each has two victories.

The other scheduled game between Saanich Vampires and Juan de Fuca Tigers was won by default by Vampires when Juan de Fuca didn't field the required number of players — 18. The clubs played an exhibition, Vampires winning 40-0.

It was a defensive battle at Nanaimo.

Hornets scored a safety to open scoring in the second quarter and, on the ensuing kickoff, Wayne Shiplack ran the ball back 85 yards for a touchdown.

Gary Layton ran for Hornets' second touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Terry Dusterwald scored for Nanaimo on a 55-yard run in the last minute of play.

Carnocham was the big man in Duncan's win. He scored two touchdowns.

Delaney opened the scoring for Duncan with an eight-yard touchdown run in the first quarter.

Then Carnocham took over. He ran 20 yards for the second touchdown in the second quarter and scored his second major in the third quarter with a 15-yard run.

Henson converted both touchdowns by Carnocham.

McGregor scored for Oak Bay on a seven-yard run. Deenhsaw converted.

$23,013 Trifecta

COLLINSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The trifecta in the 10th race at Fairmount Park on Sunday paid $23,013.20, the largest amount ever at the race track.

John Scully of Fairmount Park said there were two winning tickets on the 8-7-10 trifecta combination.

Jockey succumbs; horse fell on him

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jockey Kenneth Pichette, who fell when his mount collapsed from heat exhaustion at Timonium race course last Tuesday, has died of head and abdominal injuries in the University of Maryland's shock trauma unit.

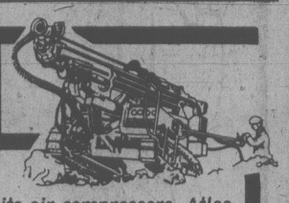

Pichette's mount, Pirate's Gold, had finished sixth in the ninth race, but collapsed on the turn when the jockey was pulling him up. The horse landed on top of the jockey, who had been thrown over his mount's head.

Sooke bid falls short

LUMBY — K&R Sooke, the Victoria district representatives from the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League, had to settle for "second best" in the British Columbia senior "C" softball championships.

Coming back strongly through the losers' bracket in the double-knockout provincial tournament, Sooke reached the final Monday only to drop a tough, 5-4 loss to McKenzie.

K&R moved into the final by blanking Trail and Revelstoke, both by 2-0 scores, earlier in the day.

Four Sooke players were named to the tournament all-star team. They were catcher Jim Boyd, shortstop Rob Coldwell, second baseman Mike Pimlott and outfielder Mike Lee.

Hurling champions

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Despite torrential rain and a strong wind, Kilkenny beat Galway 18-11 Sunday in the all-Ireland senior hurling championship final and captured its 21st title before 53,535 fans.

Washam takes LPGA tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Jo Ann Washam sank a 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole Monday to win a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament by one stroke over Sylvia Bertolaccini.

Washam shot a final-round 67, five under par, over the 6,300-yard Rail Golf Course for 275 total.

Bertolaccini was in the clubhouse with a 12-under-par 276 when Washam sank her dramatic putt.

Washam began her charge to victory in the third round of the tournament when she sank a 120-yard wedge shot for an eagle-two on the 18th hole.

Beth Solomon recorded a hole-in-one in the final day's play on the par-three 156-yard, 14th hole.

Dale Shaw of Victoria fired a 74 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 155 but missed the halfway cut.

TREVINO FARES WELL IN OUR TOURNAMENTS

Love affair with Canada

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — After winning the $100,000 Labatt's International golf tournament Sunday with a one-under-par 70, Lee Trevino wanted to know if he could enter another event in Canada.

"I played well today," said the wise-cracking veteran, with more than $2 million in earnings on the Professional Golfers' Association tour. "Do they have any more tournaments in Canada? Is this one over?"

Trevino's love affair with Canada started in 1972 when he won his first Canadian Open title. He repeated in 1977, then earned his third crown last June at Glen Abbey in Oakville, Ont.

He wound up the 72-hole International with a one-over 285 total, beating defending champion Lanny Wadkins of the United States by three strokes. Finishing third was American Tom Watson, leading money winner on the U.S. PGA tour this season, with a 290 total after shooting a two-under 69 on the difficult 6,975-yard National Golf Club course in the final round.

Few golfers mastered the National in the four-day tournament, although Trevino set a course-record 67 Thursday.

Trevino earned $20,000 for the victory.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby wound up along in fourth place with a 291 total. He shot a brilliant three-under par 68 Sunday to beat Peter Townsend of England by one stroke.

Nelford won $5,800. As the low Canadian, he also won a trip for two anywhere in the world CP Air flies.

The 39-year-old Trevino, from Dallas, had a steady round. He bogeyed the par-four, 388-yard first hole, parred the next six, then birdied the eighth to take over the lead for good. He clinched the victory with birdies on the 11th and 14th holes.

"I guess finishing behind Trevino, Wadkins and Watson isn't all that bad," said the 23-year-old Nelford.

Next year's tournament is scheduled for Edmonton's Mayfair Golf and Country Club from Aug. 21-24.

Californian U.S. Amateur champion

Times News Services

California champion Mark O'Meara ignored the pressure and a steady rain Sunday to win the 79th U.S. Amateur golf championship at in Cleveland with a walkaway 8 and 7 victory over defending champion John Cook. O'Meara was four up after the morning round. Cook's erratic irons cost him his chance to become the first golfer to successfully defend the title since Harvie Ward in 1956.

ALSO IN GOLF: South African Hugh Baiocchi won the Swiss Open at Crans-Sur-Sierre with a final-round 67 and a 72-hole total of 275 — five strokes ahead of his nearest rivals, Delio Lovato of Italy, Antonio Garrido of Spain and South African Dale Hayes . . . In Sapporo, Japan, Graham Marsh of Australia shot an even-par 72 to win a $135,000 international tournament . . . Marsh's total of 284 was two strokes better than Kikuo Arai of Japan . . .

Sepp captures junior honors

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rick Sepp of Mount Hope, Ont., edged Danny Mijovic of Unionville, Ont., by one stroke to win the Canadian junior golf championship on the weekend.

Sepp, 17, who captured the top juvenile honors last year, shot a two-over-par 74 in the final round Saturday for a 72-hole total of 299, 11 over par.

Mijovic gave Sepp a good challenge but his closing round of 73 — his best score of the tournament — left him with a total of 300, one off the winner's pace.

Tom Faulds of London, Ont., and Eric Kaufmanis of Aylmer East, Que., tied for third place. Both covered the 6,500-yard Breezy Bend Country Club course in 302.

Colin Moskal, 18, of Kitchener, Ont. was fifth with 304 while Rick Gibson of Victoria and Keith Westover of Vancouver were tied for sixth at 305.

Chris Dockrill of Dartmouth, N.S., was the top juvenile. He led the 16-and-under division with a total of 306, three strokes ahead of Rick Catonio of Edmonton and Marc Chamberland of Winnipeg.

The closing play struck a familiar note for Sepp, Mijovic and Faulds. They finished one-two-three in the Ontario junior tournament earlier this year, when Sepp edged Mijovic in a playoff for the title.

Gibson mounted the only other threat against Sepp on Saturday, playing his way into a tie for the lead after nine holes. But a triple bogey on the par-four 10th ended his title hopes.

18th helps Twitty change his mind

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Howard Twitty had all but conceded the B.C. Open golf championship to his friend Tom Purtzer, but after the 18th hole at the EnJoie Golf Club knocked off two leaders, the $49,500 winner's purse was all Twitty's.

He sank a four-foot par putt on the 18th after Purtzer lost his lead there with a bogey and Doug Tewell blew his chance to win the $275,000 Professional Golfers' Association event when he made a double bogey.

"I was starting to think the tournament was just about over and I was really playing for second place . . . then I biridied the 15th," Twitty said after his first victory in four years on the pro tour.

Twitty finished with a four-under par 67 in the final round and a 270 total that was 14 strokes under par and one stroke ahead of Purtzer.

The competition was intense the final day. With six holes left to play, 10 golfers were within two strokes of the lead.

Vaive signs for four years

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rick Vaive, the Vancouver Canucks first-round pick in the National Hockey League's recent entry draft, says he has signed a four-year contract with the club.

The signing is expected to be announced by the team on Thursday.

"I'm happy," the 19-year-old right winger said from his home in Charlottetown. "I certainly didn't want to go through the business of going to court or signing a one-year contract."

The road to an agreement was cleared after the NHL announced Friday that it had reached a settlement with the agent for Vaive and four other players who played last year for Birmingham Bulls of the World Hockey Association.

"Yeah, I'll be getting a lump sum," said Vaive. He would not say how much.

Down to fours

TOKYO (Reuter) — Argentina beat Algeria 5-0 in the quarter-finals of the second world youth soccer tournament Sunday. The Soviet Union won a 6-5 shootout over Paraguay, Poland edged Spain 4-3 while Uruguay beat Portugal 1-0 in other matches.

B.C. 'chutists hold world title

CHATEAUROUX, France (CP) — Canada was confirmed Sunday as the winner of the four-way event and silver medallist in the eight-way competition in official results of the world parachuting championships for relative work, which ended Thursday.

The four-way team of Kelly Dunn, Mike Zahar, Graham Taylor and Mike Quinn of Abbotsford, defending the title they won in Australia two years ago, were declared the winners with 82 points to 77 for Britain and 73 for Australia. China was fourth with 70, followed by the United States, 65, and France, 57.

The U.S. easily defended its eight-way title with 66 points to Canada's 49. France, which had led the Canadians by a point with two rounds to go, faded to third place with 46, followed by China with 37 and Britain with 33.

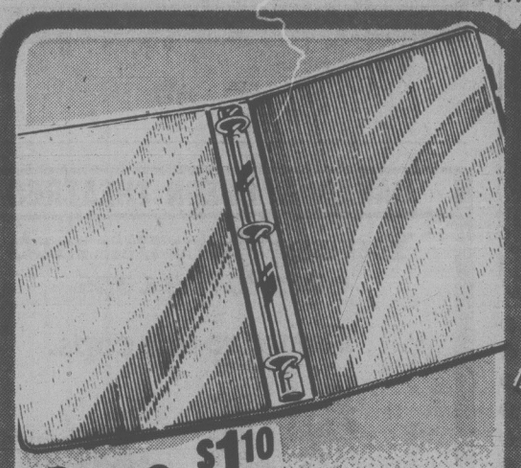

The Canadian eight-way team consisted of Dunn, Zahar, Taylor and Quinn together with Claude Marchand of Abbotsford and Mark Vincent, Karen Opleta and Rob Laidlaw of Winnipeg.

Freaks Quebec film topic

MONTREAL (CP) — A $5-million animated science-fiction movie and a film about human freaks are on rules announced this week by two major Montreal motion picture organizations.

Harold Greenberg, president of Astral Bellevue-Pathe Ltd. (ABP), said his organization will produce nine feature movies and Claude Leger, president of Caneuram Films, said his company will produce five.

Four new ABP films slated to go into production this fall are: Empire, a $5-million Godfather-style movie; Gold Train, a $9-million adventure thriller; The Power Barons, budgeted at $6 million and Freaks budgeted at $1.5 million.

Publicity for Freaks says the film will document human oddities in Tibet, New Guinea, the Phillippines, India, Sumatra and the unexplored jungles of the Americas.

Caneuram Films will produce five films with a total budget of $17-million, three of which are currently in pre-production.

Production is to start soon on the $5-million Gandahar Versus the Metal Warriors, a France-Canada co-production.

ROMANTIC ERA of boating was recalled over weekend at Classic Boat Festival in Inner Harbor when some superb examples of both power and sailing craft went on public display. Display included vessels such as Sinbad, a 46 foot schooner built in 1912, as well as the Kitone, of Hawaii, designed and owned by naval architect of the 1940's, Ernie Simmerer. Value of boats runs into several millions of dollars.

The 'mature detective' is still going strong

NEW YORK (UPI) — Buddy Ebsen still tap dances, sails a 12-metre catamaran and has taken up Kung Fu — not bad for a 71-year-old actor.

Ebsen stopped long enough during a theatre-going trip to New York recently to talk about his upcoming CBS television movie, The Paradise Connection, which goes on the air Sept. 15., and about Barnaby Jones, which first went on the air in January, 1973.

The "Paradise" of the title is the Hawaiian island of Maui, where the action-adventure film was made. In it Ebsen plays a successful Chicago lawyer whose quest for his son entangles him with narcotics and crime.

"Basically it's a story of individual morality," Ebsen said, his words coming slowly, carefully, sincerely. In person, the actor appears taller, rangier and more ruggedly handsome than on screen. "Everybody has to make a decision which side they're on."

In the show Ebsen's son runs from Chicago and the legal career chosen for him and heads for Maui and trouble.

"The lawyer I play goes after him, realizing that all the material success he'd gladly trade for his son's respect."

Ebsen applauds the morality of the story, saying, "The trouble with the world is that there is very little black and white morality left. Everything is in shade of grey — violence, pornography — there seems to be acceptance of what everybody else is doing."

Obviously this isn't a show in which Ebsen gets a chance to dance, although he hopes he'll be able to dance on a special he plans to do later this year, but he does use the Kung Fu he learned about two years ago.

Ebsen, who despite early stardom as a dancer was best known to television audiences back in 1973 for his role in The Beverly Hillbillies, smiles when he talks about Barnaby Jones.

"It was originally scheduled because a sudden hole appeared in the CBS schedule," he said.

"They had this hole and they thought, 'We've got a short detective and a tall detective and a fat detective and a lady detective. What we haven't got is a mature detective.'"

Vietnam has Joan Baez in hot water once again

By TODD R. EASTHAM

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — It was more than 20 years ago that a young folk singer and poet with a haunting soprano made her debut at the Newport Folk Festival. Joan Baez was 18.

Ten years later, at the height of the counter-culture phenomenon, Miss Baez played Woodstock. She emerged as one of the most articulate and controversial voices of a generation transfixed between the horrors of the Vietnam War and an exhilaration with its own growing social and political power.

Today, she is in the spotlight again, in a role which some past allies and supporters of the left view with dismay — as a champion of Vietnam's "boat people."

Many former supporters, including outspoken actress Jane Fonda, declare that Miss Baez has all but sold out to the right.

Even the Soviet Union chimed in during August, scolding her for her latest stand criticizing alleged human rights violations by Vietnam. "What brought her to the ranks of the renegades?" asked the Russian journal Sovietskaya Kultura. "What happened to the times when she stood in the front lines of demonstrators protesting the shameful U.S. aggression in Vietnam?"

Miss Baez contends her position is fundamentally unchanged and only appears changed in the light of changing times.

"I was warned by the left that I would be used by the right," she said recently before a concert audience in Stanford University's Frost Amphitheater — prior to the Soviet criticism. "But I say 'what's the difference? I've been used by the right for the last 20 years.' I cannot be hampered by an ideological yoke."

Miss Baez declines at this point in her career to ally herself any more strongly with the political left than with the right. "I'd like to create a new wing that's neither right nor left, but pro-people," she exclaimed to the Stanford crowd, and was answered with a thunderclap of applause.

Although she refuses to ride an ideological bandwagon, she is adamant about one thing: her belief that there are between 150,000 and 200,000 political prisoners in Vietnam, many are systematically tortured and starved, and Americans have a moral and economic responsibility to do something about it.

"Some people seem compelled to take a posture to placate Hanoi," she said in reference to Miss Fonda, "but if it happened to any of us, we would call it torture."

To do something about it, she and six women friends — with a prestigious group of supporters from all hues of the political spectum — have founded a loosely-based human rights organization they call Humanitas.

Its immediate goals are to influence Congress to speed up the process of bringing Southeast Asian refugees to this country, and to persuade the American people to accept them once they are here. A secondary goal is to pressure Hanoi into admitting an impartial international body like Amnesty International to monitor human rights conditions in Vietnam.

She has just completed a seven-week, 23-city tour to raise funds to acheive those goals, as well as to publicize her 22nd album, Honest Lullaby.

But Miss Baez and Humanitas have other long-range projects in mind. "An enormously important issue of the '80s will be nuclear power," she told UPI, "and, of course, even if we got rid of all the nuclear power plants we would still, in my opinion, be held hostage by the weapons."

Is nuclear power a human rights issue? Yes, she said, it is.

Her audience, she maintains, comes in two varieties — 'survivors' and 'cradle babies.' "Some of you weren't even born when I made my debut at Newport," she observed at Stanford, noting the number of infants and children in the crowd.

They may be of another generation, but she seemed to speak their language. At 38, Miss Baez' voice is still rich, her range broad. Although she is now taking.

Woodward's gives you the choice to buy better

1. NAME BRANDS

We have the largest selection of Name Brands in town. That is because we know that individual people have individual tastes and in certain items they want "their" brand that suits "their" taste. Check our coffee selection for example, just to see what we mean. You will find that kind of choice throughout our Food Floors. So, if you have a favourite "Name Brand", ... you can get it at Woodward's.

2. WOODWARD'S OWN BRAND

Unlike many "house brands", Woodward's Supreme is made up-to-a-standard not down-to-a-price. We sincerely believe that the quality of the products that we put our own name on is as good as you can buy. But, because we give suppliers a firm order for so many cases and they do not have to have salesmen or advertise to sell, we can offer Woodward's Supreme products at good value prices.

3. NEW UNBRANDED PRODUCTS LOW PRICED FOR SAVINGS

Often called "Generic", "No-Name" or "No Frills" Brand. They are "standard quality" products, packed by various manufacturers and economically packaged to give you lower prices. We simply call them unbranded products and they make sense when economy is most important. A less expensive serviette than you would use for a dinner party is sensible for the gang's corn roast. Why pay for Fancy or Choice appearance when a tin of green beans is going into a casserole? Look for the simple black and white label for real economy.

We reserve the right to limit quantities.

Talents go on display in unique arts centre

McGIBBON

Elizabeth Forbes

Pauline McGibbon Cultural Centre

A new cultural centre is scheduled to open down in Toronto, next week.

You say - that terse sentence doesn't really mean a thing to you!

Well! I'm not a bit surprised!

However, when I tell you it will enrich Canada's cultural life by providing a unique professional arts centre where the achievements and talents of Canadian women can be displayed on an on-going basis, I'll wager your interest will be aroused.

Let me add that the centre is to be named in honor of Pauline McGibbon, president of the Dominion Drama Association in the 50s, a past president of the IODE, one-time member of Canada's Centennary Council board of governors, and now Ontario's first woman lieutenant-governor, and I'm sure you will want to know more.

To give you more I can do no better than quote from an article in the current issue of Echoes, the IODE national magazine.

It says the centre is located in a downtown Toronto building erected in 1907, designated an historical landmark and renovated and restored to its architectural Georgian period.

Inside it will house an art gallery, cabaret theatre, film theatre, concert and lecture hall, reference library and reading room, cafe and lounge, studios and workshops and a kiosk for prints, posters and books.

The public will be able to attend plays, concerts, dances, lectures and forums there; view art and sculpture; browse among books and magazines in the library and purchase paintings, sculptures, crafts and books.

While programming for the centre's various art disiplines is definitely planned to emphasize women's contributions to the arts in Canada, it will also encompass contributions of some distinguished male performers and artists.

A deliberate decision has also been made, the Echoes magazine article explains, "to draw on the artistic and professional expertise of men within the community."

Productions by non-Canadians which reflect the centre's objectives will be considered from time to time and it is anticipated that, through workshops, the centre will develop productions and exhibitions which will embrace the work of women from a. across Canada.

Most successful of these could possibly tour throughout the province in the future.

The Cultural Centre was incorporated in 1976 as a non-profit, no-share corporation and registered under the Federal Income Tax as a charitable organization.

Financial support has been received from government sources and, to date, the Echoes article says, corporations have responded generously to requests for funds.

There has also been a successful fund-raising program, directed by a national financial institution.

Target figure for national on-going membership is 3,000 and already there are members — at least 10 per cent of them male — from Halifax to Victoria.

Of course, use of the centre's resources will not be confined to members only. It is expected the community at large will participate actively in the opportunities it offers.

President and founder is given in Echoes as Helen Notzl.

She was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia and emigrated to Canada with her family when she was five years old.

A graduate of Queens University and Laval University, she was the first woman field officer for the National Film Board in the Hamilton area.

She left the NFB to travel in Europe and after working in Spain and teaching English in Prague, returned to Canada to pursue the idea of a cultural centre about women.

Following official opening on September 13, the Echoes article says, there will be a week of arts and social events celebrating each of the disciplines of the Cultural Centre.

And in the forefront of this special celebration will be the centre's patron, Hon. Pauline McGibbon, who is described by all who know her as one of Canada's outstanding achievers.

The article concludes with the following:

"Named in her honor, this Centre is a place for men and women to discover the contributions women have made and will continue to make to our future.

"Open and available to everyone, it is unique. There is no other facility in Canada which provides comparable resources, programs, or services."

Garments, light fixtures recalled for hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Georgia clothing manufacturer is recalling about 50,000 highly-flammable women's garments, the government and the company announced.

The government also announced the recall of more than 20,000 Brite Bar fluorescent light fixtures.

The garments, made by the Edgewood Chenille Co. of Tunnel Hill, Ga., and sold country-wide, include women's bathrobes, jackets, shorts and tube tops, the joint announcement by the company and the Consumer Product Safety Commission said.

"Since December 1978, three women have been burned when their bathrobes caught on fire," the announcement said. "One of the women was seriously injured with second- and third-degree burns which covered 25 per cent of her body."

The commission said seven of 10 garments failed to pass the federal flammability standard for adult apparel in laboratory tests.

All the recalled garments are made of 100 per cent cotton chenille.

They have been sold since 1975 under Edgewood and Wrappers labels in department stores and ladies' apparel stores.

The commission and American Electric Corp. of Culver City, Calif., are recalling the model 9500 Brite Bar slim-line flourescent light fixture. It is about 60 centimetres long and includes a two-metre-long cord that is stamped in red, Caution: do not cut or coil.

The announcement said many fixtures have not been located since they were recalled in April, 1978, because of a possible electrical fire hazard. Those that have been retrieved came primarily from distributors and dealers.

Clear light bulbs cost less than frosted ones, even though clear bulbs give off more light. For that reason, my electrician suggests using clear bulbs in ceiling or wall fixtures that have globes or other types of covers.

Iran hairdressers cut

TEHRAN (CP) — Hairdressers here have been ordered by the Central Revolutionary Committee to stop cutting both men's and women's hair, a British newspaper reports. The committee, which has also outlawed blow-dry and wave settings, says the practices are against the Islamic moral code.

In Canada, fully grown white-tailed deer can measure 38 inches at the shoulder and weigh 250 pounds. The forested and brushy areas of southern Canada are home to three subspecies of white-tailed deer.

Fawns are born from late March to early August. During the first two weeks of their lives, fawns are relatively helpless; they lie in hiding, neatly camouflaged by their spotted coats. When the young deer grow stronger, they begin to follow their mothers about during feeding time.

Woody plants and grasses are the staple foods of both does and their fawns. Occasionally, deer find themselves special treats such as mushrooms, fiddleheads, and blueberries.

For more information onthe deer, write to: Scientific and Technical Publications Section, Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa, K1A 0E7.

Sensitive teenager afraid he's going to blow gasket

YOUTH CLINIC

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and Bruce Vichert, social worker.

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I am a 16-year-old boy who's very frustrated and angry. All my life I have been teased and ridiculed, and I don't even know why.

It's got to the point where I am afraid to go out anywhere, even to the corner store, for fear of being taunted. The only thing I can think of is that I have a peculiar walk, and I know kids are very quick to notice anything out of the ordinary. But still I feel terrible.

It's got to the stage where I know that I am going to explode and injure myself or someone else. Maybe I'm just paranoid, or have a terribly weak character, but I really feel rotten. Just now, at the store, some kids started saying things, and I tried to ignore them, but now I'm so depressed.

I've tried to stick up for myself, but I can never think of the right thing to say at the right time. I must sound like a real suck, but in my opinion I'm a walking time bomb and sooner or later something is going to happen. Could you please offer some advice?

ANSWER: I agree with you that some kids (and adults for that matter) can be cruel, especially to people who have difficulty fighting back. I know very little about you, but I doubt that you are paranoid or disturbed. Are you aware of anything else about you, other than your walk, that is either provocative or threatening to others?

Some people can take teasing or give back better than they get. Others adopt a kind of pride in their indifference, and give off a message to the insensitive creeps that their teasing is wasted. It sounds like you are either past that stage or have difficulty with those kinds of stances. The "walking time bomb" in you should be defused as soon as possible — it hardly ever accomplishes the mission when it explodes.

You wouldn't be loved any more if you cause harm to one of your tormentors; they might lay off a bit but on the other hand, they might come on as a group much stronger.

I think that you could do with some professional guidance, perhaps group psychotherapy. You have to find out more about the vibes you give off, and what can be done to modify them; build up your confidence and self esteem, and strengthen your resolve to ignore the yahoos in your life. It might also serve to get involved in activities with people who will accept you for yourself, and appreciate you for it.

DEAR DR. POWELL: Recently I have discovered I have dandruff, or dry scalp. Is there a difference? I have been using a popular commercial dandruff shampoo but it is not working. I'm embarrassed to show my head. Is there any shampoo you can suggest I use or anything I can do to ease this condition.

ANSWER: Dandruff is a flaking of the skin of the scalp. It may be a minor symptom and may respond to some of the widely advertised shampoos. However, if the dandruff is severe or if it persists despite your use of a special shampoo, you may have a more serious underlying cause.

As your description does not provide any clues as to the diagnosis, I suggest you consult your family doctor. There are shampoos and lotions which can be prescribed which will relieve your dandruff, but you should get medical advice first. I cannot suggest any one shampoo which will solve your problem.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I am a girl of 13. I just started my period. In the summer should I go swimming when I am menstruating or should I just stay out of the water?

ANSWER: Whether to go swimming during menstruation is a question every woman faces. Swimming is good exercise and should not stop just because of menstruation. Activity can be safely undertaken and actually helps. There is no reason to stop any sport or activity during a period.

Some women find tampons the only type of protection to use when swimming. If you do not want to use tampons then I would recommend you stay out of the water.

DEAR MR. VICHERT: Last year I became pregnant and decided to keep the baby. The father wanted nothing to do with me or the baby — until he discovered it was a boy.

Since then, he has begged me to marry him and when I refused he took me to court. I lost. Now he has custody of our baby. He has no job and lives with two other guys in a very low-rent apartment. I do have a job and a safe place for my baby to live. I also have loving parents who would be glad to take care of the baby with me.

Is there any way I can regain custody of my baby?

ANSWER: In order to regain custody, you will have to go back to court. Since your life situation has changed and you state that you are better prepared to look after your child now, it may be possible that the court would return custody to you.

However, just because the baby's father is living in a low-rent apartment, and shares it with others is not enough reason to believe he is not able to give his child proper care and love.

I can understand you're sorry at losing your child, but I ask you to give serious consideration to the well-being of the child. Consider what impact it will have on the baby to be moved back and forth between you and his father. It is unfair for children to have to suffer the results of struggles between the parents.

It's a very difficult situation because all three of you have needs and wants in this situation. The rights of your son for a stable, loving upbringing should take priority. I suggest you seek counsel from your lawyer to help you determine what would be best for your son at the present time.

Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4. Readers may wish to talk about their problems. They can call NEED at 386-6323.

Prisoners free

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazilian political prisoners have begun to leave jail under a new amnesty just signed by President Joao Figueiredo. Brazil has been under a military dictatorship since a 1964 coup, and repression of the left during the late 1960s and early 1970s led to the imprisonment or exile of thousands of Brazilians.

Forget about stereotypes and meet your neighbors

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Who does that 62-year-old codger think he is? God's gift to virgins? He said he could marry a 22-year-old, but she wasn't a virgin. So now he's romancing a 19-year-old dancing instructor who IS a virgin but can't date him because it's against house rules.

I'm a few years older than our Casanova, but I wouldn't have him on a silver platter. I, too, would like a companion, but I know my place. I have a lot to offer. Not too bad to look at, have a comfortable home which I'd gladly share with a man willing to carry his own weight. I'm a fine cook and housekeeper; I still raise all my own vegetables, and can and do chores as though I still lived on a farm. I'm not trying to sell myself. I don't have to. I get along fine as is, but sometimes it's a lonely existence.

Once when I refused to date a married man, he said, "A woman your age can't be too choosy!" Well, I can be choosy enough never to date a man who has a wife sitting at home waiting for him!

Abby, is there a man anywhere who wants a wife, companion, helpmate, a good woman to help see him through the sunset years of life? Seems to me there would be more available men for us older woman if more people would act their age.

ACTING MY AGE

DEAR ACTING: What do you mean by "acting one's age?" It's time we abandoned those old stereotypes. Anything a man or woman is capable of doing at his or her age is an appropriate activity and should be enjoyed to the fullest without embarrassment or apologies.

You sound like a woman who would appeal to many home-loving men in your age bracket, but no man is going to break down your door to offer you companionship. Get involved in community affairs; meet people! Life need not be lonely.

DEAR ABBY: My husband went back to college to get his degree, so now I have three college "kids" on my hands — a 19-year-old daughter, a 22-year-old son, and a 50-year-old husband.

When I saw this slightly overweight, balding freshman dressed in tight heans, tennis shoes and aT-shirt, I thought he looked ridiculous, and told him so He didn't take it very well. In fact, he gave me an argument.

Just between us girls, Abby, do you think a man should dress for the occcassion or according to his age?

MAMA

DEAR MAMA: A man should dress any way he wants to dress. No need to remind him that a diaper does not an infant make.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HERB M.: I don't know who said it first, but in order to achieve the ultimate in happiness one should practise moderation in all things. Including moderation.

YOUR HEALTH

Ice beats heat for bursitis

Q: What causes a sudden attack of bursitis in an otherwise healthy person?

A. Repeated injuries, exposure to drafts, lifting a heavy weight, off-balance swing of of a golf club or ax, straining the shoulder at tennis, can all cause an attack of this painful condition.

Q: Does bursitis occur only in the shoulders.

A: No. It is estimated that there are 150 bursae in the body. They may lie in the hip, the heel, the knee, the elbow. The shoulder does seem to be the most susceptible

Q: Why is the pain so severe with shoulder bursitis?

A: The agonizing pain is nature's way of demanding that the shoulder be kept at complete rest. For any further motion irritates the bursa, makes it swell, and sends shooting pains down the arm.

Q: What's the best way to relieve this pain?

A: "Freezing" the shoulder is very effective. An ice bag applied to the tender spot brings welcome comfort. NOTE WELL: Ice, not heat. Most important is the fact that the joint must have absolute rest. It can be held in place with splints or slings until the inflammation subsides. There are now a number of very effective anti-inflammatory and pain-killing drugs that can afford great comfort. When pain persists, doctors will inject cortisone or ACTH and the pain-killing drug, "procaine," into the joint. Besides drugs, X-rays are also used in some cases.

Only occasionally is surgery necessary. Under no circumstances should a bursitis be "worked out" with heavy exercise. Manipulation and massage must be avoided, since it is absolutely essential that the joint be kept in a fixed, rigid position, in order to help reduce the inflammatory process.

Q: What is a bursa and what is its purpose?

A. A bursa is a flat sac that normally contains a slippery, lubricating fluid. The name originates from the Latin, meaning "money bag." And a bursa resembles a small, empty change purse. Bursae are the lubricating, ball-bearing system of the body. Bones, joints, tendons and muscles that constantly move are protected against the irritation of friction by these well-placed bursae.

Q: Does one attack of bursitis make a person susceptible to more attacks?

A: Unless the underlying cause is removed, recurring bouts of bursitis can be expected. Tiny calcium deposits, which may lead to stones in the bursa, further complicate the problem of bursitis. Gout is sometimes overlooked as the real culprit in attacks of bursitis. Uric acid stones, rather than calcium, may be deposited in the bursae.

If4.

I want to form a national organization against the use of safety caps on medicine bottles. I twist them, I turn them, I pull them, bang them and then give up in despair. When my blood pressure reaches the breaking point I reconcile myself to my illness if I can't get someone to open the bottle for me. — Mr. C. L..

DEAR MR. L.:

The members of the organization you're planning will be few, because too many people appreciate the spectacular decline in death rates that has resulted since the child-proofing of medicine bottles. It is estimated that accidental deaths in small children from aspirn poisoning alone have decreased by almost 50 per cent.

Such statistics substantiate the need for child-proof caps in order to keep prying, curious hands away from danger.

Did you know that for people who do not have small children, medicines can still be purchased without the secure tops? Your pharmacist will be most co-operative about this. Actually, even these safety caps are easy to open when exact instructions are followed.

Put a feather in your cap

NEW YORK — Whether it's the classic look of the suit or the out-and-out glitter of evening clothes, chances are you'll find there's a hat to match the look you're striving for this fall. Though some carry a higher price tag than in the past, it's possible to find the latest looks at more moderate prices.

FEATHERS — Some caps and fedoras are covered with pheasant feathers. Other styles — felt berets, cloches of fedoras — may have one or two long plumes sticking up from the side. Small plumes, guaranteed to flutter in the breeze, are attached to felt or velvet bands and are great for getting attention at crowded cocktail parties.

VEILS — Whether attached to a comb, band or "complete" hat, face veils are an important part of the millinery look for fall. Though a few extend to — and below — the mouth, the majority end just above the tip of the nose. And, if you worry about vision problems, don't. Veils are loosely woven for an overall effect of glamor rather than of a purdah.

GLITTER — This will be one of the most glittering seasons in a long time. Sequins, rhinestones and the shimmer of satin can be counted on to provide their own source of light energy in restaurants and theaters.

As for shapes, there are four that lead the fashion parade:

BERETS — The small beret of spring and summer has grown up for fall. In keeping with the continuation of the Scottish look, many styles have a definite side tilt with either a tartan-plaid emblem patch or feather. A few of the smaller versions are strictly for late day or evening and are meant to complement the smaller-coifed head. Velvet is a good choice here, especially if dressed-up with a rhinestone clip.

CAPS — These have taken on a flair for glamor that would do credit to any evening occasion. Their small shape makes them ideal for theaters and concert halls, where the larger size hat would pose a viewing problem for the person in the seat behind. Tilted slightly to cover the top of one eyebrow, they either have back interest (bows) or side interest (feather pompons). Adding to the elegant flavor are style of plush velvet or felt encrusted with rhinestones.

TEARDROPS — This shape, popular in the '30s, is regaining popularity as part of the millinery designs' contribution to the nostalgia craze still in fashion. Identified by its distinctive V-shape, worn either centered or slightly off-center in front, it's usually just a band topped by a veil or a sideless cap held in place by old-fashioned hat pins. A few are reminiscent of those worn by Robin Hood during his days in Sherwood Forest.

FEDORAS — The mannish look is still around, and it's reflected in hats. Though classic-suit lovers might prefer the classic man's fedora with its top crease and grosgrain band, other women may wish to feminize and update the look. Choose a fedora without a top crease and add one or more feathers. Those in the forefront of fashion might prefer the all-feather fedora.

Toronto blacks cry revenge

TORONTO (CP) — About 2,000 people, mostly black immigrants from Jamaica, chanted "murderer" and "we want revenge" during a seven-hour demonstration to protest against the shooting death of Albert Johnson.

Johnson, a Jamaican immigrant, was shot by Metropolitan Toronto police at his home last week after he swung a lawn tool with a 15-centimetre blade at officers.

On Sunday about 400 members of the city's black community attended memorial services for Johnson. The ceremony was delayed 20 minutes as mourners filed by the open coffin.

The body is being flown to Johnson's home in Jamaica this week.

Johnson's widow, 29-year-old Lamonica, and their four children led demonstrators through Toronto streets to her home on Saturday. There the protesters demanded an independent inquiry into the 35-year-old immigrant's death and urged police to improve their relations with minority groups.

"For many years in Toronto the black community has been saying to the police that there is a problem with the officers who deal with the black community," Dudley Laws, executive director of the Universal African Improvement Association, told demonstrators.

"We cannot continue to see our brothers and sisters killed and remain silent."

Another speaker said "if we do not get justice, brother and sister, let the blood flow in the street."

Edward Clark, president of the Universal African Improvement Association, demanded the resignation of Police Chief Harold Adamson, saying the chief was "insensitive to the needs of policing this city."

The demonstration was organized by 32 groups, including the Jamaica Nationals League and the New Democratic Party.

Johnson was shot by officers of 14 Division.

Chief Adamson has denied all charges made last week by an independent race relations committee that called 14 Division "the most racist in the country."

The Liasion Group of Law Enforcement and Race Relations also promised it would investigate all reported patterns of racial harassment and abuse at 14 Division, located in an ethnic section of downtown Toronto.

The Ontario Provincial Police force is investigating the shooting.

WALL-A-BEAR? Well, certainly not a wallaby! The thought of saying goodbye to Metro Toronto zookeeper Kathy Rettie, 25, who taught it to swim, seems to be sending nine-month-old polar bear Freezer up the proverbial wall, but it was the last play bout for the two as the bear is getting potentially dangerous.

Stadium stunt site for backgammon

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Using cars as markers and foam rubber dice that had to be hoisted by a crane for the toss, Vancouver radio station CJOR made a bid to enter the Guinness Book of World Records Sunday, claiming the world's largest backgammon game.

The mammoth game was played on the 101,700-square foot artificial turf of Empire Stadium as part of the Pacific National Exhibition.

High winds played havoc with the four-foot-cubed foam rubber dice, hoisted to the roof of the stadium by crane and rolled down an 80-foot plastic slide.

McKinnon sets Arctic sights

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Defence Minister Allan McKinnon says he would like to strengthen Canada's military presence in the Arctic.

He told reporters Monday this might be done through more frequent military exercises in the North but he indicated cost is a major factor standing in the way of other improvements for spotting intruders in waters claimed by Canada.

The minister is touring the North for the first time since taking over the defence department in June. He will visit the U.S. ballistic missile early warning centre at Thule, Greenland; Alert, the most northerly inhabited settlement in Canada; and Spence Bay, where he will turn over an airstrip to the transport department.

The defence minister said he thinks he should travel frequently to the Arctic to make other countries aware of the importance Canada attaches to its northern territory.

"I would like to see us do more exercises in the north, and possibly set up a mobile base that we could fly in the way oil companies fly in exploring parties," he said.

McKinnon said he is thinking of having a major army exercise in the summer of 1981 in the North.

More strike in U.K.

LONDON (Reuter) — Four times as many British workers have been on strike so far this year as in the same period in 1978, latest official figures show.

Opening lead — eight of clubs.

If you study all four hands it might seem that declarer must go down either one or two tricks at four hearts. But South made the contract and, furthermore, the defenders could do nothing to prevent it.

West made the neutral lead of a club and south, taking full advantage of West's spade overcall, proceeded to play the hand exceptionally well. After following low from dummy, south won East's jack of clubs with the ace, drew three rounds of trumps, and then played a club to dummy's king.

Now, having run West out of all his hearts and clubs, declarer led a low spade from dummy. He planned to play the ten if East followed low, and thus force a favorable return from West.

But East, anticipating South's intentions, went up with the jack of spades in an effort to nullify the budding endplay. However, this well-intentioned move by East did not succeed because South covered the jack with the king, taken by West with the ace.

West did as well as he could when he now cashed the queen of spades and exited with a spade to South's ten. However, this provided West with only a temporary reprieve, because South countered that move by playing the ace and another diamond.

Now back on lead with king of diamonds, West once again found his position untenable. It did not matter whether he returned a spade or a diamond; in either case South would ruff the return in dummy and discard his ten of clubs on the trick.

All of which goes to show that in bridge, as in life, it is sometimes possible to overcome enormous odds if you play your cards right.

SOLUTIONS WEDNESDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, September 5, By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): You receive message which aids in eliminating groundless fear. Be open to knowledge. Imprint your own style. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Much that occurs is behind the scenes. You may not know it, but there is plenty of reason to be optimistic.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Accent on transforming apparent setback into victory. Family "situation" is favorably resolved. Be diplomatic, win your way, utilize powers of persuasion. Stakes are high — you have inside track.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Perfect techniques, check source material. Prestige is elevated if you avoid self-deception. Ambition, ultimate goal, basic fulfillment are part of scenario. You can gain access to information considered "confidential."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on special studies, spiritual awareness, communication and publishing. Accept responsibility of long-range project. You are capable of reaching more persons, of getting message across in meaningful, dynamic manner. Aquarian is involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Read Cancer message for valuable hint. Creative juices surge — relationship intensifies. This can be a powerplay day. Know it, act as if aware of it. Means exude confidence. You will also be exuding an abundance of sex appeal!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on partnership, public relations, legal affairs, new approach to gaining rights and permissions. Leo, Aquarius natives play key roles. What may seem a "lost cause" will be revived. Be patient, confident and display courage of convictions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Teach, learn, dig in to strengthen position. Take nothing for granted — accent work patterns. Special services, dependents and major domestic adjustment could be featured. Protect your own interests, follow through on hunch. Intuitive intellect will serve as reliable guide.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Roadblocks are removed, you have greater freedom of expression. Be ready for relationship that "heats up," for swift changes, speculation and adventure. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives figure in scenario — and so does the number 3.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pay heed to first impressions — intuitive intellect is apt to be on target. Aquarius could aid you in transforming ideas into viable concepts. Build on solid base for security. Obtain professional appraisal of property, personal possessions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study Sagittarius message. Check calls from relatives — discern between the lines. Movement, writing, short trips, display of versatility and humor crowd busy agenda. Avoid scattering forces — someone wants to see if you can finish what you start.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on decorations, frills, gifts, restoring family unity. Gift purchase could work wonders. Know it, act accordingly. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure prominently. You receive good financial news. What you have is more precious than originally anticipated.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Lunar cycle high — take initiative. You will be at right place at right time. Define terms, create and write, make personal appearances and appeals. See places, people in realistic light. Don't brood over foolish assertions by "mental lightweights."

IF SEPTEMBER 5 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are an appealing person, vibrant, anaytical, capable of imprinting style, of winning allies, of convincing people that your cause is right. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. You make marvelous contacts, have grand opportunities in October. You have been bogged down with a succession of responsibilities, problems. Now, a respite occurs — in October. If single, you could meet "the" person. If married, a change in life style is on agenda, perhaps an addition to family.

CITY WATCHDOG RICHARDS Report #124. Congratulations to the Victoria City's Police and Fire Departments for their answering questions and the very interesting exhibits on how to protect your life and property in the Mayfair Shopping Center Mall. Now if only we could have some policemen footpatrolling Victoria streets. Answer to Saturday's Question #5: Between Store and Government streets, with free shuttle buses operating efficiently to Belleville Street. It is Your City's Watchdog opinion that it appears a questionable $27 Golden Gift Certificate Programme operating in the Victoria area. To quote from their advertising offer: "Of course we know that you probably will not be able to use every Golden Gift Certificate in this package, however when preparing a programme of this magnitude for public offering there must be many types of Certificates in order to give all buyers an opportunity to get much more in actual values than initial cost outlay." Therefore this programme appears to benefit the Alpha Employment Services Limited, 1815 Blanshard Street, than anybody else. If you wish further information regarding City Matters or this Golden Gift Certificate Programme, please write to Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, PO Box 154, or phone 383-6259. Seen-in-Passing: Your City's Watchdog being watched by Victoria City Police in the Victoria West area.

IF YOU ARE PLANNING TO BE married early in 1980 and you would like your wedding to be the talk of the town, we would like to hear from you. A unique opportunity to receive an expense paid wedding on stage...from invitations to the reception to the honeymoon! Selection by a panel of judges; wedding to take place January 20, 1980. Please send name, address and photo of bride and groom to Box 1220, Victoria, V8W2S5.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

305 DEATHS and FUNERALS

BLACKFORD — At the residence, 1527 Fort St., Victoria, Mr. John C. Blackford, aged 71 years, formerly of Seattle, born in Wisconsin, U.S.A. He leaves his wife, Elsie; one son and one daughter; and several grandchildren.

PRICE — On September 1st, 1979, Marjorie, widow of Major General C. B. Price, formerly of Montreal and Knowlton, P.Q., in her 88th year. Survived by four daughters: Mrs. A. (Marjorie) Hugman, Vancouver; Mrs. G. (Helen) Perodeau, Sidney; Lady Steel, London, England; and Mrs. Jill Robinson, Warmley, England. One son Jack T. Price, Knowlton; 16 grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Two sisters, Mrs. W.A. Fowler, and Mrs. Ross Clarkson, both in Montreal.

Memorial Service Sunday, September 2nd, at 2 p.m. in the Chapel of First Memorial Services, 4725 Falaise Drive. Rev. R. A. Sansom officiating. Cremation. Flowers gratefully declined. Arrangements by FIRST MEMORIAL SERVICES Ltd.

RYALL — In Saanich Peninsula Hospital, on September 2, 1979, after a lengthy illness, Frances Emmeline, resident of 1066 Greig Avenue, Brentwood Bay, aged 67 years. Predeceased by her husband, Dr. David B. Ryall, in 1968. She is survived by her son, Philip D., of Australia; daughters, Mrs. W. C. Shaw (Suzanne), of 9538 West Saanich Road, and Mrs. M. Walters' (Cynthia), of England; her brother, Philip Salmon, of Qualicum Beach; sister, Mrs. G. F. Rose (Vera), of Filmer Road, Victoria; several grandchildren; nieces and nephews. She was a long-time resident of Alert Bay and McBride, B.C. She was a member of the Altar Guild and the Afternoon Branch, of the A.C.W., of Brentwood Chapel, and a member of St. Joseph's Hospital Alumnae.

Funeral service on Wednesday, September 5, at 2:00 p.m., in Brentwood College Memorial Chapel, 792 Sea Place, with the Reverend Cyril Venables officiating. Cremation to follow. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Cancer Fund, 857 Caledonia Avenue. McCall Bros. in charge of arrangements.

THOMPSON — Suddenly, in Kelowna, B.C., on August 28, James Robert Thompson, aged 35 years, of 807 Minoru Boulevard, Richmond, B.C. He is survived by his sister, Barbara Harding, niece, Karen, both of Victoria, and nephews, Gordon and Doug, of Nanaimo.

Memorial service will be held in Hayward's Thomson and Irving Chapel, 1625 Quadra at Balmoral, on Thursday, September 6, at 3:00 p.m. Rev. Wm. Z. Van Druten officiating. Flowers gratefully declined.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

WE WOULD LIKE TO EXPRESS our sincere appreciation to all our relations and friends for their many acts of kindness following the sudden loss of our wife, mother and grandmother, Velma Robertson. We also wish to thank Dr. G. McKenzie and the Medical Staff in the Coronary Intensive Care Unit of The Royal Jubilee Hospital for their assistance and compassion. Special thanks to Rev. Bruce Molloy for his comforting works and to Sands for a beautiful service.
Jim Robertson, son and daughter-in-law Jim and Geri, Grandsons Jamie, Geordie, Torrie, Martie.

WITH DEEPEST APPRECIATION we wish to express our thanks to all our relatives, friends, and the many friends of Michael who gave their love, sympathy and support after the loss of our beloved son and brother. A special thanks to the Doctors and nurses of Victoria General who gave so much of their skill and time, also to Pastor Ronald Nelson, Mr. John Wells, soloist Irene Robinson and Pallbearers.
Arnold and Marie Weldam and family.

WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

309 IN MEMORIAM

CLARK — In loving memory of Jim, a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away September 2, 1978.
One sad and lonely year has passed,
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that night,
No one can ever tell.
God gave us strength to meet it,
Courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
You left the ones who loved you,
Without a last goodbye,
And in our sad and lonely hearts
We keep on asking why.
A million times we've cried,
If love could have saved you,
You never would have died.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by your wife Edie, Ken and Paulette and family, Larry, Leoa, Fred and Jean.

CRADDOCK — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Anne Craddock, who passed away Sept 4, 1965 and, our great dad and grandad Barney (Bob) Craddock who passed away Oct 1, 1969.
We Cherish the Fondest
Memories in our hearts forever more.
Sadly missed always,
George, Win, Lloyd, Edna, Elsie, Arlene, Larry, Brian, Greg.

JEFFS — In loving memory of Paul, a dear son and brother who died Sept 3rd, 1976.
Three years have past since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home, it was his will;
But in our hearts he liveth still,
Sadly missed and always remembered by all his family in Victoria and England.

MORRIS- IN LOVING MEMORY of my dear husband, Kenneth (Ken) who passed away August 31-1978. I remember the day I met you and the day God made you mine, I remember the day I lost you dear and I will till the end of time. But, through all the tears and heart ache, there is one thing that makes me glad, it was me you chose to share with you our love and life together. Dearly loved and missed every day by his wife Ellen, family & friends.

Summer no time to pick rhubarb?

Is it safe to eat rhubarb pulled at this time of year?

The more people you ask the more confused you become, for nobody seems to know for certain whether rhubarb should or should not be pulled in summer.

Back in my childhood in England where pulling rhubarb and removing the leaves was a job given to the youngsters in the family, I was always reminded that no rhubarb was to be pulled after the first gooseberries were ripe.

It was generally believed that by gooseberry time all leaves and stalks of rhubarb should be left to build up food supplies for storage within the roots in order to obtain good stalks the following spring.

In those days rhubarb was considered one of the essential spring tonics necessary to clean the blood and body of debris from the heavy eating over winter, and it was always served as stewed rhubarb in a deep oblong pie-dish covered with a crust.

By the time gooseberries were ripe everyone was tired of rhubarb and welcomed the change to gooseberry pies. That may have been a reason for leaving the rhubarb, unpulled.

In Canada, rhubarb is not considered an essential spring tonic, nor is its use limited to pies every day until the gooseberries are ripe, therefore it is generally pulled for various desserts much later in the season.

It would seem that more Canadians grow rhubarb for the excellent tonic wine that is made from it, but none of the winemakers can tell me if the fermenting of the late pulled stalks eliminates some content that upsets others who use it cooked.

Whether rhubarb becomes harmful or not as the summer months pass has never, as far as I know, been researched or reported, but we know that some people find it upsetting at this time of year, while others claim to enjoy it as much as in spring.

There is still one angle that does not appear in gardening books.

We know that rhubarb leaves contain oxalic acid, the reason the leaves are never eaten. This acid is formed in the leaves as they manufacture food with the aid of sunlight.

It would seem reasonable that the acid content of the leaves would be quite high during the hours of summer sunshine.

Most of our herbaceous perennials which flower in spring or at the beginning of summer will start passing food back to the roots for winter storage soon after midsummer's day. Rhubarb, a spring flowering herbaceous perennial, probably does the same.

Storage food is withdrawn from the leaves of a plant, passed through the leaf petioles, which are the stalks of rhubarb we eat, down through the plant tissues and cells to the roots.

In the case of rhubarb, could there be any chance that the oxalic acid from the leaves is drawn through the edible stalks as the storage food passes to the roots?

If so, is there more oxalic acid in the stems which many people find disagreeable when the stems are pulled and eaten after the goosebereies are ripe?

Maybe the herbalists and doctors of past eras knew this and stated a definite time when pulling should cease, not necessarily a calendar date, for calendars were little known then, but a time all could recognize, namely when the first gooseberries are ripe.

Drill Hole Yields Clues To Structure Of Ocean Bed

GLOMAR CHALLENGER crew, right, assembles a Soviet magnetometer to be lowered through sea floor bedrock. It showed deeper volcanic rock had cooled and become imprinted with earth's magnetism when the earth's magnetic field was reversed. At left, scientists examine core samples.

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times

ABOARD THE GLOMAR CHALLENGER — In search of clues to the remarkable diversity of rocks found in the earth's crust, scientists have used a hole drilled deep into the floor of the Pacific Ocean as the laboratory for the most extensive experiments ever conducted beneath an ocean.

In 13 days at a site midway between Ecuador and the Galapagos Islands, the score of American, British and Soviet specialists on this drilling ship obtained what may prove to be the most complete picture to date of the structure of the oceanic crust and of the role of the super-heated sea water that percolates through it.

Among other things, the scientists were able for the first time to "look" inside the crust of the earth in mid-ocean by lowering an imaging system through sea water two miles deep and then 1,100 feet into the sea floor.

Their observations not only supported the well-established belief that all oceanic bedrock was formed by eruptions of lava along mid-ocean ridges, but also the recent hypothesis that such rock is extremely permeable.

It is widely assumed that much of the world's mineral deposits have been laid down by the movement of super-heated water through fractures in bedrock. In this way it is believed many of the more important minerals, such as the copper, iron, silver and lead ores, were extracted from vast bodies of rock and concentrated in smaller areas by circulating hot water, either on land or beneath the oceans.

Understanding how the sea floor evolves and is altered is of more than academic importance because it is suspected such material, to some extent, eventually becomes incorporated into the continents.

The imaging device, recently developed for oil well inspection, scanned the walls of a hole drilled through 870 feet of sediment and 241 feet of volcanic rock (basalt) two miles below the ocean's surface. The Glomar Challenger is the only ship capable of such deep-sea drilling.

From the imaging device, the scientists assembled a nine-foot mosaic of photographs showing the interior of the hole. When this was displayed in a shipboard lounge, the scientists crowded around it, seeking to match measurements obtained in their own experiments with features in the mosaic. Such measurements recorded magnetic, chemical, acoustical and electrical properties, and radioactivity.

The mosaic clearly showed the horizontal layering of the sediment and, lower, the complex fissures, cracks and cavities within the basement rock. Layers of chert, a flinty material hard enough for arrowheads, and the rounded "pillows" formed when lava erupts into the open sea also could be seen. A 23-foot section of seemingly solid basalt with only a few cracks was a prominent feature.

Samples of the rock were brought up as cores carved out by the drill bit, but they represented only a fraction of the material dislodged by the drill. The mosaic provided a complete picture.

The cylindrical interior surface of the hole was shown as though laid out flat. The scanning was done, radar fashion, by a rotating ultrasonic beam inside a long slender tube kept from the hole walls by springs shaped like the blades of an eggbeater.

The beam, pulsing 2,000 times a second, rotated every third of a second and each sweep was recorded starting when the beam was aimed toward magnetic north.

The possibility the deep volcanic rock might be very permeable even under the compressive weight of 12,500 feet of rock, sediment and overlying ocean had been indicated by an experiment performed before scanning of the drill hole walls.

This involved releasing a pulse of high water pressure into the lowest 100 feet of the drill hole after that section of the hole had been isolated by a somewhat leaky seal.

Pressure at the bottom of the hole from the weight of overlying water was 5,600 pounds per square inch. An additional pressure of 1,400 pounds per square inch was released into that isolated compartment to see how long it took for the added pressure to subside as a result of dispersal of water into the rock. This occurred very fast, indicating high permeability.

A planned attempt to fracture the rock under high pressure could not be attempted because the device to seal off the bottom of the hole was shredded during the drilling. A water sample obtained from the bottom of the hole was believed to consist in part of water that had percolated through the deep rock. The chemistry of samples extracted from within the sediment showed the effect of interactions with the volcanic material.

In one of the last experiments before the ship pulled up its drill pipe and headed for Panama, a Soviet device documented a period millions of years ago when the magnetic field of the earth flipped over, reversing its polarity. Such reversals occur at intervals of tens of thousands or millions of years.

In the lower part of the basalt, a massive lava flow proved to be reversely magnetized. This indicated that when it cooled and captured the then-existing magnetic field of the earth, that field was reversed. That is, a compass then would have pointed south instead of north.

This had been expected as this part of the sea floor was believed to have been formed during such a reversal, 5.5 million years ago. Immediately above this flow, however, was one that was normally polarized, possibly from a later eruption.

In the most surprising observation with the Soviet magnetometer, a strongly magnetic object was detected under the sediment. Dr. Vladimir Ponomarev of the Institute of Physics in Sverdlovsk, who conducted the experiment, said that in drill holes on land, such a reading invariably meant that a tool or other metal object had fallen down the hole.

No such object was visible in images of that section of the drill hole recorded by the ultrasonic scanner.

At a post-mortem conference of the participating scientists it was suggested that the mysterious object might be magnetite deposited by hot water eruptions soon after this part of the sea floor was formed. Magnetite is a highly magnetic mineral. Normally it is not found, however, in such an environment.

The dazzling diversity of minerals formed within the oceanic crust was literally brought to light in the ship's laboratories as paper-thin sections of basalt from the drill hole were prepared for microscopic examination under intense illumination.

Each specimen displayed a consistent pattern, but no two were alike. In this regard and in their sometimes garish colors, the specimens were a fabric designer's dream.

One resembled a Jackson Pollack painting, chaotic on the smaller scale yet with an overall consistency. Some, under polarized light, called to mind the stained glass of Rouault or Chagall. Many, with their jumbled crystals, could be passed off as Cubist paintings.

NOW OUR BANK CALCULATES INTEREST THE WAY A NEWSPAPER PRINTS THE NEWS. DAILY.

Now there's a new Daily Interest Savings Account available at the Commerce. A personal non-chequing savings account.

This new Daily Interest Savings Account may be of benefit to you, if your savings balance tends to go up and down a lot during the month. Interest is calculated on your final daily balance, instead of on your minimum monthly balance and is compounded semi-annually at a rate slightly lower than our regular Savings Account interest rate. There is no minimum balance required, and no extra charges for withdrawals or transfers made to or from a Commerce Daily Interest Savings Account.

If your savings balance remains fairly constant from one month to the next, you may do better with a regular Savings account, with slightly higher interest, calculated on your monthly balance.

If you have a minimum of $1000 saved, you may get a higher rate of interest with a Commerce Term Deposit, depending on the amount saved, and the length of time or "term" for which your money is invested.

To collect interest on your everyday working cash, you should think about a Chequing Savings Account. It gives you a combination of chequing privileges and savings interest in one account.

When it comes to saving, everybody has different needs. That's why Our Bank has a variety of accounts. The choice is yours. So stop in at any local branch and talk to the people there about your savings. They'll help make saving easier for you, at Our Bank, the Commerce.

Could Earth get nasty with man?

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — If mankind insists on antagonizing it, the planet Earth will be the most dangerous and determined opponent ever to face the human race.

Dr. Kit Pedler, a distinguished researcher, believes this statement to be true. He is one of a number of scientists who follow the hypothesis of Dr. James Lovelock that the Earth is not a neutral and impassive stage for a myriad of living things, but a "living" entity with the equivalent of senses, intelligence and memory and the capacity to act.

Attack the thin green rind of life that envelops it and the Earth, fully capable of recognizing and repairing damage done to itself, will strike back.

Pedler considers the "Gaia hypothesis" — Gaia was the earth-mother goddess of the ancient Greeks — that the Earth is a life form committed to perpetuate itself, to be "the most important single scientific work of recent time."

Lovelock and his followers have published a number of works on the theory. Pedler's contribution is a book, "The Quest for Gaia," which contends that if humans insist on living by processes that damage the Earth and its essential environment, we may be seeing the last few generations of our race.

It is, he says, not too late to learn to live comfortably together as man and Earth did before the industrial era without going back to Stone Age techniques. The key is heat — "the ultimate pollutant" that Gaia cannot tolerate. Mankind is producing so much waste heat to preserve the life style it considers essential that there is bound to be an irreconcilable conflict.

There can be only one winner, Pedler warns.

Pedler concedes it is difficult at first to grasp the idea of an intelligent Earth. The Lovelock hypothesis holds that both living and non-living systems on the planet are combined to form the main anatomical framework of the Earth "organism." It argues that life took hold here not just because physical conditions were suitable but by itself actively modifying the non-living environment.

Thus the relationship between all the living and non-living parts of the Earth organism are a complex of self-stabilizing systems with the inbuilt goal of keeping planetary conditions at an optimum for the maintenance of life.

"There are no senses, muscles or nerves in Gaia in the human anatomical sense," Pedler says. "But there are lines of communication and systems which act in a similar way."

A nuclear war might destroy the human race but Gaia would survive, Pedler says, and he cites the example of what happened when a volcanic explosion with the force of six large hydrogen bombs destroyed all living things, except possibly a few lowly organisms, on the island of Krakatoa in 1883.

Within nine nonths a single spider was found laboriously spinning its web. Three years later 22 species of ferns and plans had reappeared. In ten years coconut trees and orchids were back, along with shrubs and creepers. In 20 years there were 250 species of birds, snails, rodents and reptiles.

"But even now ecologists believe that the full stabilizing process on Krakatoa is not yet complete," Pedler said. "The integrated intelligent pressure of Gaia to survive has not yet reached its end."

Chinese missile tests observed

PEKING (Reuter) — China conducted three missile tests with rockets of medium and intermediate range earlier this year, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said two launchings took place on Jan. 7 and July 15 from the Wuzhai area in the northwest of Xhanxi province, while another launching occurred in the region of Shuang Cheng Tzu in the north of Gansu province.

The impact area for all three missiles was in the Xinjiang region northwest of Lop Nor, the country's nuclear test site, the sources said.

They said the distance from Wuzhai to the impact area was about 1,900 kilometres, suggesting the rockets on this course were intermediate-range ballistic missiles.

Western sources said China is believed to have deployed single-stage missiles with a range estimated at 2,700 kms.

China is also believed to have deployed medium-range missiles with an estimated range of 1,100 kms.

There has been no precise indication of the size or payload of the rockets fired during the tests.

China's missiles are primarily aimed at the Soviet Union, which Peking sees as its major threat.

Coffee-maker users warned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corning Glassware Inc. has agreed to ask the owners of 18.5 million coffee makers to stop using them because the handles might come off, posing a risk of scalding, a U.S. government official says.

John Bell, a spokesman for the Consumer Product Safety Commission, said the agency planned a news conference today to announce details of the Corning plan, prompted by consumer complaints.

He said the action involves all 18.5 million coffee makers sold by Corning since 1960.

It is not technically a recall ordered by the commission, Bell said, but a voluntary plan worked out in negotiations between the agency and the Corning, N.Y., firm.

However, Bell said, this would be the largest recall-like action involving a single product since the agency was established in 1972.

Although the commission does not expect all 18.5 million coffee makers to be returned, Bell said if just half that number is returned it would be the largest recall in the commission's history.

Corning spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

The commission has received about 7,000 complaints since 1972 about handles separating from the makers, Bell said.

About 1,250 injuries resulting from the handle problems have been reported to the company, with half the injuries requiring medical treatment, he said.

Under the plan, Corning will ask consumers — through advertisements beginning Sept. 10 — to stop using the products. A source who asked to remain anonymous said the firm will run ads for five consecutive days in about 1,000 newspapers in the U.S.

Aramis Malt
3 easy steps to everyday hair care

1. Shampooing
A daily shampoo is essential for promoting healthy, good-looking hair and a clean, dandruff-free scalp. A daily wash will control excess oils, dirt, pollution, surface scales, and flakes.
Aramis recommends:
Aramis Malt-Enriched Shampoo 175 ml 6.50

2. Conditioning
Conditioners, often the neglected step in hair care, are important as the great protectors. Conditioners help prevent hair breakage and tangles, repair weakened strands, while leaving hair lustrous and more manageable.
Aramis recommends:
Aramis Malt-Enriched After Shampoo Structurizer 180 ml 6.50

3. Grooming
The final touch that defines a man's sense of style. Grooming products perfect manageability and control as they provide additional shine and luster.
Aramis recommends:
Aramis Malt-Enriched Hair Thickener 90 ml 6.50

The malt-enriched plan is the head start to hair health.

U.K. unions united against Conservatives

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuter) — British trade union leaders voted Monday to stage mass opposition to any attempt by the Conservative government to restrict their powers.

They also told Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government that they believe its economic policies will create economic and social havoc, with increasing unemployment.

The warnings came on the opening day of the Trades Union Congress, attended by delegates representing 12 million workers.

It was the first opportunity for trades unions to give their concerted opinion of the Conservatives, who regained power in the general election last May.

The government plans legislation to control strike pickets and curb the practice which makes union membership compulsory at many companies. It also wants secret mail ballots among union members before a strike is called.

Joe Wade, general-secretary of the National Graphical Association, urged delegates to resist vigorously the Conservative proposals.

"And by support we don't just mean moral support or even financial support, but, if necessary, support in the form of industrial muscle power," he said.

Radiation probe on chemist's body

SEATTLE (AP) — One scientist says tests on a radiation-contaminated body at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation have provided valuable information about the accuracy of radiation detection.

However, another scientist and employees at a local funeral home where the body decomposed for four months have criticized the handling of the matter.

The morning Post-Intelligencer published a copyrighted story on the matter Sunday.

The remains of Stuart Gunn were tested at Hanford last week. He died March 29 of melanoma, a skin cancer that spread to other organs in his body. Gunn, 49, was a physical chemist at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, a weapons-research facility in Livermore, Calif.

Dr. B. D. Breitenstein, head of the team of scientists who examined the body at Hanford, said there was no credible evidence that Gunn's cancer was caused by radiation contamination.

He said the examination will help scientists understand the dangers confronting persons exposed to alpha radiation.

Some funeral home workers said they feared contamination.

The body was kept in Seattle because Seattle Mortuary Service had an established business relationship with Hanford, said Ian Morrison, president of the mortuary service and Acacia Funeral Home, where the body was stored.

Breitenstein said Gunn's body posed no safety threat, although he conceded that it contained more than 50 nanocuries of radioactive americium, the level the federal government says can be safely absorbed.

John W. Gofman, former associate director of the Livermore lab, said shipping Gunn's body from California through Seattle-Tacoma International Airport in a double-lined wooden crate by commercial airliner was irresponsible.

If the body had been burned somehow, it could have emitted americium 241 particles which can cause lung cancer if inhaled, Gofman said.

★ Nuclear dump for Puget Sound

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States Navy is proposing a 400,000-gallon storage facility for radioactive wastes at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, but at least one anti-nuclear group is hinting at possible legal action to block the $19.2-million project.

The Navy's plans were confirmed in written responses by Lieut. Pete Harrell, a shipyard spokesman. He said three such projects were proposed on the West Coast, but didn't say where the others would be.

Harrell described the facility as a 20- to 23-metre-high water pit lined with concrete and steel and equipped with filters to trap radioactive particles in the air and water inside the pit.

It would be completed by the mid-1980s, in time for the arrival of the first nuclear submarine at the Trident base on the other side of the Kitsap Peninsula, Harrell said. Money for the project is included in the Navy's proposed fiscal 1981 construction budget, which has yet to be approved by Congress.

The Navy said the facility would be used only temporarily to store spent fuel from nuclear ships.

Final processing of the waste will be handled in Idaho Falls, Idaho, Harrell said.

He said the spent fuel is not considered high-level waste because it will remain in its assembled configuration.

Bob Burnett of the Crabshell Alliance said the anti-nuclear organization is studying the possibility of legal action.

No Tass nyet to U.S. charge of Cuba troops

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass ridiculed Monday a U.S. claim that the Soviet Union has based 2,000 to 3,000 combat troops in Cuba but the Tass report, the Kremlin's first comment on the matter, did not deny the assertion.

Tass political analyst Yevgeny Babenko focused his comments on Senator Frank Church, chairman of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee, who said last Thursday that U.S. intelligence sources had confirmed the presence of the Soviet troops.

Babenko's commentary said sarcastically that Church had somehow developed "striking distance vision."

Cuba, now host to a conference of the world non-aligned movement, declined comment on the Church allegations except to say they were made to embarrass Cuba at the conference.

The U.S. state department substantiated Church's statement, saying new intelligence estimates "come to the unambiguous conclusion" there now is a Soviet combat brigade on the Caribbean island.

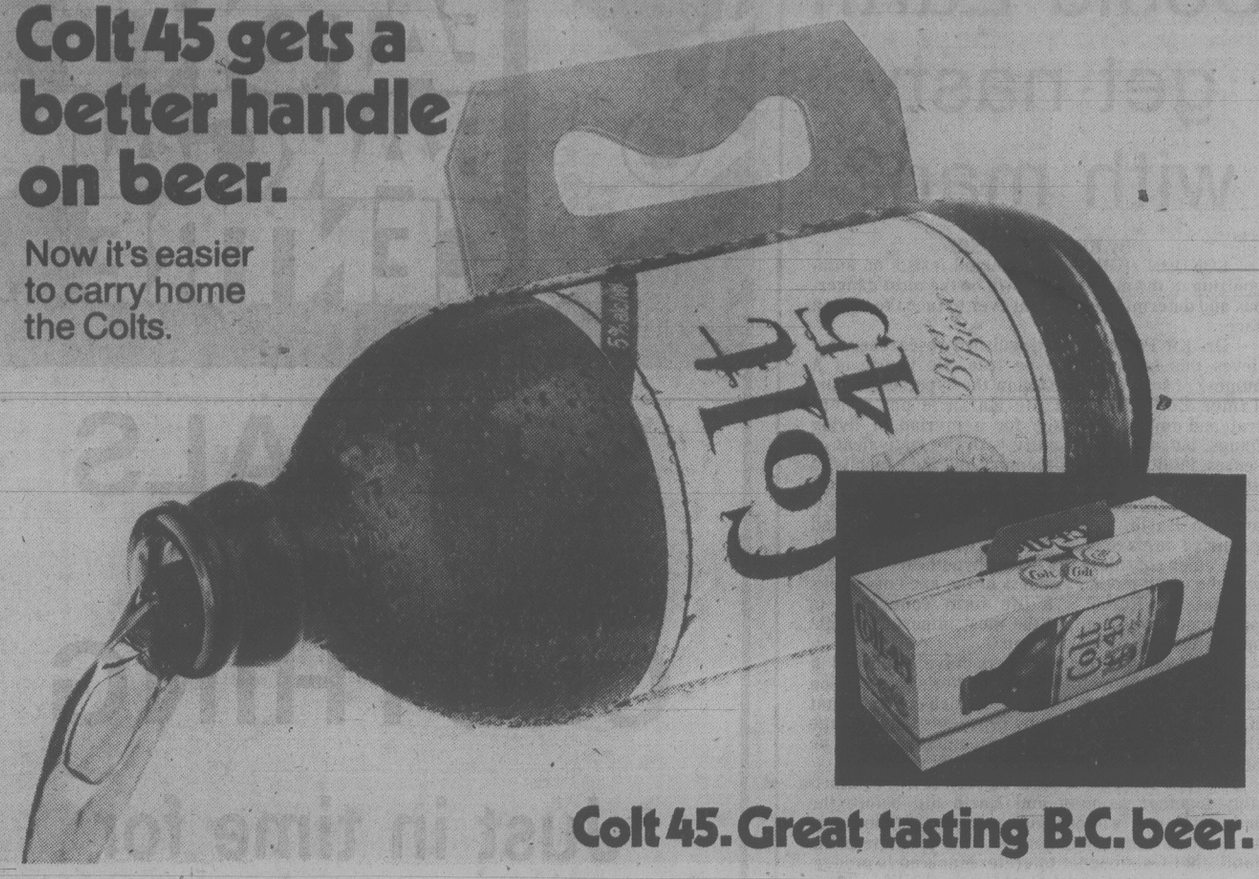

Ignoring Church's reference to intelligence sources, Babenko charged that the senator "was able to see without any optical devices what different U.S. services were unable to spot prior to that with the help of the most sophisticated technical equipment."

Babenko added that Church "not only discovered them, but even counted these 'Russian invisible men' with an accuracy of plus or minus a few servicemen."

The Tass commentator said it is "particularly noteworthy" that Church's statement came on the eve of the opening of the non-aligned conference in Havana.

Number 12 bludgeoned by Ripper

BRADFORD, England (UPI) — The "Yorkshire Ripper" has killed again as he predicted — claiming a 20-year-old university student as the 12th victim of his mutilation attacks on women, police said today.

The body of Barbara Jane Leach found Monday in an alley on the fringe of the red light district carried the hallmarks the ripper has left on his previous 11 victims over the past four years.

Police declined to disclose the Yorkshire Ripper's "trademark."

But the killing meant the Yorkshire Ripper has killed twice as many as his hero, "Jack the Ripper," who mutilated and murdered six women in London a century ago. Those cases were never solved.

The 12th killing came at the beginning of September just as the ripper predicted in a taunting, four-minute tape recording he sent to police several months ago.

His 11th victim was killed April 5.

Unlike nine of his earlier victims, Miss Leach was not a prostitute but rather a student at Bradford University. She was last seen alive when she left a party near the campus early Sunday saying she was going for a walk.

"I'm not quite sure when I will strike again but it will be definitely sometime this year — maybe September or October, even sooner if I get the chance," said the recording, released by police last June in hopes someone would recognize the voice.

Like Jack the Ripper, who preyed on women in the east end of London, the Yorkshire Ripper has a hatred of prostitutes. Nine of his first 11 victims, who ranged in age from 16 to 42, were prostitutes and police theorize he mistook the other two for streetwalkers as well.

Most of the victims were picked up in red light districts of Manchester, Leeds and Bradford in the Yorkshire and Lancashire regions of northern England.

The victims were slashed, stabbed and beaten to death with a blunt object.

Never rains but it pours

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Tex. (AP) — Rain and cloudy skies left the beaches of southern Texas almost deserted Monday, dashing hopes for recouping tourist dollars lost to the world's largest oil spill.

The beaches had been cleaned of tar balls and brown oil stains and local businessmen had been counting on an influx of tourists on Labor Day. But showers and clouds dropped temperatures to around 25° C. all along the beaches from Corpus Christi south to the Mexican border.

Ralph Thompson of the South Padre Island Tourist Bureau said he will try to survey business losses today. "It appears that we probably have lost about three weeks of our peak summer period," he said. "Over-all, across the board, we're about 50 per cent off or more."

Some vacationers stayed on the island but travelled inland for the whitewing dove-hunting season Saturday and Sunday. Hunting resumes again next weekend.

Beaches at Mustang Island and near Port Aransas, up the Texas coast, also were pelted with a steady rain.

U.S. Coast Guard reconnaissance flights discovered no new masses of oil lingering offshore.

More than 89 million gallons of crude has spilled from the Ixtoc I test offshore well that blew out June 3, spewing 1.25 million gallons of oil a day into the Bay of Campeche, 800 kilometres south of Texas. Officials, who claim the flow has been reduced to about 420,000 gallons a day, say the target date for capping the well is Sept. 16.

High tides and winds during the weekend blew several floating rubber barriers out of place from their moorings across entrances to the Laguna Madre. The large expanse of water between Padre Island and the Texas mainland is used by millions of birds, animals and marine life and is considered the critical battlefront against further advance by the oil spill.

Coast guard spokesman Mark Kennedy said no oil floated past the booms, which were blown out of place Sunday night.

Despite the Sept. 16 target date for capping the well, one engineer for Pemex, the state-run Mexican oil company, has said the capping might not be accomplished until early October.

Thousand of tennis ball-sized steel and lead balls are being pumped into the well and have helped cut the flow from the initial 30,000 barrels a day. Open water containment boom and skimmer setups are also sweeping up some of the oil at the well head.

Lens looks back at rings

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Pioneer 11 was more than two million kilometres beyond Saturn today and still looking back to photograph the planet and its rings.

The ship, already about 1.5 billion kms from earth, will sail endlessly through space, leaving our solar system around the turn of the century.

The rings, arrayed about the planet like circles within circles, span at least 270,000 kms of space, though they are no more than two kms thick.

Pioneer first discovered an unsuspected new ring, dubbed the F-ring, that encircles the planet about 80,000 kms above Saturn's yellow cloudtops and 3,500 kms beyond the three visible and well-known rings. The space between them is being called the Pioneer Gap.

Then, on Monday, scientists reported a Pioneer picture that shows a broad gap between two of the known rings, which is almost invisible from earth, said Thomas Gehrels, head of the Pioneer imaging team.

Gehrels said the new and unnamed gap is about the same size as the long-known 5,000-km-wide Cassini's Division within the visible rings.

5,000 salute soldier

ROMSEY, England (AP) — More than 5,000 persons, including many veterans of the two world wars, filed past the bier of Earl Mountbatten of Burma in Romsey abbey Monday.

Mountbatten, a 79-year-old cousin of the Queen, was killed Aug. 27 when a bomb exploded aboard his yacht in an Irish bay near the border with Northern Ireland. The outlawed Irish Republican Army asserted responsibility for the bombing, which also killed the mother-in-law of Mountbatten's daughter, a grandson and boatman.

Eight sailors had carried the coffin to the 800-year old abbey from Mountbatten's Broadlands mansion in the Hampshire County village in southern England.

Members of Mountbatten's household staff maintained vigil at each corner of the catafalque.

Today, the body will be taken to London, where it will lie overnight in the Queen's Chapel of St. James's Palace before Wednesday's funeral service in Westminster abbey.

The coffin will be brought back to Romsey for private burial beneath the abbey's flagstones.

Mass starving forecast

BANGKOK (AP) — The Thai command expressed concern today that many of the 10,000 Cambodians massing across from the Thai border town of Aranyaprathet will die of starvation unless they get emergency food supplies.

But a command spokesman said the Thais will not allow the Cambodians, mostly women and children, to seek temporary refuge in Thailand.

The spokesman also said the military has no objections if the United Nations and other organizations provide aid to the Cambodians upon receiving permission from the Thai government.

Thai authorities have predicted another mass exodus of Cambodian refugees into Thailand — perhaps as many as 100,000 — when the Vietnamese launch a major offensive at the end of the rainy season.

Oregon crashes kill seven

PORTLAND (AP) — Seven persons were killed in two Oregon plane crashes during the weekend.

Four died when a single-engine plane struck Gearhart Mountain about 30 miles northwest of Lakeview early Saturday. They were Grandview residents Virgil E. Spratt, 52, the pilot; his wife, Virginia R. Spratt, 27; their daughter, Ruth Ann, 1, and James D. Gee, 21, believed to be from Grandview.

Three others were killed when their light plane crashed at Chehalem Mountain about five miles north of Newberg early Sunday: Anita L. Fraedrick, 29, Sixes; Randy J. Slagle, 32, Eugene; and Dennis C. Brodie, 30, Eugene.

David death dance for Charleston?

Times News Services

Hurricane David, which killed nearly 1,000 people in the Caribbean and caused heavy property damage in parts of Florida, today clawed northward with 145 km/h winds, hurling gales and heavy rains at the Georgia coast.

Charleston, S.C., appeared at the centre of David's aim today, prompting evacuation of coastal Georgia and South Carolina.

"There's no question about it," said Dick Shenot of the U.S. national weather service at Charleston, "Charleston is going to get hit."

At 10 a.m. local time the Miami Hurricane Center said David was centred near latitude 30.5 north, longitude 80.8 west, about 56 km east of Jacksonville. It was moving northward at 18 to 24 km/h.

"The projected track takes the centre near and parallel to the Georgia coast today and to the South Carolina coast by evening," the forecasters warned. But they noted even a slight veer to the left of the track would bring the centre onto the Georgia coast.

Hurricane warnings were extended northward from Charleston to Cape Fear, N.C., and warnings were continue southward from Charleston to Daytona Beach, Fla. A hurricane watch was in effect north of Cape Fear to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

The Coast Guard station on Georgia's Tybee Island was evacuated when winds of 64 to 80 km/h stabbed ashore and heavy rains inundated causeways leading to the resort islands of Jekyell and St. Simons islands.

Further north in Charleston County South Carolina, schools and administrative offices closed today as a precautionary measure. Aircraft at Charleston Air Force Base were diverted to other installations and the Navy was preparing to move it's ships from Charleston into the open sea to ride out the storm.

A tornado, possibly spawned by the storm activity created by Hurricane David, was spotted over James Island, South Carolina, but no serious damage was reported.

Meanwhile, tropical storm Frederic swept around the Virgin Islands today and headed toward Puerto Rico, threatening to pour huge quantities of rain on areas crippled by David's onslaught last week.

Frederic steadily weakened Monday night and was downgraded to a tropical storm early today, with peak winds of 104 km/h.

In southern Florida hospitals a mini-baby boom was caused by David's low barometric pressures and in Miami fistfights broke out in hardware stores as long lines formed to purchase batteries and camp fuel.

Thousands fled Florida's coastal lowlands as David approached but most stayed put and there were even a few hardy surfers out to enjoy large waves that normally are a rarity along the beaches.

The blow David struck Florida was a puny one compared to the hit it scored on the Dominican Republic, where 950 are known dead.

Gold soars to high of $325 an ounce

Times News Services

The skyrocketing price of gold hit $325 U.S. an ounce today for the first time, and the United States dollar strengthened against other major currencies.

Gold sold for $324.375 an ounce in Zurich this morning, up from $322.875 at the close of trading Monday. In London, the afternoon fixing price was $325 after gold sold for $323.90 in the morning. The closing price Monday in London was $323.15.

The dollar edged up on opening in Frankfurt, Zurich, London, Paris, Brussels and Tokyo, easing fractionally in Milan.

It opened at 1.82535 marks in Frankfurt, up from Monday's closing 1.8250, and started at 1.65765 Swiss francs in Zurich, against 1.65735. In London, the pound opened at $2.2370 to the pound, down from Monday's $2.2480.

Plane crash kills two

POWELL RIVER (CP) — Pilot Eric Moore, 32, of Calgary and Mary Jane Glover, 34, of Vancouver have been identified as the persons killed Monday in the crash of a small plane on Savary Island in Georgia Strait.

Police said the Cessna 180 crashed after hitting trees on the edge of a grass landing strip about 18 kilometres north of here.

Gusty winds were reported at the time of the crash, which Transport Canada officials are investigating.

Meanwhile, two of the seven people who died last week when a twin-engine amphibian plane crashed on Digby Island, near Prince Rupert, have been identified by RCMP.

The names of the other five victims were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

An RCMP spokesman said Denny Adams, 30, from Masset on the Queen Charlotte Islands, the pilot of the 10-seat Grumman Goose, was killed in the crash. Adams had been living in Prince Rupert for the past three months.

Also killed was Bernard Martin, 34, of Port Edward.

Survivors are Antonio Stara, 48, of Vancouver, Andy Stewart, 24, of Delta and Clint Page, 43, of Burnaby.

Gamble for tuna failed: Skippers

The skippers of 11 U.S. tuna boats are to appear in provincial court in Vancouver as the calculated risk of following albacore tuna into Canadian waters turns into a costly gamble.

Charles Friend, a spokesman for federal Fisheries Minister James McGrath, said court appearances were to be set today.

Nine boats arrived in Vancouver Monday and two boats put in earlier at Port Alberni on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

After searching the boats, federal fisheries officers seized more than 30 tons of tuna allegedly caught within Canada's 200-mile limit. The tuna seized is to be sold to local processors with the money being held pending the outcome of court cases. The 2½ tons sold in Port Alberni earlier went for $850 a ton.

Friend said the eight skippers from the first boats seized were charged only with illegally entering Canadian waters, not with illegal fishing. According to U.S. law, he said, the latter charge automatically triggers an embargo on imports of Canadian tuna imports.

That's why Canadian officials have not laid that charge, he said.

"We tried to accommodate the Americans and accommodate ourselves," he said Monday. "We didn't want the embargo. Although it's not a lot of money, it can lead to other things."

Friend said eight other skippers who appeared in Victoria court last week were not charged with illegal fishing. However, the U.S. state department has said it is initiating an embargo on the $170,000 worth of tuna imported from Canada each year.

The boats were seized off the Queen Charlotte Islands along the B.C. coast as the highly-migratory tuna moved further north than usual this season.

"We knew there was some risk involved in going into Canadian waters, but it's difficult to judge just how the authorities are going to react to the situation," Gordon Tremain, skipper of the Banshee II of Coos Bay, Ore, said Monday. "Right now, it appears we lost."

Tremain, who declined to say how much tuna he was carrying in the holds of his 48-foot trawler, estimated his losses could run as high as $20,000.

The problem — the lack of an agreement between Canada and the U.S. on jurisdiction over migratory fish — also will draw the attention of officials in Washington and Ottawa this week.

Friend said fisheries vessels were still on patrol and would seize any U.S. boats found inside Canada's 200-mile limit.

He also said the only problem encountered during the seizures was when the skipper of the Velma J of San Francisco refused to co-operate with a fisheries officer put aboard the boat while it was being escorted to Vancouver.

He said the skipper refused to give the officer food and drink and the man went without for about 36 hours until stormy weather conditions subsided and the patrol vessel Howay was able to get close enough to give the officer supplies.

Petrocan pumps?

Times News Services

New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent wants Canadian motorists to be able to pull in and fill-er-up at Petro-Canada service stations.

And Imperial Oil Canada president Jack Armstrong says the Conservative government should maintain at least 50-per-cent ownership of Petro-Canada to protect the interests of "the man in the street."

The NDP leader and the head of Canada's largest oil company both made strong defences of the government-owned oil company, which Prime Minister Joe Clark has promised to sell off to private interests.

Broadbent said Petrocan should become the "dominant force" in the Canadian oil industry.

"We want to expand the role of Petrocan to have it enter every phase of the petroleum business, exploration, development, right down to the retail outlet," he told a Steelworkers' Labor Day picnic in Sudbury.

The oil company executive said if "he was in the driver's seat," a federal presence would be maintained in Petro-Canada but he said he was still uneasy over reporting lines from Petro-Canada officials to Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn.

Armstrong, during an interview in Ottawa, said the government-owned oil company should not "have a preferred position with respect to exploration of land and federally-administered areas."

MONTREAL (CP) — Flamboyant, bilingual Bernard (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion was today appointed coach of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens. Terms of the multi-year contract were not announced.

Williams in last-ditch ferry talks

Labor Minister Allan Williams today met mediator Fred Geddes and both union and management in what may be a last-ditch effort to prevent a ferry strike.

Williams said he simply wanted to talk with the union and ferry corporation officials to see how they think they are doing with the current negotiations.

But it is known the ferry workers are getting restless.

B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers spokesman Matt Brown said over the weekend time is running out and the contract problems had better be resolved soon.

There has already been one incident. One sailing of the Langdale-Horseshoe Bay run was cancelled Saturday morning when pickets appeared at the Langdale terminal. Union officials soon removed them.

Brown said the pickets were protesting slow progress in the talks.

Williams met with Geddes for 90 minutes then called in the two teams of negotiators.

The ferry workers served 72-hours strike notice Aug. 22, but aren't allowed to strike until the mediator reports out.

So far, Geddes has managed to keep both sides talking, but major issues such as wages, sick leave and the use of casual labor still have not been resolved.

If negotiations break off, the union has indicated it will launch rotating strikes.

The government, under essential services legislation passed nearly two years ago, can order a 90-day cooling-off period.

NDP '79: Please flush that plush!

A commentary by
BARBARA McLINTOCK
Times editorial page editor

VANCOUVER — The B.C. New Democratic Party held its annual convention in the Hotel Vancouver this weekend.

For any other party, there would be nothing newsworthy in that. Liberals, Conservatives, Social Crediters — they meet in the Hotel Vancouver and its standard-plush, multi-nationally-owned equivalents across B.C. all the time.

For the NDP, however, it was a big change. The party has a tradition of holding its conventions in bare union halls, in drafty university gymnasiums, in sagging, small-town convention centres where the walls are all concrete painted bright blue.

It is a measure of how far the party has drifted in the once-hated direction of "establishment" that convention organizers considered the Hotel Vancouver a suitable meeting spot.

It was not the only sign of the drift, called the "broadening of the party's base" by those who support it and the "abandonment of the party's principles" by those who oppose it. Some might go so far as to say the NDP is turning into a coalition of the left in the same way that Social Credit has turned into a coalition of the right.

To be sure, many of the convention delegates still were those who grew out of the cornerstones of the party — the CCF and Saskatchewan in the 1930s, the labor movement and its old-time organizers. Many others, however, were newcomers to the party, some of them people who had become involved only during the May election campaign.

Most of those newcomers are not "socialists" in the academic sense of the word. They probably know nothing of the Regina Manifesto, nothing of the Winnipeg General Strike or the struggles to unionize the Nanaimo coal mines.

They are reformers. They are people who believe in more social programs and/or more human rights and/or more government control over business practices. Perhaps essentially they are people who dislike the Socreds as much — or almost as much — as the people who gathered together under the Socred banner five years ago disliked the NDP.

Their presence was shown clearly when it came time for the party to elect its officers for the coming year. For the past three or four conventions, the so-called moderates within the party have consistently defeated the so-called radicals or hard-liners by about two to one in these elections. This year the ratio was closer to four to one.

Yet the conversion does not always come easily. Strenuous debate took place surrounding an economic develop-

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

309 IN MEMORIAM

CLARK — In loving memory of Jim, a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away September 2, 1978.
One sad and lonely year has passed,
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that night,
No one can ever tell.
God gave us strength to meet it,
Courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
You left the ones who loved you,
Without a last goodbye,
And in our sad and lonely hearts
We keep on asking why.
A million times we've cried,
If love could have saved you,
You never would have died.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by your wife Edie, Ken and Paulette and family, Larry, Leoa, Fred and Jean.

CRADDOCK — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Anne Craddock, who passed away Sept 4, 1965 and our great dad and grandad Barney (Bob) Craddock who passed away Oct 1, 1969.
We Cherish the Fondest
Memories in our hearts forever more.
Sadly missed always,
George, Win, Lloyd, Edna, Elsie, Arlene, Larry, Brian, Greg.

JEFFS — In loving memory of Paul, a dear son and brother who died Sept 3rd, 1976.
Three years have past since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home, it was his will,
But in our hearts he liveth still,
Sadly missed and always remembered by all his family in Victoria and England.

MORRIS- IN LOVING MEMORY of my dear husband, Kenneth (Ken) who passed away August 31-1978. I remember the day I met you and the day God made you mine, I remember the day I lost you dear and I will till the end of time. But, through all the tears and heart ache, there is one thing that makes me glad, it was me you chose to share with you our love and life together. Dearly loved and missed every day by his wife Ellen, family & friends.

Summer no time to pick rhubarb?

Is it safe to eat rhubarb pulled at this time of year?

The more people you ask the more confused you become, for nobody seems to know for certain whether rhubarb should or should not be pulled in summer.

Back in my childhood in England where pulling rhubarb and removing the leaves was a job given to the youngsters in the family, I was always reminded that no rhubarb was to be pulled after the first gooseberries were ripe.

It was generally believed that by gooseberry time all leaves and stalks of rhubarb should be left to build up food supplies for storage within the roots in order to obtain good stalks the following spring.

In those days rhubarb was considered one of the essential spring tonics necessary to clean the blood and body of debris from the heavy eating over winter, and it was always served as stewed rhubarb in a deep oblong pie-dish covered with a crust.

By the time gooseberries were ripe everyone was tired of rhubarb and welcomed the change to gooseberry pies. That may have been a reason for leaving the rhubarb, unpulled.

In Canada, rhubarb is not considered an essential spring tonic, nor is its use limited to pies every day until the gooseberries are ripe, therefore it is generally pulled for various desserts much later in the season.

It would seem that more Canadians grow rhubarb for the excellent tonic wine that is made from it, but none of the winemakers can tell me if the fermenting of the late pulled stalks eliminates some content that upsets others who use it cooked.

Whether rhubarb becomes harmful or not as the summer months pass has never, as far as I know, been researched or reported, but we know that some people find it upsetting at this time of year, while others claim to enjoy it as much as in spring.

There is still one angle that does not appear in gardening books.

We know that rhubarb leaves contain oxalic acid, the reason the leaves are never eaten. This acid is formed in the leaves as they manufacture food with the aid of sunlight.

It would seem reasonable that the acid content of the leaves would be quite high during the hours of summer sunshine.

Most of our herbaceous perennials which flower in spring or at the beginning of summer will start passing food back to the roots for winter storage soon after midsummer's day. Rhubarb, a spring flowering herbaceous perennial, probably does the same.

Storage food is withdrawn from the leaves of a plant, passed through the leaf petioles, which are the stalks of rhubarb we eat, down through the plant tissues and cells to the roots.

In the case of rhubarb, could there be any chance that the oxalic acid fron the leaves is drawn through the edible stalks as the storage food passes to the roots?

If so, is there more oxalic acid in the stems which many people find disagreeable when the stems are pulled and eaten after the goosebereies are ripe?

Maybe the herbalists and doctors of past eras knew this and stated a definite time when pulling should cease, not necessarily a calendar date, for calendars were little known then, but a time all could recognize, namely when the first gooseberries are ripe.

Use mulch soil

Lily bulbs should be planted three times their own depth in mulched soil.
